Marbletown Justice Resigns, Returns Pay

STONE RIDGE—Marbletown Town Justice Donald Paulson has resigned after less than three months on the job, something that isn't entirely uncommon.

Paulson has also refused to accept some $300 in salary and that doesn't happen every day.

A retired zone sergeant with the New York State Police, Paulson ran for town justice in Marbletown on the Republican ticket last November, narrowly winning election by about 40 votes over Frank Wuchte, the 25-year-old Democrat.

Paulson was sworn in Jan. 1, 1976 but on March 12 notified Supervisor Kenneth Smith by letter the "due to certain prevailing conditions now and in the near future I will be unable to fulfill my obligation."

Contacted by the Freeman, Paulson said his duties as manager of the Corner Store in Stone Ridge and as town justice were incompatible. "I could under the present circumstances probably remain in office for awhile longer," he wrote Smith, "however, I feel this does not do justice to either the town or my position."

In the same vein, Paulson goes on to say, "I could not in good conscience take any salary due me since the first of the year. While I had been sitting with Judge Diamond (Robert Diamond, the other town justice) on Friday evenings it has been he who has been doing the necessary paperwork.

"It is therefore my expressed wish that any and all monies due me be retained by the town."

Paulson had been paid at the rate of $1,700 a year or about $142 a month before taxes. He was paid quarterly and would have drawn his first check the end of this month.

Paulson closed by offering "my sincerest apologies to all the people who were instrumental in my being elected to office."

Smith said Paulson's resignation "came out of the blue." He said he has notified members of the town board and the political leaders in Marbletown—Lester Judd, the Republican chairman and Joseph LeFera, the Democratic chairman—for their recommendations on a replacement for Paulson.

A special election will be held this November to fill Paulson's unexpired term. He was elected to a four-year term last November.

Brave Pansies . . . A garden on River Road in Port Ewen is sporting a couple of brave pansies but the beautiful little flowers are in for a weather shock in view of winter storm warnings for later today. Diane Davis could be telling them that although spring is just around the corner they had better run for cover because the forecast calls for snow accumulations from 6 to 10 inches. That's a lot of white blanket. High temperatures today will be in the upper 20s to mid 30s. It will be windy tonight with lows in the teens and low 20s. The sun was nice while it lasted! New Budget Benefits Paltz

ALBANY—The New York State Legislature is expected to approve today or tomorrow a revised state budget that restores many of the cuts in aid to education and aid to localities threatened by Gov. Hugh Carey in January.

For Ulster County, the new state budget figure means continuation of the New Paltz Campus Learning Center for at least another year, an additional $240,000 in state aid to the nine local school districts, an increase in the amount of revenue sharing money for local governments from the figure proposed by Carey and additional funds for local town highway assistance.

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., said today that the legislature is expected to pass the revised budget by Wednesday and that the governor's signature is anticipated. The new budget package was put together by fiscal committees in the State Senate and Assembly and includes expenditures some $17 million above the spending plan first proposed by Carey.

Perhaps the biggest local beneficiary will be the New Paltz Central School District, which faced an influx of 279 additional students in September because of the state's decision to close the State University College Campus School.

The new proposed budget, however, restores $1.2 million in funding for the state's campus schools that had been eliminated earlier by the governor. The additional money will allow the New Paltz Campus School to remain open through Aug. 31, 1977.

"We are delighted, we are extremely pleased," said Frank Hamilton, business administrator for the New Paltz school district. "We're very grateful to Assemblyman Hinchey and State Senator (Richard) Schermerhorn, R-40 Dist., for the work they did . . . Assemblyman Hinchey was particularly helpful with his appearances before the (Assembly) Ways and Means Committee."

Hinchey said that restoration of the campus school funds was the "most gratifying" aspect of the new budget plan. "We worked very hard for full restoration of the funding," he said. "We were able to convince the committee that the educational and economic impact of the school's closing would be very severe on the local community."

The assemblyman conceded, however, that the Campus School could face budgetary problems again next year. Asked if that possibility might prompt the local school district to begin work now on an alternative plan for 1977, Hamilton answered, "I think it would be better for us to work to keep the Campus School open, rather than have an alternative plan on the back burner."

New Paltz, however, won't be the only local school district to feel the legislature's benificence should the new budget package be approved. Under the plan, seven of the county's nine school districts are in line for state aid increases for 1976-77; none of the districts are scheduled for funding reductions.

According to figures provided by Hinchey, the local school districts will receive $240,816 more in state aid over last year, and about $1.2 million more than the amount proposed by Gov. Carey.

The tentative increases over 1975-76 for the nine county districts are: Ellenville, $85,094; Kingston, $56,029; Marlboro, $52,930; Wallkill, $17,482; Onteora, $14,822; Highland, $12,608 and New Paltz, $1,853. Rondout Valley and Saugerties are scheduled to receive the same state aid amounts as this year, according to Hinchey.

"It's not a lot of money," said Hinchey, "but at least it's better than losing aid."

Other proposed budget items that figure to have an impact locally include:

- Restoration of $85 million in local revenue sharing, which is still about $9 million less than localities are receiving this year. Hinchey said the additional money will help relieve the property tax burden.
- An additional $650,000 for the Bicentennial Barge project, which should give a shot in the arm to local Bicentennial plans. The barge is scheduled to stop in Kingston for several days this summer.
- Restoration of $5.8 million for local highway aid to towns. Ulster County should receive about $30,000 of that amount.
- No decrease in state aid to Ulster County Community College or SUC New Paltz.
- Elimination of $96,000 for a "distressed wildlife program" which was prompted by the death last year of a pet deer seized by the state from Mr. and Mrs Jack LaFalce of New Paltz.

Hudson Only Solution

Water Outlook Critical

(EDITOR'S NOTE—In the first installment of this two part series, Ulster County's possible role in providing additional water for the New York metropolitan region was examined. This concluding part discusses regional water problems and finances.)

By Jon Powers

NEW YORK CITY—During the great drought of the mid-1960s, more than 14 million people living in the Northeast were forced to restrict their water use to conserve dwindling supplies. During the 15 years that have passed since then, the demand for water has increased while the supply has remained constant.

Well aware that another drought could cause an even more severe health and safety crisis throughout the Northeast region, Congress in 1965 authorized the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to locate and identify new sources of water, and to devise a plan for the collection, conveyance and storage of sufficient water supplies to meet the requirements of the region into the 21st century.

The first phase of that 10-year project was completed just recently with issuance of the Corps' interim report. Although the study area involves a 200-mile wide, 1,000-mile long zone from Northern Maine to Southern Virginia, the interim report deals specifically with three areas where the water supply outlook is considered critical: the New York metropolitan area, eastern Massachusetts and Washington, D.C.

The New York Metropolitan area covers 26 counties in three states, including Ulster County. It will have a population of more than 26 million people who will require 5.1 billion gallons of water a day by the year 2020. Existing supplies can provide only 3.2 billion gallons a day.

The Corps' interim report leaves little doubt where most of that additional water will have to come from: the Hudson River represents the region's largest supply of fresh water, and its use is essential if the demand for water over the next 45 years is to be met.

There are, however, limited areas where large quantities of water can be withdrawn from the Hudson. It appears from the Corps report that the ideal location for a pumping facility is considered to be West Park in the Town of Esopus; Hyde Park in Dutchess County is listed as an alternative site.

Several different projects are available for obtaining water from the Hudson at West Park. They include construction of an intake and pumping station which would remove the water from the river and then move it via an aqueduct to a storage and treatment facility in New Jersey; or construction of an intake facility and treatment plant so that the water could be pumped directly into the aqueducts which connect upstate reservoirs with New York City.

The Ashokan Reservoir in the Town of Olive also plays an important role in the Corps' blueprint for an adequate supply of water. One possible alternative, according to the Corps report, is to connect the reservoir with the West Park pumping station, which would skim water from the river during periods of high flow and pump it to the Ashokan when the water level there falls below safe limits.

Whatever plan is ultimately selected (if any plan is selected) by the Corps of Engineers and approved by Congress, it is going to cost a lot of money, and the localities that use the water will have to share in the expense.

The minimum capital cost at completion for a Hudson River diversion project is listed at just over $2 billion in the Corps report. Annual operating and maintenance costs for a West Park water intake facility would average about $44 million a year.

Since the Corps apparently figures that most of the Hudson water will be used by New York City and industrial users in New Jersey, they will share the greatest burden of paying for any system. Funding would presumably come from state and federal levels as well.

"Federal participation in water supply, presently limited to reimbursable construction, is under study and reevaluation," states the Corps' interim report, "and the precise form of cost sharing that would be most effective and equitable would depend on the particular program considered."

A public hearing on the Corps report will be held Friday, March 19 at 65 Liberty Street, New York City. It starts at 1 p.m.

Y Audit: It's All There

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON—A special audit of the Kingston YMCA's youth employment program administered by the recently resigned James Billups shows that "all funds are accounted for" and that there has been no loss of resources to the YMCA, or any programs under Y jurisdiction.

Following an executive committee meeting at the Y Monday afternoon, Wallace A. Pfeiffer, Y president, also stated that funds employed by the Y were audited as of Jan. 1, 1976 by the County's Intergovernmental Coordination Office headed by Robert C. Randall.

Randall said Monday that the county audit also showed that all funds were accounted for.

The latest Y audit, made by an independent CPA firm, was conducted by Leland Oathout and was prompted by Billups' resignation after having been the center of a controversy concerning money he first said he borrowed from the Ulster County Community Action Committee for a YMCA mini-bike program. Billups later said the money was for a private mini-bike program. Billups' resignation was effective March 9.

Asked if he planned another audit of Inter-governmental Coordination Office funds for the Y employment program, Randall said he "would take it under advisement."

He volunteered that there was "no phony list of names" of youths in the program and that all youngsters listed on the program's payroll exist and have been accounted for.

Robert Stubbs, executive director of the Y, echoed Randall's statement saying, "there are no ficticious names, we have delivered checks to every kid on the payroll."

Randall also indicated that since the funding program has been under scrutiny because of Billups' resignation, "certain safeguards have been put into effect and the entire program is being monitored."

Since Billups' resignation, Stubbs has taken over the administration of the Y-sponsored youth employment program, which is continuing without interruption.

Last year $400,000 was channeled from the federal government to the county Intergovernmental Coordination Office to the Y with about 120 youngsters on the payroll. Presently about 110 are enrolled.

Since its inception more than 2,000 poverty-level teenagers have taken part in the program, which provides not only jobs but counseling.

Billups had been employed by the Y since 1971 when he moved here from Cleveland. He was originally employed as community program director and was promoted to assistant general director in 1974. His salary was believed to have been in the $14,000 to $15,000 range.

Since Billups' resignation the Ulster County Community Action Committee has reorganized. The board now is reportedly investigating the charges and countercharges surrounding both the firing of UCCAC Executive Director David Joseph and the borrowing of money from the organization by Billups to finance programs at the YMCA.

Joseph's ouster came after he sought a $4,500 advance on his salary, allegedly to help finance a program at a former church on Abeel Street in which he and Billups were involved. When UCCAC Treasurer Mary Lou Rowland refused, she was fired by Joseph. Later she was reinstated.

Marlow Plan Presented, He Calls It "Unfair"

By Carl Graham

BOICEVILLE—Dr. Frank Marlow has been fired by the Onteora Board of Education and granted a stay by the State Education Department, but the issue is far from settled at the local level.

At an emotional five-hour meeting Monday night in Bennett Elementary School, the board outlined a four-part plan that would have left Marlow in office but would have stripped him of virtually all his powers. It called on him to furnish the board with copies of all his business correspondence; prohibited him from authorizing, spending or transfering district funds without board authorization; directed Dr. John Keough, the business administrator, to report directly to the board; and directed Keough to report directly to the board on the status of Proposition No. 1, the junior-senior high school renovation project that played a prominent part in the hearings against Marlow.

Marlow called the proposed actions a violation of his contract, state education law, and several board policy directives.

Donald Lawson, the board president, said the proposals were the board's attempt to clear up the superintendent's situation "so there is no question where the funds are going" and said the board had responsibility for the district's financial affairs.

Marlow called it "totally unfair" to prejudge him and said if he was guilty the proper time to act was after the commissioner of education decided his case.

The board approved the first and third items. The second, directing Marlow not to spend funds without board authorization, was tabled after several members noted that Board Attorney Alvin Moscowitz had not ruled on its legality.

The fourth item was passed unanimously after it was noted that Keough has been working on Proposition No. 1 for several months while Marlow was on a paid leave of absence.

Keough was then directed to do everything possible to save state aid on Proposition No. 1. and to make weekly written progress reports to the board.

Marlow's name cropped up again when the board took up the adoption of minutes of the February meeting. The minutes contained a statement by Lawson that the board had been unhappy with Marlow's performance as early as 1973 and had in 1974 given him permission to seek other employment.

W. Jack Kahn, former board president, objected to the statements and was supported by Charles Weidner, another former board member. Edna Hoyt also agreed, saying the statements did not reflect the feelings of all board members.

Marlow said the board was "perfectly satisfied" with his performance in 1974 but Howard Lewis denied this, saying "We talked of firing you." Former board

Wilson to Step Down

LONDON — In a surprise move that stunned the nation, Prime Minister Harold Wilson today announced his resignation effective as soon as his Labor party can elect a replacement — perhaps later this week.

The announcement, in a five-page statement from Wilson's office, came as a complete surprise. It staggered the stock market, weakened the pound and triggered dismay among British politicians and public alike.

"My period as prime minister has been longer than that of any of my peacetime predecessors in this country," the Wilson statement said. "No one should ask for more."

Another One for the Books

WASHINGTON — A $46,100 grant by the National Science Foundation to determine whether male drivers would honk their horns less if a scantily clad woman walked by their cars won the "Golden Fleece of the Month" for March.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who makes the monthly awards for the biggest, most ridiculous or most ironic example of government waste, said the official name of the NSF study was "Environmental Determinants of Human Aggression."

The National Science Foundation defended the experiment and said Proxmire had merely "pulled out a very small part of the whole study" for criticism.

More Grain for Soviets

WASHINGTON — President Ford says the Soviet Union may buy more American grain soon.

In a brief speech Monday to members of the Ohio Farm Bureau, after being introduced by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz as "a great friend" of American farmers, Ford noted the Russians already have purchased about 13 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn in the current marketing year and added:

Clashes Follow a Curfew

JERUSALEM — Riot police, wielding batons and firing tear gas, scattered hundreds of Arab protesters in the cobbled alleyways of East Jerusalem today in a shift of the focal point of Arab unrest on the occupied West Bank.

The clashes occurred hours after military authorities clamped a 24-hour curfew on the West Bank towns of Ramallah and Al Bira in the toughest government reaction yet to a six-week wave of street violence protesting Israeli rule.

A Warning for Sadat

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union reacted sharply today to the abrupt termination of the Soviet-Egyptian friendship treaty, warning Egyptian President Anwar Sadat it would hold him responsible for the consequences.

The denunciation was carried by the official Tass news agency in a English-language dispatch that also accused Sadat of having an unfriendly policy toward Moscow "for some time now."

'Fingers Still on Triggers'

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Rebel Moslem army units, bowing to Syrian pressure, backed away from an assault on the palace bastion of President Suleiman Franjieh today, but kept "their fingers on the triggers" until he resigns.

In Beirut, kidnap-murders and bloody clashes between Moslem and Christian militiamen claimed 43 lives, including a United Press International employe, and wounded nearly 100 in 24 hours.

The city slid further into anarchy after gunmen stormed Beirut's main jail and released about 700 prisoners—including murderers.

IRA Carrying Out Its War of Terror

LONDON (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army apparently has opened its threatened war of terror in Britain with a train bombing intended for hundreds of rush hour commuters in downtown London.

Seven persons were injured in the blast Monday. The blood-spattered bomber shot and killed a train driver who chased him from the wreckage and wounded a second man.

Police cornered the gunman in a freight yard.

"You English bastards," he shouted at them, then shot himself in the chest and slumped to the ground.

The blast came three days after the IRA warned the British: "You have labeled us terrorists. Now we will act as terrorists."

The wounded gunman, under heavy guard at a London hospital today, was listed in critical condition following emergency chest surgery.

Police sources said the gunman, apparently Irish, was identified tentatively as Frank McGuinness. But Scotland Yard planned to issue a picture to try to establish a positive identification.

Scotland Yard today warned commuters their trains and buses were front line targets in the IRA's bombing campaign.

"This must be a warning to the general public that they must regard themselves as their own security officers," said a Scotland Yard spokesman.

The five-pound bomb, concealed in a duffel bag, apparently was meant to detonate underground in central London during heavy commuter traffic, police said, but began smoldering as the train left above ground from West Ham station in east London.

An injured subway passenger told police the man threw the bomb down in the coach seconds before it exploded.

"I think we have got to accept that this is an Irish Republican Army bomb that exploded prematurely," said Commander Roy Habershon, head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad.

The blast ripped open the first coach and jolted the train to a stop.

Police said the bomber, his face covered with blood, staggered onto the track, chased by the train driver, Joseph Stephens, a 34-year-old West Indian.

Stephens was shot to death and a second man who joined the chase was wounded.

Keith Latch, who lives next to the train station, said he ran from his house when he heard the blast and saw the blood-covered man running along the track.

"I was going to help him but then he drew a gun on me ... a policeman nearby said 'Get down'. There was a lot of shouting.

"Then he fired three shots, everything went quiet, and then I heard a policeman say they had got him," he said.

More than 60 persons have been killed and about 700 injured in IRA bombing campaigns in mainland Britain since August, 1972.

The attacks resumed a month ago after the death of IRA hunger striker Frank Stagg in an English jail.

Deny LBJ Was Conned

BOSTON (UPI) — Five soldiers say the Army did not con Lyndon Johnson nearly eight years ago when the former President showed up at Ft. Bragg, N.C., to say goodbye to the Vietnam-destined 82nd Airborne Division.

In an article entitled, "The Day the President Got Conned," the Armed Forces Journal reported earlier this year that the President said his farewell to the wrong troops on Feb. 17, 1968 — that actually the men he shook hands with had just returned from Vietnam.

But five members — two generals and three paratroopers — of the 82nd Airborne told the Boston Globe the Journal story was false. They said they shook hands with Johnson and immediately flew to Chu Lai for combat duty.

The Journal maintained its story was true.

"We are sticking with the story. I checked it out," said Benjamin Schemmer, Journal editor and publisher and author of the story. "Even though a few units went off in flights to Vietnam that day, a large number of the men rounded up to listen to LBJ did not go."

They Walked In, New Crime Began

Police Beat

By Matt Spireng

ELLENVILLE—An incident that started out as a burglary became a robbery Monday as an elderly Ulster Heights couple walked in on the break-in at their son's house in Ellenville and were confronted with a rifle.

Ellenville Village Police said Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kroop came upon two burglars in the 5 Warren Street residence of their son, Bernard Kroop, at about noon.

The burglars, who apparently heard the Kroops enter the house, had covered themselves with a drape and armed themselves with a rifle belonging to Bernard Kroop, police said. They ordered Mrs. Kropp to face the wall, and had her husband lie on the floor while they bound his hands with wire. They took $150 from the couple and fled, leaving the rifle behind.

Kroop freed himself and called police.

Police said they have no description on the two robbers.

Does It Himself

West Strand redeveloper Robert C. Johnson, whose building at 29-31 West Strand has been the scene of some vandalism and one burglary of late, captured a 17-year-old youth in the building Monday morning.

The youth, Joseph Howard of 1 Wurts Street, had allegedly broken into the building and ripped out copper piping, police said.

Johnson, who arrived at the building at about 9:40 a.m., spotted the youth inside and gave chase, capturing him at the rear of the structure. Howard was charged with third degree burglary and second degree criminal possession of stolen property.

Authorities said the youth allegedly had in his possession several items taken in a previous burglary at the West Strand building. He was jailed pending a court appearance today.

Upset

A Brooklyn woman who was apparently upset because her companion was charged with driving while intoxicated early today by Highland State Police was herself charged with fourth degree criminal mischief after she allegedly proceeded to break venetian blinds and damage walls in a bathroom at the Highland State Polce station.

Police said the woman, Susan Prack, 19, had gone into the bathroom while they were processing her companion, Eugene Meyer, 24, of Wappingers Falls, on the DWI charge at about 2 a.m.

Both were released pending future court action.

Flash Fire

Officials at Rotron Inc. in Woodstock are attempting to determine the cause of a flash fire Monday afternoon in a laboratroy which resulted in burn injuries to technician Ted Geertsema.

Gertsema, whose clothes caught fire as he was checking a pressure gauge on an oxygen bottle, was listed in satisfactory condition today at Kingston Hospital.

"We're not sure yet what happened," a Rotron spokesman said.

Callaway Hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional hearing on charges President Ford's campaign manager, Howard Callaway, used improper influence to gain use of federal land for his Colorado ski resort has been set for April 6, the day of the New York primary.

Callaway reportedly "feels bad" about the developments which prompted him to step down Saturday while the charges are being investigated. But acting campaign manager Stuart Spencer told reporters he sees "no signs that it will have a political effect."

Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., chairman of the environment and land resources subcommittee which will investigate the allegations, said the matter should be resolved "as quickly as we can." He added:

"If the allegations that I have read in the papers and that I have seen on television are accurate, he clearly would appear from them to have attempted to use the influence of his office for private ends which I do not consider proper. But that's a big if."

'Dr. Marlow Plan'

member Peter Rakov supported Marlow, saying the meeting had ended "on a positive note."

Lawson said the board has asked the State Education Department for clarification of its directive putting Marlow back on the job pending a final ruling by the commissioner. Attorney John Clifton said he had been given two different interpretations of the directive by two lawyers in the SED legal division. Marlow and John Mower, the board vice president, disputed the meaning of the directive last week when Marlow attempted to return to work.

Irene Motrie said she had been told in Albany last week that the board must pass two resolutions at once to have Proposition No. 1 approved for some $44,000 in state aid. One would direct the board to either air condition a new art classroom in the high school or else declassify it as a classroom; the other would certify that the board would meet state requirements for lighting the junior-senior high school within the next five years.

The motions were not acted on after several board members said they objected to being rushed into an important decision. Keough said that estimates were that it would take about $189,000 to comply with the two resolutions, most of it for a costly rewiring of the whole school.

Lewis quoted a previous statement by Marlow that the board had offered to buy up his contract and said he had no recollection of such an offer. "This board never committed one dollar of the taxpayer's money to such an offer," he maintained.

Marlow maintained that the board had made such an offer.

The board heard the first reading of a change in the rules for partial school tax exemptions for senior citizens, changing ownership requirements from five to two years to comply with a state directive. Final action is to come at the board's next meeting April 12 in the Phoenicia Elementary School.

Illinois Could Be End for Some Hopefuls

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois, the state that has been on the winning side in November for more than half a century, tried its hand today at choosing the 1976 presidential candidates.

The Illinois presidential primary, a minor factor in past election years despite the state's position as one of the top five electoral prizes in the nation, shaped up this year as a possible knockout round for contenders in both parties.

President Ford was the consensus choice to score his fifth straight win over Ronald Reagan in the Republican primary. Reagan's own people said they'd be happy with 40 per cent of the vote here.

Jimmy Carter, George Wallace, Sargent Shriver and Fred Harris contested for the Democratic vote, with Carter a soft favorite.

Some 2.5 million or more voters were expected to cast ballots in 12 hours.

It was expected to be the biggest turnout of the young primary season. Voter interest centered on a struggle for the Democratic nomination for governor between incumbent Daniel Walker and Secretary of State Michael Howlett, the favorite of Mayor Richard Daley's Chicago organization.

The forecast was for early spring Midwest weather — wet and cold, with snow and slippery roads possible in the populous northern areas.

The Illinois primary was a double-ballot affair. There was a preferential "beauty contest" which had no effect other than campaign public relations, and another vote to select the 155 Democratic and 96 Republican convention delegates at stake.

It was not hard to spot the candidates most in jeopardy. The rhetoric of their campaigns identified them.

Reagan ended his strong campaign here during the weekend. Supporters in two of the four states where the former California governor already has been whipped by Ford accused the President of taking advantage of his official position for political purposes.

On the Democratic side, Sargent Shriver lashed out at frontrunner Carter, accusing him of using a Richard Nixon-type strategy. Wallace, peppered by questions about the credibility of his campaign after losing to Carter in Florida, complained of opposition "propaganda."

Reagan, his faltering campaign half a million dollars in debt, had all but written off Illinois. He hoped for some sort of comeback next Tuesday in North Carolina.

But two backers, Florida campaign manager Tommy Thomas and Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire, went public Monday with complaints about Ford's tactics in their states.

Thomson accused Ford of making "empty promises" in his campaign there and Thomas charged the President, by promising federal construction projects in Florida, had "bought the win ... with taxpayers' money."

"This naked power was translated into votes at the polls," Thomas said.

Shriver, who has finished far down the list in three of the four primaries so far, accused Carter of straddling issues and dodging responsibility for the words and deeds of his campaign supporters.

"It didn't catch up with Richard Nixon," Shriver said. "He made a career out of doing that in the United States."

Wallace was less direct, but he told reporters at the start of a final day of Illinois campaigning he was being plagued by "propaganda" about his political record and doubts being cast on his physical condition.

The Alabama governor said he never has been against anything but "big government" and, while "I am unable to jump over stone fences, I am in good general health."

Carter, more serene than his opponents, delivered what his aides called a major foreign policy speech to wind up his Illinois effort — but managed to get off one zinger at Henry Jackson, who is not competing here.

Carter, who said he favored detente but with harder bargaining with the Russians, said he believes Jackson is "much more bellicose, much more distrustful of the Soviet Union" than his public statements indicate.

Plot Triggers Security Call

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Police Chief Joseph McNamara says information about an alleged plot to kill President Ford and Ronald Reagan at the Republican national convention shows the need for federal funds for convention security.

McNamara said security planning for the convention Aug. 16-20 has been hampered because federal officials have failed to answer the city's request for $2.6 million. The money is being sought from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

First word of the alleged plot came in a Chicago Tribune story Monday. FBI Director Clarence Kelley said in Washington the "unsubstantiated information" had been received from an informant and had been turned over to the Secret Service.

The Tribune said Justice Department sources disclosed the conspiracy was in early planning stages, and "it reportedly was to be carried out by a 'commando-style assassination team' from the Bay area (of San Francisco)."

McNamara said Monday, "The training and the coordination of the various police efforts (for the convention) are being hindered because we do not have any knowledge about what funds will be available."

"There's no doubt that the delay (in funding) is impairing our ability to get ready for the convention.

"We simply can't go any further in getting ready for the convention until we learn how much will be available," he said.

McNamara said he was surprised that neither his office nor local FBI or Secret Service officials were notified of the alleged plot.

But, he added, "In one sense we were not surprised at the possibility of such plots because I mentioned some three to four months ago in a good planning effort for the convention, we anticipate all eventualities, including the possibility of terrorist activities.

Patty's Parents May Testify

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prosecution concluded its rebuttal testimony in Patricia Hearst's trial with a psychiatrist who described her as a frustrated and angry "rebel in search of a cause" who willingly embraced the hatred and violence of her kidnapers.

The 22-year-old newspaper heiress was swept up in the terrorism of the Symbionese Liberation Army and took part in the robbery of the Hibernia Bank of her own free will, Dr. Harry Kozol, 70, testified Monday.

But the Boston psychiatrist, who interviewed her on five occasions in her cell in January, said Miss Hearst's conversion was purely a matter of circumstance. He called it a "terrible, terrible misfortune" that in the midst of her search, she fell into the hands of the SLA.

"She was ripe for the plucking," Kozol said. "The cause found her."

Kozol and three minor witnesses wound up the prosecution's rebuttal case. Chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said he may call Miss Hearst's parents to the stand.

After final arguments and the judge's instructions, the case was expected to go to the jury Friday.

Kozol spent six hours on the stand Monday finishing his testimony, which had been interrupted when Miss Hearst came down with influenza Thursday, and then undergoing sharp cross-examination by Bailey.

Kozol said it was his opinion that in the weeks before the kidnaping she became "disenchanted" with her fiance, Steven Weed, with whom she shared an apartment, and felt trapped at the prospect of marrying him.

"This girl who was kidnaped was a bitter, angry, confused person — angry at authority, angry at power, angry at hypocrisy, the hypocrisy of Steven Weed who talked social reform and liberalism but was becoming more reactionary than anything she had heard at home or from anyone else," Kozol said.

"She was a girl with no place to go. She was a rebel in search of a cause or reaching for a cause, but the cause found her — a terrible, terrible misfortune that of all the causes she might have found she was captured and exposed to the hatred and violence of this group."

Bailey accused Kozol of being hostile to the Hearst family.

Kozol denied Bailey's charges he had told an assistant prior to his interviews of Miss Hearst that her parents were "dangerous and venal" and had made disparaging remarks about Mrs. Catherine Hearst, the defendant's mother.

He called Bailey's charges preposterous and, under later prosecution questioning, said he had never discussed the Hearst case with the assistant, who he said he fired last fall for unspecified reasons.

Bailey told a reporter the assistant, Dr. Nicholas Groth, would be called as a witness.

Bailey remarked to Kozol that Miss Hearst was a victim of the SLA "who is now sitting in this courtroom just as they wanted."

$2,175 Contributed to Ulster Scholarship Fund

STONE RIDGE—Members of the Board of Trustees at Ulster County Community College Monday night were informed that $2,175 has been contributed to date to the 1976 College Scholarship Fund.

Reporting on the contributions was Louis Berger, of Ellenville, chairman of the board's scholarship committee. The $2,175 is in addition to the interest-bearing scholarship trust accounts established in prior years by individuals in the community. Included in the $2,175 is $300 donated by members of the UCCC faculty.

Berger explained that letters seeking scholarship contributions are in the process of being sent to various friends of the college and local businesses that either supply the college or receive some benefit from college-age people. Last year, approximately $11,000 was awarded in the form of student scholarships. Berger expressed his hope that that amount could be increased realizing the number of students applying for assistance and the pervading economic conditions that are making it even more difficult for deserving students to complete their education.

Dr. Donald Katt, of the college staff, reported on a suggested procedure for the incorporation of a foundation at the college. The College Foundation would be similar to a private college's endowment fund. It would provide a means for the college to accept individual gifts and bequests that would be used for the advancement of the educational purposes and development of the college and for student financial assistance and scholarships. He explained that foundation constitutions and/or by-laws had been received from nine other community colleges which have foundations and reported these now are being studied by the development and fund-raising committee.

At the board meeting, the trustees reappointed Peggy DeStefano, an instructor of Criminal Justice at UCCC, as affirmative action officer and coordinator of Title IX at the college. She originally was appointed to the post in October, 1975.

In making the reappointment, the board of trustees reaffirmed the college's long-standing intent, and position that no person shall, on the basis of sex or race, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefit of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program of activity. This applied to employment, as well as admission of students.

The trustees also appointed James Bugonian, of Accord, as director of financial aids and John Frampton, of Ulster Park, as admissions adviser.

Trustees attending the meeting included Mrs. George F. Bushnells, Kingston, chairman; Dr. William J. Hageny, New Paltz, secretary; Louis Berger, Ellenville; Anne R. Donovan, Kingston; Raymond W. Garraghan, Kingston; S. Robert Kelder, Stone Ridge, Lynne Millson, High Falls and Richard P. Smith, Saugerties.

Economy Cuts in Rondout

STONE RIDGE—A change in elementary school district lines in the Rondout Valley Central School system is being recommended to the school board by Superintendent James O'Connell who said it is warranted by economics, appropriate building utilization and preferred reduction of the school bus fleet.

O'Connell will present his proposal to the school board Tuesday night at 8 at the high school library. It will mean dropping six elementary teachers from the payroll and will necessitate changing the district lines "a few blocks."

The plan would distribute the students more equitably through the district and enable class size to be slightly reduced. Some classes now have as little as 16 students while other pupils are housed in modular buildings which O'Connell would like to see phased out.

Expansion Is Approved

KINGSTON—The city's Zoning Board of Appeals has given its approval to a variance allowing the expansion of the Gov. Clinton Hotel from 72 apartments to 96.

The board met March 10 at city hall to act on eight petitions, approving six and tabling two.

A request by Joan B. Isgro to erect a sign at her 366 Albany Avenue real estate office larger than allowed was tabled for further study.

The board approved a petition establishing a Cumberland Farms food store at 268-280 Broadway but took no action on the firm's request to establish gas pumps on site.

Among the petitions approved were those from:

- Joseph Wolfeil to set up a knick knack shop at 6 North Street;
- John H. Deegan to establish a filling station at a carwash he plans to build next to the Uptown Parking Garage off Clinton Avenue extension;
- R. W. Garraghan for a gas station at the former Sears filling station at Kingston Plaza;
- Benedictine Hospital for an addition and an elevator at its Mary's Avenue complex.

County Economic Committee Must File Before June 30

KINGSTON—The Overall Economic Development Committee which is charged with compiling an economic program for Ulster County before June 30 has been appointed by Legislative Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8.

Savago tapped Richard Mathews of Kingston as chairman of the committee. Others include: Charles Lawson, Peter Ferante and Richard Rothman, representing the business community; James Melbert, Anthony Koenig, Joseph Carfizzi, James Thompson, Geddy Sveikauskas, Dr. Donald Katt, Joseph Benjamin and Arthur Mulligan, representing service groups. Also Legislators Charles Scala, R-Dist. 3, James Gilpatric, D-City, Vernon Frost, R-Dist. 6, and Wawarsing Supervisor Franklin Sahler representing government.

John Mulvin will represent labor, Margaret Randolph, minorities and consumers and Ethel Billups, representing the community's unemployed.

On the basis of unemployment data, the U.S. Department of Commerce has determinded that Ulster County statistically qualifies for designation as a redevelopment area under the Public Works and Economic Development Act. The function of the public works program is to help provide public works and development facilities needed to attract new industey and encourage business expansion. New industry means new jobs; for every 100 industrial jobs created or attracted, an additional 68 jobs are created, but without adequate facilities industry cannot be invited to locate in Ulster County, Savago said.

The Committee will be the main economic development contact for the Economic Development Authority and other relevant state and federal agencies.

The initial report must be sufficiently detailed to provide a good background picture of the area, for example—population, labor force, natural and man-made resources, and problems that retard growth. It must also outline economic development and county improvement goals, and provide a detailed description of the action programs that will be developed in order to get the country's economy moving again, improve county facilities and services and the most improtant area of the report will be to provide a basis for continued planning and development programs for our county in the years ahead.

Board Probe Asked

KINGSTON—After several months of "endeavoring to examine the records of Kingston School District in accordance with the rules of the Public Information Act," the We've Had It Taxpayer's Association (WHITA) has requested the New York State Commission of Investigation in New York City to "investigate."

WHITA specifically would like to know:

- What the expenditures were from the site acquisition fund over the past six years and what contracts and expenses there were for engineers and architects?
- What the details were leading to the forced resignation of former business manager, Ira Saw?
- Why the school board moved ahead with acquisition of real property without appraisal, soil tests or a feasibility study?
- What questionable arrangements there were with a sole real estate broker in their employ who collected fees from sellers of property to the school district?
- Why there have been "extraordinary deposits of very large amounts with the Rondout National Bank?
- What engineering fees were paid to the firm of the brother of the chairman of the school building committee?

WHITA said that its "efforts to obtain the information have been impossible since it was only allowed to examine the munutes of meetings." WHITA said it has requested that it be allowed to examine vouchers and that the request was denied by Superintendent of Schools Louis A. Salzmann.

Walter Donnaruma, president of WHITA is asking the commission to make an investigation in order that "the proper facts be revealed to the public."

Inaction Dismays Chapter

BOICEVILLE—The Catskill Mountains chapter of Trout Unlimited has expressed dismay over the cancellation of two hearings last week concerning water releases from the New York City owned reservoirs in the Catskill region.

Friday's hearing in Boiceville was cancelled Thursday afternoon after Assembly Majority Leader Albert H. Blumenthal was reinicted by a New York City grand jury for the alleged receipt of bribes Thursday. A hearing scheduled for Binghamton was also canceled.

Edward Ostapczuk, spokesman for Trout Unlimited, said he has been told by a spokesman for Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101) that the hearings will be rescheduled.

"Unfortunately," said Ostapczuk, "well over 100 people and organizations were contacted through the Catskill Waters coalition concerning the hearings and with such short notice of cancellation they all could not be notified."

The hearings were scheduled by the Assembly Sub-Committee on Wildlife Management.

New Approach To Italian

STONE RIDGE — A new approach to learning Italian is being offered by Ulster County Community College at the Stone Ridge campus.

"Italian — A Friendly Introduction" is a credit-free course in which natural learning methods are used. Music games and challenging conversational techniques help the student to acquire an immediate feeling of familiarity with the language.

Instructor Maria Salvatore feels that learning a new language should not emphasize dry text-book techniques but should be a creative, enjoyable experience. The course is offered on two levels.

Level One is for those who want to learn Italian from scratch. It is offered on Tuesday evenings beginning March 16.

Level Two is for those who have a little familiarity with the language but do not consider themselves advanced students. Level Two will include a review of Level One so that the entire class will start out from the same point. It is offered on Thursday evenings, beginning March 18.

For further information on either of these courses, interested persons should contact the Office for Continuing Education at the college 687-7621-Ext. 11 or call Ms. Salvatore 255-1769.

The Blood Bank Merger

Leave it to the Ulster County Blood Bank to make a tempest out of a teapot.

Instead of directly telling its more than 15,000 members that a merger with the Greater New York Blood Program is being mulled, directors of the Blood Bank sneaked a legal notice in the Daily Freeman about an "informational meeting," to be held on Friday, March 12.

Now really. What member of the Blood Bank would expect an informational meeting to be advertised in the legal section of a newspaper?

When the Freeman tried to publicize the story about the meeting the day before it was scheduled to take place, Henry Groopler, president of the Blood Bank, curtly remarked, "you'll have to wait until the meeting takes place."

We are not going to judge the pros and cons of a merger. However, the Freeman does take exception to the tactics of the Blood Bank's board of directors in trying to hold a public informational meeting with as few members as possible present.

By law, every member of the Blood Bank is a member of the corporation. Informational meetings are for members. Let's hope that the next time the Blood Bank directors decide to hold an informational session, they make sure the news gets out so that everyone has a chance to attend.

Private Land Use

Dear Editor:

Early last February a group of citizens from the beleaguered Adirondack region met with members of the legislature to protest against the actions and furtherance of the Adirondack Park Agency. Accompanying them was Mr. William Hunt of Sidney, N.Y., President of the Constitutional Rights Association. Meeting with Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey of Saugerties, N.Y., Mr. Hunt questioned the wisdom of reintroducing private land use control legislation for the Catskill region during this session of the legislature.

In his reply, Assemblyman Hinchey indicated that he has in no was been shown that the northern counties in the region do not accept his idea, and that in his view, land is the common property of all of the people. Therefore, he intends to reintroduce such legislation.

The concept of private ownership of land, or real estate, was fundamental to the original social philosophy of our country. The incentives that accompany it give rise to enterprise and effort that support prosperity. In modern America, as they were in Colonial America, land owners are a numerical minority, but they represent perhaps more than any other group the freedom of endeavor so fondly eulogized by our political and non-political leaders in this Bicentennial year.

There is a tendency for the present generation of liberally educated youth to fall easy prey to socialistic blandishments and to ignore and even destroy the initiatives that have created a society in which education is available to so many. Mr. Hinchey, along with his liberal mentors and colleagues may well succeed in bringing about further reduction in the self-motivation and pride so lacking in our present welfare-oriented society.

At a time when our economic ills are so great it is with sadness that a letter must be written in opposition to a legislative program that will erode the state's tax base, render still another segment of the population eligible for welfare and expand governmental supervision of the populace. I am a land owner in the Northern Catskills who does oppose Mr. Hinchey and I encourage others to enter into this discussion.

Yours truly,
Stanley Christman

Love, for People

Dear Editor:

May I direct this letter to all of us, especially those that remember the pangs of war; the glories of war, and to those that think war and sensationalized violence is a HOLLYWOOD movie.

The youth that refused to go into the Vietnam War, refused possibly because: As much as we Mr. Hassit, as much as we LOVE AMERICA — maybe, just maybe they LOVE PEOPLE that much. Let us remember that the majority of them got an early education into today's barbarized business world by watching and meeting the immigrants of so many different countries. And it makes US realize that all sides have something good to offer/we already know that everyone has some bad!!!

As the world industrialized and grew the wings of modern technology—ideologies, like some of our antiquated laws remain constant. As the industrial giants start doing business with one another — their respective ideologies were put aside. Our oil magnates have "no alternative" but to do business with the Marxist regime in Angola since they have holdings there.

One more thing, past present and HOLLYWOOD soldiers; technology today has the ability to purify sea water to irrigate our deserts. How about modernizing the backward countries— imagine the jobs and monies made on all sides. All these countries seem to have the monies for war!!! If we can build complete cities in several years — why aren't we doing it with countries?

Let us not be so quick to condemn our youth that believed in the America that they were taught about in grade school. The arms race is only because nations have lost sight of a better way and everyone seems to be going along with it.

Get up and fight the TV. Knock out the hypnotized mugger that is attacking the little old ladies.

I may be ashamed about some things in America, but I AM A STILL PROUD AMERICAN.

Respectfully yours,
PHILIP GURRIERI,
Kingston

P.S. True Authority is accomplished with common-sense/not guns and fear. No Hollywood battlefields on the streets of OUR AMERICA.

Buchwald for President

Dear Editor:

I've made up my mind. The only man that will really cut through the hypocricy, the idiocy, the waste and the phonies is Art Buchwald. He's my man for president. He's honest, intelligent, he's been around Washington for a long time and he's funny. No matter what happens — recession, detente, Mideast, oil, Henry Kissinger — Art'll make us laugh.

Our bumbling administration is laughable but we're laughing with tears in our eyes. Art, on the other hand, will really send the juices going. No country will ever intimidate us with Buchwald at the helm. I can just see him facing Fidel and telling him how funny it is that big Russia sends little Cubans to the slaughter.

Art would make his motto "laugh and the world laughs with you," and the oil moguls would be laughing so hard, they wouldn't be able to offer payola to foreign governments. So we'd have honest corporations again.

That loveable, bug-eyed, funny, wise, witty, perceptive man in the White House would give the whole country a charge. It's a suggestion worth pondering.

Sincerely,
Sylvia Day,
Woodstock

Dear Editor:

I believe that extra "lulu" payments, stipends or bonuses for legislators should be made unlawful and discontined this year. The salaries, expenses, travel pay, pension system and other fringe benefits are enough. If other areas of state government have to cut back, why not legislators?

A Dupe's Progress

Any student of his career would have to acknowledge that Representative Edward Koch of Manhattan is, whatever his ideological failings, a man of principle, and a first-class public servant.

The story begins with an organization called "U.S. Committee for Justice to Latin-American Political Prisoners." A connoisseur, running his tongue over such a name, would acknowledge the high probability that it is a Committee for Immunity for any Latin-American Leftist. The signers of the Committee's recent petition in behalf of Hugo Blanco, identified as "author, internationally known Peruvian peasant-union leader and refugee of the Chile coup," include such as Richard Fagan of Stanford, Richard Falk of Princeton, Congressman Michael Harrington, Tom Hayden of the SDS, and Sidney Lens. The only person missing from that list its Korpotkin, and then only because he is dead.

But Edward Koch, to whom the Committee wrote asking him to intercede with the State Department to get a visa for Hugo Blanco, reaches no premature conclusions. So the long correspondence began.

1. Dr. Benjamin Spock (the baby doctor) to Koch: "Dear Ed: I feel indignant about the State Department's denying admission to a speaker whom many want to hear, presumably because he will testify to the brutality of the repression in Chile, and to our government's complicity in bringing it into power. Kissinger has all the instincts of a thug, coated over with professional pomposity. Sincerely, Benjamin Spock, MD."

2. Koch to Kissinger. Why aren't you giving a visa to Hugo Blanco?

3. McCloskey of State to Koch. "Mr. Blanco, a Peruvian citizen presently residing in Sweden, is ineligible for a visa under section 212 (a) (23) (F) of the Immigration and Nationality Act. A decision as to whether to recommend a waiver of his ineligibility to the Attorney General is receiving active consideration."

4. Koch to Spock ("Dear Ben"). Says he has written to Kissinger. And gives his own rules on the matter. "I take the position that with the exception of terrorists who publicly advocate murder in pursuit of their goals, those who want to have a full and free discussion of ideas should not be impeded in coming to this country for that purpose."

5. Koch to McCloskey. Why isn't the State Department recommending a waiver to let Blanco come in?

6. McCloskey to Koch. Because Blanco's "previous terrorist activities" led the State Department to "conclude it would not be in the public interest to authorize his temporary admission into the United States."

7. Koch to McCloskey. Hey, what exactly do you mean by Blanco's "previous terrorist activities?"

8. McCloskey to Koch. We're not allowed to divulge classified information.

9. Koch to McCloskey. That's a hell of a note. You aren't allowed to divulge secret information, but you go ahead and act on it. "I urge you to reconsider this matter."

10. McCloskey to Koch. We can't give you much of the information we have on Blanco, which is his declaration that he took full and sole responsibility for the murders of three policemen which occurred during a raid he and his followers made on a police station in Peru during 1962. The Congressional Record of December 19, 1975, contains further information about his affiliation with the Fourth International and other groups, as well as quotations from his writings in which he has advocated the use of violence." Under the law, he simply cannot be given a visa.

11. Koch to Spock. Summarized McCloskey's letter. And adds: "In your original letter to me your reference to Henry Kissinger was 'has all the instincts of a thug, coated over with professional promposity.' My question is how would you now characterize Hugo Blanco?"

12. Spock to Koch. "Thank you for looking into the Hugo Blanco issue. I have no idea where the truth lies. The plea for his entry came from a responsible organization."

13. WFB to Koch. Nice going.

14. WFB to Spock. "Dear Ben: You are the incarnation of the dupe. And since you talk a lot of the time about justice, you will presumably be sending an apology to Henry Kissinger. I'd appreciate receiving a copy. Best. Bill."

Congressmen Rewards

WASHINGTON— On Capitol Hill, some legislators seem to make it their business to see that the banks are not deprived. Those who go along with the banking lobby often are rewarded with campaign contributions.

Already the commercial bankers' political arm, which goes by the acronym BANKPAC, has quietly passed out donations to almost half of the members of the House Banking Committee.

The contributions coincided with a lobbying drive by the commercial bankers against reforms, which would allow mutual savings banks and credit unions to expand their services. This would make them more competitive.

To prevent this, BANKPAC has handed out thousands of dollars in campaign contributions to key Senators and Congressmen. The recipients include at least 17 members of the House Banking Committee which is considering the banking reforms. Among them are:

Representatives Richard Kelly, R-Fla., $1,500; Albert Johnson, R-Pa., $1,200; Jerry Patterson, D-Calif., $1,150; Les AuCoin, D-Ore., $1,000; Willis Gradison, D-Ohio, $1,000; William Moorhead, D-Pa., $600; Stephen Neal, D-N.C., $600; Carroll Hubbard, D-Ky., $500; Butler Derrick, D-S.C., $300.

Also John Conlan, R-Ariz., $300; Philip Hayes, D-Ind., $200; Gladys Spellman, D-Md., $150; David Evans, D-Ind., $100; Jim Blanchard, D-Mich., $100; John LaFalce, D-N.Y., $100 and Mark Hannaford, D-Calif., $200.

Another $100 was given to Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., who just gave up his seat on the Banking Committee. Rep. Joseph Minish, D-N.J., has also been singled out for a donation, but the money hasn't yet been delivered.

Apparently, the conflict didn't bother the committee members. BANKPAC chief William Glassford acknowledged to our associate Bob Owens: "I don't know anybody who has turned us down."

The House Banking Committee is supposed to protect the public, but many committee members seem to work for the bankers.

MISSING AMERICANS — At least nine American citizens are still missing in Cyprus. The State Department has admitted privately that they are probably casualties of the bloody 1974 Turkish invasion.

There is suspicion that at least one 17-year-old American youth died in a Turkish prison after he was kidnaped from his home in Cyprus. The Turkish-Cypriot soldiers allegedly ignored the U.S. passports which the family produced.

A private State Department report to Rep. Don Riegle, D-Mich., a member of the powerful House International Relations Committee, concedes there are "nine American citizens still unaccounted for out of 24 originally listed as missing.

"Our embassies in Ankara and Nicosia have given top priority to these remaining cases, but, unfortunately, we have not been successful in clarifying their status."

In its quest for information, the State Department spoke with a Turkish-Cypriot leader, Rauf Denktash, who told them bluntly the nine are "probably dead." State advised Riegle "there is a strong presumption that this is true."

Greek sources suggest that the Americans were killed by the Turks. A Turkish Embassy spokesman says he, too, thinks the nine are dead. But he insisted they were killed either accidentally or fighting for the Cypriot Greeks.

This has been challenged by Greek journalist Elias Demetracopoulos who has been conducting an investigation into the disappearance of 17-year-old Andreas Kassapis. A family passport and birth certificate establish that the youth is an American citizen, born in Detroit.

His ailing Cypriot father, in need of a warmer climate, returned with his family to Cyprus in 1967. When the Turks invaded Cyprus, according to a signed statement by the father, the family tried to flee to the U.S. Embassy in Nicosia 12 miles away. But they were blocked by Turkish tanks and turned back.

They displayed the American flag, which most Turkish troops respected. But on Aug. 20, 1974, the family was arrested by troops who ignored the family passports, ripped down the flag and punched the father in the stomach.

Young Andreas and his sister's fiance were hauled away on a tractor. That's the last the family saw of them. The elder Kassapis was told by Turkish Cypriots that the two "were taken away by Turkish military forces."

As confirmation, homebound Cypriot Greeks reported that the fiance had shouted to them from a prison in Turkey, asking them to contact the father of Andreas Kassapis. After inquiries from the U.S. embassy, Andreas' name was listed by the Turks as one of he students to be freed. But he was not among the students who were released.

The State Department is still pressing, but the Turkish spokesman told us with finality: "We have no Americans in Turkey or Cyprus."

ILLINOIS ODDS — Political oddsmaker Jimmy the Greek Snyder, who correctly picked President Ford as a 2-to-1 favorite to defeat Ronald Reagan in the Florida primary, has now made the President an overwhelming 20-to-1 favorite in today's Illinois primary.

On the Democratic side, Jimmy mistakenly made George Wallace a slight favorite over Jimmy Carter in Florida. Nevertheless, the Greek again rates Wallace as a 2-to-1 favorite to get more Illinois delegates than Carter. Running ahead of both of them in the delegate quest, as Jimmy figures the odds, will be Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill.

This has nothing to do with the presidential preference contest, a meaningless popularity poll, which Jimmy expects Wallace to win with a slight edge over Carter.

Ford vs. Premier Castro

WASHINGTON — Deepening penetration into black Africa by Fidel Castro's Cuba with Moscow's diplomatic and, if needed, military support is now seen at high levels of the Ford administration as the biggest Communist threat anywhere to tip the world power balance.

Intense briefings of President Ford on Cuba's sensational success in Angola and its implications have just been completed. Consequently the President is now considering a major effort — possibly following a foreign policy speech — to make a willfully obtuse Congress understand Castro's desperately dangerous gamble which, so far, has paid flittering dividends.

The Soviet-Cuban axis so successful in Angola seemed strengthened during the recent Soviet Communist party congress. As part of that strengthening, Prime Minister Castro quietly took to Moscow Osmani Cienfuegos, top African expert in the Cuban Communist party.

While there, they conferred secretly with black nationalist leaders of the South West Africa Peoples' Organization, which desperately wants Cuban help in its drive for independence of Namibia from South Africa.

Intimate collaboration between Havana and Moscow now evident in Cuba's long-range commitment to Africa has ended Castro's earlier worry that his 12,000 to 14,000 troops in southern Africa might be stranded at the end of an extremely vulnerable supply line stretching across the Atlantic Ocean.

Indeed, Moscow sent Cuba two IL-62 troop-carriers in mid-January to replace shorter-range Britannia and IL-18 transports. More significantly, the Russians have recently used the high-flying TU-95 over the South Atlantic to study U.S. fleet movements in water that would be critical if the U.S. should decide on severe retaliation against Cuba.

One possible retaliation would be a U.S. naval blockade of Cuba, known to be under consideration. But even if congressional apprehensions were overcome, the difficulty of extending a blockade to the air — essential for success — would jeopardize the whole enterprise. Further, some administration experts fear the Russians would contest an American blockade, as they could not in the Cuban missile crisis 13 years ago when U.S. power was supreme.

In such a confrontation, the U.S. would immediately be placed in a vicious political context — "in lockstep with the white supremacists" of South Africa and Rhodesia, in the apt phrase of one policymaker.

No matter how distorted and inaccurate that context would be, high officials here doubt that U.S. allies would back Washington's effort to break Castro interference in the cause of black nationalism against white-minority governments. Indeed, Congress might prove just as balky.

The Soviet high-altitude reconnaissance over the South Atlantic, at the very least, is an indication Moscow feels the same way and might quickly intervene against any U.S. blockade of Cuba.

With his military intervention in Angola victorious and the Soviet-backed Popular Movement in control there, Castro's future in Africa seems assured — and expanding, with two new Cuban tasks.

Task No. 1, as seen by experts here: To consolidate the new Angolan government by lending expert aid to build a centralized Communist-style party, getting the economy working again (particularly the coffee plantations and the ports) and teaching the Popular Movement basic elements of internal security, mass communications and similar techniques of control.

Task No. 2: To lend Cuban armed power to other nationalist parties, almost certainly starting with guerrilla units based in Mozambique for operations across the border in Rhodesia.

Cuban troops, their strength unknown here, have recently been seen in Mozambique, apparently getting there by ship around the Cape of Good Hope. Bases of operation must be established behind the border with supplies, weapons, other essentials from major guerrilla operations.

Other targets for Castro's ambitious Africa corps are Namibia, (formerly South West Africa) and French Somalia soon to be independent. Officials here say Cuban troops may be used if Somalia, home of the Soviet naval base of Berbera, decides to invade the former French colony.

This predicatable future course of Cuban intervention in black Africa has led Mr. Ford to the brink of a major new U.S. policy — despite last fall's congressional veto of any U.S. help which doomed anti-Soviet factions in Angola.

Some of the President's political advisers feel Congress is changing, mainly because voters back home have been aroused by the marriage of Soviet weapons and Cuban troops 8,000 miles from Moscow. Whether Congress is coming to its senses or not, President Ford is determined to end Castro's free run in Africa, whatever the opinion of his foreign allies, the Third World, American black leaders or anybody else.

Homeownership, and Its Effects on the Taxes You Pay

(Eighth of 10 columns)

Among the most important aspects of owning a home is the extent to which the expenses involved in home ownership affect what you owe in taxes. In 1975, the IRS issued both favorable and unfavorable rulings in this area.

NEWLYWEDS: The IRS gave a tax break to you, if you both own homes, sell them and buy a new one when you marry. Gain on sale of a principal residence is generally deferred, if at least an equivalent amount is used to buy a new principal residence. In 1975, the IRS said that if a newly married couple each sold a principal residence and each invested more than the sales price in buying one new residence in which they took title jointly, their gains on the sales of the two former principal residences were not currently taxable . . . a nice wedding gift.

BARGAIN RENTS: If you own a house and intentionally rent it to a relative or friend at less than fair rental, with the result that your house expenses exceed the rental income, the IRS says you can't deduct all the expenses you otherwise might be able to deduct. Because you are not renting the house to make a profit, you are allowed to deduct only the following expenses:

(1) Interest and taxes, whether or not they total more or less than the bargain rental income. Say you rent the house to your relative for a bargain $3,000 a year. Your taxes and interest come to $2,000; you can deduct the $2,000. If your taxes and interest came to $3,500, you could deduct $3,500.

(2) If your taxes and interest total less than your gross rent, you can deduct your operating expenses (other than depreciation which affects the basis of property) up to an amount by which your bargain rent income exceeds the total of your interest and taxes. Say the bargain rent is $3,000 a year, and your interest and taxes are $2,000. If your operating expenses for light, heat, etc., came to $1,200 for the year, you can deduct only $1,000 of that $1,200 amount ($3,000-$2,000).

If your operating expenses for light, heat, etc., came to $1,200 for the year, you can deduct only $1,000 of that $1,200 amount ($3,000-$2,000).

(3) Allowable depreciation on your house can then be deducted to the extent that the rental income exceeds both your interest and taxes and operating expenses.

All these allowable deductions can be taken only as itemized deductions. If you use the standard deduction, you will forfeit these deductions.

PAYMENTS FROM HUD: If you received mortgage assistance payments from HUD under Section 235 of the National Housing Act, you don't have to include the payments in income. The IRS officially confirmed this by a formal ruling in 1975. But the IRS proposes to eliminate part of the double tax break now available to those of you who benefit from these payments.

Under current rules, you, the homeowner, exclude the payments from your income, but you also claim itemized deductions to the extent the payments are applied to interest and taxes on your home. The Treasury has proposed regulations that, beginning with 1975, your interest deduction on your mortgage would not be allowed to the extent of the assistance payments. But no portion of the assistance payments would reduce other deductions, connected with the house, such as taxes.

These proposed regulations are not yet final, so the double break is still technically available to you on your 1975 return. But if the proposals are finally adopted without change, they will be effective for 1975.

SPECIAL TAX TIP FOR '75 by the Research Institute of America: If you take the standard deduction and you also are a member of an investment club, you may lose out under a 1975 IRS ruling. Your investment club may have expenses for advice, bank charges, accounting, etc. The IRS says that your club can't just subtract these costs from income and let each of the members report their share of net income. Instead, the club must show each member's share of both income and of the club's costs. If you itemize your deductions, you also can deduct your share of the club's expenses. If you take the standard deduction, you must include your share of the club's income, but you get no deduction for your share of the club's expenses.

Centralized Planning Debate

Author's Note: A study indicates that economic planning — in business as well as government — is more likely to aggravate economic problems than to solve them

WASHINGTON (KFS) — President Ford is more optimistic about the economy than most of us, who reel almost daily from another bus fare increase, another property tax increase, another parking fee increase, another increase in the cost of shoes.

The President talks to fancy economists and looks at statistics, but we pay the bills.

That's why it will take more than presidential rhetoric in an election year to calm public fears of continued high unemployment and inflation, coupled with slow growth and a decline in efficient services.

Six-Year Plan?

What will it take, short of a speedy miracle? Some prestigious economic experts believe the answer may be a good six-year centralized economic plan, such as many other nations have tried.

The Senate Government Operations Committee will hold hearings later this spring on a measure which would establish a national planning agency for the American economy to draft a balanced growth plan, aimed at solving long-term economic problems. The bill was introduced a year ago by Sens. Hubert Humphrey D-Minn., and Jacob Javits R-N.Y., and has provoked widespread controversy.

The idea behind the bill is that the development of full employment and price stability can no longer be left to chance but must be rationally managed. United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, in support of the bill, observed, "Experience has taught us that the unseen magic of the so-called free market does not work."

The trouble, however, is that Big Government planning has fallen into public disfavor. Public sentiment leans toward less government interference in private business affairs rather than more. Large-scale government programs to right social imbalances have come under increasing criticism for waste, misuse and ineffectiveness.

Aggravation

And now along comes a thoughtful study by the Institute for Contemporary Studies of past experiences with economic planning both in this country and abroad. The Institute's report concludes that economic planning simply doesn't work. Furthermore, it charges that in the great majority of cases it has actually aggravated economic problems.

Business planning is often held up as the model for similar efforts to organize economic thinking in government. But the study contends that in fact business planning is just as chaotic as has been centralized economic planning in such countries as France and Great Britain.

Fifteen economists and political scientists contributed to the report. Indiana University political scientist Vincent Ostrom argues that economic planning does not work because a planner cannot begin to know enough in a complex society to plan successfully. It takes so long to gather information from a wide variety of sources that the earlier data is outdated before the later data is even collected.

Pressure

A. Lawrence Chickering, director of the institute, contends that even if the proper information were available, the chances are overwhelming that the planner either would not or could not use that information in making his plans. Even if a planner wants to make decisions apart from his own personal ambitions — which is not always the case — competing interests, constituencies and pressure groups will not permit him to do so, Chickering says.

Politics, in other words, invades the field of official planning just like everywhere else.

Chickering is not talking about awful things like bribes, only the normal desire to please those who in turn can be helpful. For instance, some Amtrak schedules are fitted to serve the location of Interstate Commerce Commission members and of congressmen on key transportation committees without substantial regard for population densities. Montana and West Virginia are lavishly served by Amtrak despite limited service needs, whereas the city of Cleveland, which had the bad luck to have no interested politicians representing it, got no service at all under the original Amtrak plan.

The institute's report makes a tough case against the concept of centralized economic planning. But it leaves us with a dilemma. No one has come up with a better alternative.

If the map of Texas was folded upward and over with its northernmost line as a hinge, Brownsville would be 120 miles from Canada; if eastward, El Paso would be 40 miles off the Florida coast; if westward, Orange would lie 215 miles beyond Lower California in the Pacific Ocean.

'Scoop' Had State Sewn Up Until Last Week's Events

NEW YORK (UPI) — Before Thursday, Henry Jackson stood to win the majority of New York's 274 delegates to the democratic national convention. Then Morris Udall came to town and the state passed a new primary law.

The opening of the Udall campaign in New York City and the action of the state legislature 150 miles north in Albany were coincidental, but they combined to make the April 6 New York primary a whole new ballgame.

The new law puts the names of the Democratic presidential contenders on the primary ballot for the first time.

Before, the New York primary ballot was a hopeless mess — 20 or more delegates on the ballot in each of 39 congressional districts, and voters not knowing which candidate he was voting for once he got in the booth. Jackson's strong local organizations would have given him an immense advantage under those circumstances.

At about the same time the new law was signed by Gov. Hugh Carey, Udall arrived to try to pick up the pieces of Sen. Birch Bayh's abandoned liberal campaign and put together the coalition that gave most of the state's delegates to Sen. George McGovern in 1972.

What it means is that New York now becomes the first real showdown by the three Democratic frontrunners — Jackson, Udall and Jimmy Carter.

Carter, as has proven to be the case everywhere else, has been a constant factor in New Yorkc State, waiting patiently for his share of the action.

New York is the second largest delegation to the July convention in New York City, and has long been a major target of the Jackson forces. The Washington senator had targeted about $1 million for his New York campaign — more than twice the amount that Carter and Udall were each planning on spending here.

Jackson has considered New York the big northeast industrial star in his campaign. He has said he may win it by a "landslide." Conventional wisdom would not have disputed that assessment until the new developments of this week.

But Udall now stands an unexpected chance of picking up a big chunk of delegates. Carter remains the unknown factor, but also should benefit from the changed rules.

Udall originally hadn't planned much of a campaign in the state —the liberals lined up early with Bayh. Now Udall is scrambling to assemble the kind of liberal coalition that has worked for Democrats here at least since Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Jackson has already won over most of one of the main factions in the Democratic race —the Jewish vote. He also has a big share on the labor vote— winning endorsement from many of the more conservative AFL-CIO locals.

But Udall scored a big gain by picking up the endorsement of Local 37 on the American Federation of State, Country, Municipal Employees — the big liberal union with 100,000 members in the state.

"I think clearly Senator Jackson has to be favored to win," Udall says. "But we expect to come in a strong second."

Foreign Commentary

'Guest Workers'

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — The figures—all 18 of them — depicting a Turkish foreign workers's family wore broad grins beneath their fezzes. Waving welfare checks, they sung "My Paradise is on the Rhine."

This satirical float in Cologne's annual carnival parade reflected the emotional debate over the 2.1 million foreign workers in West Germany.

The "guest workers," as they are called, came from Turkey, Yugoslavia, Greece, Italy, Spain, Morocco and other nations with low standards of living when labor was needed to keep the Federal Republic's economic miracle booming.

They have always posed a problem of communication and assimilation.

Slums and ghettos have sprung up.

In some schools in working class districts, 25 per cent of the children are foreigners and special classes have been established to teach them German.

But now they are a bigger problem.

West Germany has 1.2 million unemployed—the highest figure since the great pre-war depression that helped bring the Nazis to power. As a result, there are signs that the foreign workers are becoming unwelcome guests.

They already have become an issue in the April 4 election in the state of Baden-Wuerttemberg, and they could become one in October's nationwide parliamentary election.

The number of foreign workers has been cut 500,000 in the last two years but must be reduced still more, politicans say, to provide jobs for young Germans.

"In the future the German economy cannot afford so many guest workers," said Hans Filbinger, the Christian Democrat governor of Baden-Wuerttemberg.

He said his state would ask the labor ministers in all 11 West German states to work out a common program to get foreign workers to volunteer to go home.

"By 1985, we will need in the republic well over one million more open jobs," he said. "If we don't have them, young people born in the years of a high birth rate are going to be threatened by mass unemployment."

Ventilator Drive Continues

KINGSTON — A program launched by St. John's Episcopal Church Women to raise funds for an Infant Ventilator has been meeting with success, according to information received from Mrs. James A. Barba.

Plans call for the ventilator to be housed in Kingston Hospital but will be used by both hospitals here. It is a specialized piece of equipment used on premature babies with Hyaline membrane disease and for full term infants for mucous aspiration, congenital defects and to prevent brain damage.

The closest ventilator used by area hospitals now is in Albany.

Mrs. Robert B. Murray, president of the church group, is asking for continued support of the project. Contributions may be mailed to: Infant Ventilator Fund, c/o Robert Murray, treasurer, Bankers Trust Company, 301 Wall Street, Kingston, 12401.

Mrs. Robert Murray charts funds at half-way mark.

Workshop Planned

NEW PALTZ—Mrs. Alyce F. Fisher and Mrs. Betty Moran of Duaine School, New Paltz, will conduct a full day workshop for teachers of children with learning disabilities on Friday, March 19 in Rochester. The workshop will take place at the Third Annual State Conference of the Orton Society, a national organization committed to the study, treatment and prevention of reading, learning and language disabilities.

St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands, is the largest cruise ship port in the world.

Students May Be Exposed to Danger

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Students at some high school, college and university laboratories may be exposed to cancer-causing chemicals, according to a recent warning from the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

OSHA Regional Administrator Alfred Barden said the warning is based on informal results of a survey in Kentucky showing that several chemicals, worker exposure to which is controlled by OSHA job health standards, may be in use in school laboratories without proper precautions.

Regional Administrators are alerting state officials in their regions to the possible harmful exposure of students, faculty members and school employees to the toxic chemicals. In the notice, OSHA recommends that all schools be asked to inventory chemical laboratory stock to uncover any cancer-causing chemicals present, assure they are properly labeled and that safe handling procedures are followed, or that unneeded chemicals are properly disposed of.

Although OSHA job health standards controlling worker exposure to the chemicals involved do not apply to students in classrooms, OSHA recommended the procedures set in those standards be followed to assure student as well as faculty and school employee safety and health. Single copies of those standards can be obtained from the OSHA regional office located at 1515 Broadway, Room 3445, New York, N.Y. 10036.

The chemicals involved are: 4-Nitrobiphenyl; alpha-Naphthylamine; beta-Naphthylamine; Methyl chloromethyl ether; 3.3' - Dichlorobenzidine; Benzidine; 4-Aminodiphenyl; Ethyleneimine; beta-Propiolactone; 2-Acethlaminofluorene; 4-Dimethylaminoazobenzene; N-Nitrosodimethylamine; and vinyl chloride.

Revue Continues

KINGSTON—The 4-H Dress Revue, which began on March 11 at the J. Clifford Miller School, will conclude its fashion shows on Thursday, March 18 at 6:30 p.m. in the Rondout Valley High School. More than 400 members have been participating in one of the four dress revues. Members range in age from eight to 19. This year's 4-H theme is '76 Spirit of Tomorrow Will Prevail. The March 18 revue is open to the public.

The official motto of Texas, derived from its name's earliest Indian meaning, is "friendship."

Kite Enthusiasts Issued Warning

KINGSTON—Kite enthusiasts and tree climbers should take care to avoid electric lines, according to R.L. Lynch, Fleischmanns manager for New York State Electric & Gas Corp.

With kite-flying weather just around the corner, NYSE&G is distributing posters to elementary schools depicting a cartoon version of Benjamin Fraklin fying a kite.

The poster includes Franklin's "Declaration of Safety":

I will fly my kite when there is no rain.

I will fly my kite far from trees or electric lines.

I will use dry string—not wire or metal cord.

I will call the Electric Company if my kite gets caught on electric lines—never try to rescue it myself.

The posters are part of the utility's continuing effort to inform children of the possible hazards associated with kite-flying.

"Ideally, kite-flying should be done in large open fields under adult supervision," Lynch said. "We ask teachers and parents to remind youngsters of the importance of safety and to explain the rules of safe kite-flying."

NYSE&G is also distributing warning posters urging children to never climb near electric lines. Lynch said climbing electric poles, towers or trees with branches growing near overhead electric wires is very dangerous.

"Unsuspecting youngsters could be injured making contact with electric wires running through overgrown tree branches," he said. Parents were also asked to examine trees in their yard, and if electric wires are near, to instruct youngsters to stay away from them.

Lynch extended his warning to adults who are cutting or trimming trees near electric wires.

Special Features For Fashion Show

KINGSTON — Many innovations and special features are being planned by Fashiontime Models for their next luncheon-fashion show which will take place at the new Colonade Restaurant in Governor Clinton Hotel on Friday, March 19 between 12:30 and 1:45 p.m.

Ms. Maxine Goodheim and Ms. Bonnie Perlmutter, coordinators and agents for professional models in this area, have announced a first in this area for fashion shows; a male model will be joining the other professional models. New and exciting fashions for men as well as women will be featured by Wallace's Department Store, Ulster Shopping Plaza. Clothes for the slim-trim as well as the mature figure will be shown.

George Svirsky, co-manager with Ed Kreines of the Colonade Restaurant, is planning a special luncheon for all who attend.

RR Concert Is Benefit

MIDDLETOWN—A benefit Rock and Roll Concert to raise money for the Memorial Fund for the late New York State Trooper William V. McDonagh will be held Friday night, March 19, at Middletown High School.

The concert will star "Jay and the Americans" and the "Belmonts." Both groups were major stars of rock and roll music in the 1950s and 1960s. At the present time the groups are among the most popular nostalgic groups touring the country.

Tickets may be had by writing Rock and Roll Benefit, Box One, Florida, N.Y.

Grahamsville Gallop

GRAHAMSVILLE—The fourth annual "Grahamsville Gallop" will be held Saturday, April 3 at the Tri-Valley Central School. A series of races for all ages — from six and under to 40 and over — the event will feature trophies for the first three places, a ribbon and certificate for every contestant who finsishes and special races and awards for women and girls. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and the first race is scheduled for 9:55 a.m. Entry blanks may be obtained from: Norton Hyman, Tri-Valley Central School, Grahamsville, N.Y. 12740.

The Rites of Spring at Coleman

KINGSTON — To celebrate the first day of spring, the John A. Coleman Parents Association is sponsoring an Italian style dinner to be held at the high school on Hurley Avenue, Sunday, March 21.

The menu includes baked Ziti, meatballs, salad, Italian bread, homemade dessert and coffee. Adults will be served wine with their dinner, and fruit punch will be offered to the children. Special rates will be available for children under 12 years of age.

Mrs. Betty Augustine and Mrs. Adele Tutter, co-chairpersons, have announced that the dinner will be served continuously from 3 to 7 p.m. Students from Coleman High School will serve as waiters and waitresses under the direction of Mrs. John Weber.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sweeney, president couple of the Association, will be the hosts, assisted by Mrs. Robert Gardinier.

Other committee members include: John Weber, Robert Gardinier, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Maneen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charlesworth; Mrs. John Grube, Mrs. Mary Spano, kitchen; Mr. and Mrs. William Dalton, tickets; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hastings, publicity.

The public is invited. Tickets will be sold at the door. Although reservations are not necessary, they will be accepted by Mrs. Augustine, 74 Harding Avenue, or Mrs. Tutter, 155 Pearl Street.

Panorama Poster

Mrs. Regina Swarthout, third grade teacher at Brigham School working with members of her class on panorama poster for the Kingston Schools Bicentennial Celebration scheduled for April 6 and 7 in the Kingston Armory. The artwork will include figurines of the Keystone Cops.

Recital Is Set Today

NEW PALTZ — Today the Classical Concert Committee of the Student Government Association will present a recital by three members of the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center. The performance will be given in McKenna Theatre.

Performing will be Paula Robison, flute; Richard Goode, piano; and Scott Nikrenz, viola, in a program featuring works of C.P.E. Bach, Roussell, Hindemith and Beethoven. Each of the musicians is an internationally known concert artist.

Tickets are available at the Student Union Building. General admission is $1.50 and tickets for students with ID and for senior citizens is 75 cents.

New Library Service Set

SAUGERTIES—The Saugerties Public Library is preparing a new service for those unable to come to the library because of age or physical handicap.

Volunteers will make regular calls to distribute and collect books and other materials for the aged, handicapped, or those unable to negotiate the front steps of the library.

Library membership is free to all residents of the Saugerties Central School District. Library hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, 1-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7-9 p.m.

To inquire about the shut-in program, contact Mrs. Phyllis Cade, the librarian, or Mrs. Everett Vail, chairman of volunteers.

Watercolors Exhibit

KERHONKSON—Watercolors by Cynthia Waage are now on exhibit in the Kerhonkson Branch of Kingston Trust Company. Ms. Waage has resided in the Rondout Valley for the past three years. The exhibit will be held through March 31 and is open to the public.

Restoration Move's Objects

Cold Water on Preserving Lighthouse

By Dorothy A. Narel

SAUGERTIES — After a lapse of several years, a new movement is underway to save the historic Saugerties Lighthouse from extinction and possibly turn it into a nautical museum. But Ruth Glunt, author of "Lighthouses and Legends of the Hudson," calls it a "losing battle."

The 84-year-old woman who has made a thorough study of lighthouses down through the years and fought to have the Saugerties Lighthouse restored says:

"I am out of it. It's too late. The lighthouse is a dead issue as far as I'm concerned."

A new group of people will be meeting Wednesday, March 31 at 8 p.m. in the Sawyer Savings Bank to see if sufficient interest can be aroused to get a lighthouse restoration plan going. As one interested party put it: "It can't be done overnight but it's worth a try even if it takes 10 years."

It is estimated no less than $200,000 would be needed to launch the project and there are those in Saugerties who feel this would be in direct competition to the Grist Mill restoration plans. The Grist Mill committee is in the process of raising $45,000.

Mrs. Glunt knows and loves the Hudson River. Her husband, Chester, was a civilian employee with the U.S. Coast Guard for 28 years and in charge of the Light Attendant Station at Turkey Point, Saugerties. She told the Freeman the lighthouse in Saugerties was constructed in 1869 and when it closed in 1954 a separate atuomatic light was built next to it. She also stated there were 11 lighthouses on the river once and only five remain.

"Restoration could have been achieved in 1954 but not today. It's too expensive. The floor in the lighthouse has fallen through to the basement and as far as the Coast Guard is concerned, they simply don't care. They don't have any historical sense," says Mrs. Glunt.

"The lighthouse was destined to be demolished like so many others. The Coast Guard went in there and didn't disconnect pipes — they ripped them out," she said.

Mrs. Glunt also stated that during Mayor Ziegler's time the lighthouse could have become a Youth Hostel but because hostels were considered commercial, the project was turned down. She stated:

"The Federal government said we could have the lighthouse but it had to be maintained, insured and put to use — but not commercial use. And, of course, you never own the place outright because the government must have access to their lights in order to maintain them."

It also appears that the Saugerties Lighthouse could have been a residence for members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary and a possible laboratory for testing water pollution. Neither of these ideas ever got off the drawing board.

In Mrs. Glunt's opinion, the Saugerties Lighthouse now needs new plumbing, sewage, heat, lights, complete interior decorating to include living quarters for a caretaker. There is no access to the lighthouse except by boat, another important consideration if the lighthouse ever becomes a museum open to the public.

"This was all brought out years ago but when the residents found out it would cost tax dollars, they backed out," the authoress says.

The Saugerties author, who holds memberships in the New York Folklore Society, Ulster County Historical Society, Hudson River Conservation Society and the Saugerties Chapter of the DAR, claims the official status of the Saugerties Lighthouse is that it belongs to the Village of Saugerties. Also, that the Village has an option to take it over for $1 per year.

There seems to be a wide difference of opinion in this area. The March 31 meeting should somewhat clear the air. It will be a time of looking back to those days of lighthouses, sloops, ice cutting night boats, the Day Line and commercial fish — days of the past on the Hudson River.

The Glunts still live with these memories in their house on the Hudson — with a view of the old Saugerties Lighthouse.

Represent Ulster at State Conference

KINGSTON—Four delegates represented the Ulster County Women's Republican Club at GOP State Winter Conference in Albany recently.

They were: Emma Aprea, council member, New York State Federation; Kay Rapp, president, Ulster County GOP Women's Club; June Davidson, vice chairman, Ulster County GOP Committee; and Mary Wynn Eggleston, membership chairman for the club.

Conference theme was "Winning Spirit of '76" and emphasis was placed on total victory, nationally and statewide. More than 500 delegates, alternates and guests attended.

Special guest speakers were Mrs. Ann Blackham, second vice president of the National Federation of Republican Women and Ms. Pat Goldman of Washington, D.C., executive director of the Republican Women's Task Force. Special guests of honor were Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson, Assembly Minority Leader Perry Duryea and New York State Republican Chairman Richard M. Rosenbaum.

Golden Oldies Night

SAUGERTIES—Four hours of continuous music featuring the sounds of the 1950's and 1960's is being planned for Saturday, April 3 in the VFW Hall beginning at 9 p.m. Planned by the Saugerties Jayncees, price of admission will include entertainment, hot buffet and beer.

Disc jockey Mike Eguia of Newburgh will be the MC.

The evening will feature also awards for the "guy and gal in the grooviest get-up of the 50's and 60's." Dance contests will be held throughout the evening.

Reservations may be made with Joanne Cobey and Donna Heidenreich or any member of the Jayncees.

'It's Enough to Make You Sick'

The Year the Bottom Dropped Out or Dumping the TV Trash Can

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — In the annals of television history, whenever anybody writes such a study, the season of '75-'76 will probably be called The Year The Bottom Dropped Out.

The TV season we've all just lived through was a disaster, a debacle, a dog. More than a dozen of the new entries were cancelled and even those that made it were mostly hanging on by the skin of their ratings. Hits were rarer than pits in seedless grapes.

The big question is: did the networks learn anything from last season's expensive tragedy? Will next season show the fruits of their experience, and be more inventive, more imaginative, less copycat?

The answer seems to be a resounding NO!

"The networks haven't learned a thing," says Columbia Pictures' talent coordinator, Renee Valente. "They're doing the same old thing. Looking at the pilots, it's enough to make you sick."

She says that we can expect '76-'77 to be pretty much the same sort of season we've just barely survived. The plans, apparently, are for the identical mix of cops and lawyers, doctors and situation comedies. Nothing has changed.

"The pilots in the works," says Twentieth Century-Fox's TV head, Sy Salkowitz, "look to be pretty much the same as they were last year."

"I doubt TV will learn anything from he debacle of this past season," says producer Bob Banner.

The question then arises — why don't the networks change and try to improve their product? The answer seems to be that they can't. They're locked in to the current format by tradition, by habit, by unimaginative programmers.

"The logistics of TV have become so complex," says Banner, "that it is hard to imagine any drastic changes."

He says that TV is still governed by what he calls "the aspirin policy" — "they figure that if one aspirin makes a headache feel better, 100 aspirins will make it feel 100 times better. And, in fact, 100 aspirins can kill you. But they figure if one show is a hit, make 100 just like it."

There may, in the final analysis, be one major breakthrough credited to the otherwise dismal '75-'76 season. And that breakthrough was the 12-hour version of Irwin Shaw's novel, "Rich Man, Poor Man." Frank Price, president of Universal TV, thinks that could be a milestone.

"The most significant thing that season could be the impact 'Rich Man, Poor Man' has," Price says. "Its potential impact on TV is enormous.

"If it's a hit, TV can then theoretically do any kind of novel. The whole idea is unprecedented in the field of entertainment. To me, the idea of being able to tell a total story is tremendously exciting."

But, "Rich Man, Poor Man" aside, there is very little brewing on the episodic TV front of great inventiveness. A few people see the gradual return of Westerns, which is hardly a brand-new breakthrough.

"They want action shows," Salkowitz says, "but less emphasis on cops. Westerns may be the answer. I see a small shift in attitude toward the Western. Last year, there were none. This year a few Western pilots have been made."

"We'll undoubtedly see some action on the Western front," says Price. "Perhaps there will be one or two of them on the schedule next fall."

Banner himself is producing Almost Anything Goes, the town-vs.-town stunt show. It seems to be working. He thinks here again attempts will be made to copy his format.

"There's already been a copy shown one time on CBS,' he says. "I'm willing to bet that if our show is a hit, within six months there will be some 40 similar ideas submitted to the networks and three of those, conservatively, will be made into pilots."

The "Family Hour" concept, which created such a storm when it was introduced last season, will continue. But, most experts believe, the shows placed in that hour will be a little meatier than they were last year, when bland ruled supreme.

"The Family Hour started out to be for children," Salkowitz says. "But now there's a slight switch — instead of putting on children's shows, they want adult shows that children can watch. We have a State Fair pilot, based on the old movie hit, designed for that time period, for example. It's in no way a kiddie show."

There may also be some small resurgence in science-fiction, as yet another way of giving the audience action without having to resort to the cops-and-robbers format.

"The success of The Six Million Dollar Man and The Bionic Woman," Price says, "makes me think there will be more investigation into the science fiction adventure arena. There used to be a cliche in TV that a sci-fi show will never get above a 28-share in the ratings. These shows are doing much better."

But, those slight changes aside, most TV people expect next season's programming to be pretty much a duplicate of this season's. A few Westerns, perhaps, and a sci-fi show or two, but really nothing new or exciting.

"TV changes by inches," says Salkowitz, "not by feet."

Dear Abby

No Way to Avoid Uninvited Guests

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had a New Year's cocktail buffet party at home to which 50 people were invited. We kept our guest list down because of limited space and budget.

The day of the party, six invited guests called to say that they had houseguests and to ask if they could bring them along! What could we say? So we had all these extra people in whom we had no interest whatsoever. They took up the space and ate and drank what could have gone to our own friends.

It seems to me that when people are invited to a party and they have houseguests, they should decline the invitation and not ask the hostess to entertain their houseguests, too.

How does one handle such rudeness?

BEEN HAD

DEAR BEEN: Sorry, but when you're stuck, you're stuck. When invited guests ask to bring their houseguests along, there is no way to tell them they are not welcome.

I can see where uninvited guests might present a real problem at a sit-down dinner, which I would not hesitate to point out, but a cocktail buffet can usually be stretched to handle some additional guests.

DEAR ABBY: Why does my boyfriend have to get drunk before he says, "I love you"?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Because he needs the "courage" either to lie or tell the truth.

DEAR ABBY: Get a load of the following, published April 3, 1919 in "The Alabamian," the weekly newspaper of the 167th Infantry, in the Army of Occupation of Germany with the Rainbow Division:

EASY ON PANTS

Pants are made for men, not for women.

Women are made for men, not for pants.

When a man pants for a woman and a woman pants for a man, that makes a pair of pants.

Pants are like molasses: They are thinner in hot weather and thicker in cold weather.

There has been much discussion as to whether "pants" is singular or plural. Seems to us that when men wear pants they are plural, and when they don't, it is singular. If you want to make pants last, make the coat first.

Stomach Has Protective Lining

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About three times a week I take a spoonful of Metamucil and I find if I don't wash the glass and spoon right away it leaves a slimy surface on the glass and it takes hot water to get it off. I wonder if it could coat my stomach and intestines so I could not get the good from my food. I don't take any other laxatives and the Metamucil works fine.

DEAR READER — No, it won't hurt you a bit. Your entire digestive system is constantly forming secretions that bathe its surface. Your stomach already has a layer of thick mucus over its surface which would make what you are talking about on your glass look like nothing at all. That mucus surface protects the stomach cells for its own acid digestive juice.

The lining of your intestine is shed and replaced as often as every three days. The lining incidentally is digested and absorbed for food for your body so you don't lose energy or important proteins this way.

Metamucil is a good bulk expander and isn't harmful. I do hope, however, that you include in your diet enough bulk and particularly cereal fiber from whole wheat products. If you use enough of that or bran or bran buds you may not need Metamucil to provide bulk for you.

Texas occupies a position midway between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and except for Florida is the southernmost of the United States. It also is approximately equidistance from the Equator and the Arctic Circle.

A Caribbean trench 15,000 feet deep lies between S t. Croix and the other two major islands of the U.S. Virgin Islands group, St. Thomas and St. John.

The greatest distance from east to west across Texas is approximately 775 miles, while the north to south distance is more than 800 miles.

Equal Time for Senior Citizens

You don't hear a lot about Senior Power, but it's there.

There are 20 million Americans older than 65 and they are easily the most discriminated-against minority of all.

That's why today, I'm giving equal time to grandmothers.

Awhile back, I did a column on what grandchildren could expect from grandparents. With an assist from a sharp grandmother in Rye, New York, here's some demands from grandparents.

1. Do not feel free to join me in the bathroom or run screaming to your mother when I throw you out. She may feel you are ready to be introduced to the mysteries of the human anatomy, but I don't.

2. When we're at the table and I am trying to get you to eat your din din, please don't call everyone's attention to the fact that I am talking to you with my mouth full.

3. Please, under no circumstances, fool around with the wires under my wheelchair.

4. When I am babysitting and have an important long-distance call, don't run out of the front door screaming and leaving me locked in. Granted you must have freedom, but I also have a nerve problem.

5. Please don't tear up my phone book just to keep busy while I am talking to a door-to-door salesman.

6. Please do not fill up the bathtub with water and float my hairbrush and comb in a solution of hair rinse, perfume, bath oil, and bath powder. That makes me cry throughout an entire evening.

7. Do not become hysterical when the toilet flushes blue. It is not something you have done.

8. Do not play football with my best pillow near my antique hurricane lamp.

9. Unless you are a prodigy and a soloist with the Cleveland symphony at the age of 4, do not sit down at my piano with sticky fingers.

10. When my legs are crossed and you jump on my foot for a "ride" do not be surprised if my leg falls off.

11. Try to understand I do not have unlimited toys around. Although the dog has movable parts, most of them cannot be replaced.

12. I'd like very much to respond to your pleas of "carry me, Grandma" but frankly you took the words out of MY mouth.

Now Grandma, if your grievance committee was only old enough to read this, you'd have it made.

The river known in the United States as the Rio Grande, forming 800 miles of boundary between Texas and Mexico, was named Rio Bravo del Norte (bold river of the north) by the Spaniards. It is the ninth longest river in the Western Hemisphere.

The rivers of Texas yearly discharge 36.3 million acre feet of water into the Gulf of Mexico.

Major League Owners 'Bite the Bullet'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — A drastically-revised reserve system was in the offing for major league players Tuesday after baseball's beleaguered owners "bit the bullet" and grudgingly accepted the "one-and-one" free agent option.

In an effort to at last put an end to baseball's labor woes and unlock the gates to spring training, the owners presented the players with their "final offer" Monday which, if accepted, could make every major league player now under contract a free agent.

"We have bit the bullet and accepted 'one-and-one,'" said American League President Lee MacPhail. "The next couple of years could be chaotic."

Under the owners' proposal, any player now in the major leagues can play out his option once his contract expires. The player would be eligible to negotiate with a maximum of eight clubs with selection procedure being based on inverse order of the standing. In other words, the player could become a free agent but he most likely would be bargaining with the bottom-most clubs in baseball.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said the players would have some comment today on the surprise proposal—a drastic turnabout from the owners' previous hardline stands. Miller also said the proposal would be given to the players' executive committee at a meeting in Tampa Wednesday for either ratification or rejection.

The owners, meanwhile, said they would not open the shuttered spring camps until the players accepted the proposal, which means there would not likely be a resumption of baseball until late this week.

"We will not open the camps until the players accept our proposal," MacPhail said. "Frankly, I don't see how they can reject it."

Actually, the "one-and-one" was a right the players had already won through the Peter Seitz decision and subsequent court mandates which rendered Los Angeles Dodgers' right-hander Andy Messersmith a free agent.

In addition to accepting the "one-and-one" which affects all current major league players, the owners also proposed a future reserve system which would make any player eligible for free agency after completing seven years of service with a club.

The owners' biggest fear in accepting any revisions in the 100-year-old reserve system was the financial burden it would place on each team in seeking to keep its players from playing out their options.

"The financial impact on the clubs will be great," said MacPhail. "The first two years will be a shock."

MacPhail said the owners will give the players until April 1 to decide on the proposal and it still could take that long before spring camps get opened. In particular, the players are likely to balk at the selection procedure in the "one-and-one" proposal and they will probably seek a future reserve system of something less than seven years.

"You have to remember," Miller said earlier in the week, "we have already won the one-and-one in the courts and I don't know if the players are going to go along for anything less that what we already have."

Yankees Eyeing Saturday

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — If spring training camps are allowed to open Tuesday, the New York Yankees would be ready to play ther first exhibition game here Saturday against the Texas Rangers, according to team president Gabe Paul.

"There are enough players who have been working out on their own and who played winter ball to enable us to field a team," said Paul as he awaited word that camps would be opened.

Seven Yankees were in town and Paul said the club was prepared to send telegrams to the rest of the players on the 38-man roster asking them to report to training camp as soon as possible. He figured there would be a large enough group for a meaningful workout Tuesday, should the word come to open camp, and by Wednesday all but a few who were driving would be on hand.

If the first game is played Saturday, the Yankees will have lost eight exhibition games, some of which could be made up by playing doubleheaders.

"But not right away," Paul cautioned. "We're doing pretty good just to get enough players for one game. Later on, we can see about playing doubleheaders."

Southern Idaho a Bit Confused

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) — Top-ranked College of Southern Idaho started the National Junior College Basketball Tournament Monday just like it did a year ago—a little confused.

Coach Boyd Grant, whose team was the national runnerup last year, hopes the tournament ends a little bit differently. This year he would like to go home a champion.

"We weren't very smooth out there," Grant said speaking of Southern Idaho's 71-66 win Monday over Lake Land (Ill.). "We played confused at times and I'm sure the pressure of being No. 1 had something to do with that. But last year my team played the same way in the first round and went on to get into the championship against Western Texas."

In other first round play Monday, No. 3 Mercer Community (N.J). beat Anderson (S.C.) 71-68, DeKalb South (Ga.) downed Johnson County (Kan.) 74-67, Allegheny (Pa.) defeated Henry Ford (Mich.) 69-59, Westchester (N.Y.) edged Arizona Western 56-55 and San Jacinto (Tex.) squeezed by McLennan (Tex.) 90-91.

An eight-point scoring burst in the final 10 minutes paced by Kim Goetz gave Southern Idaho a 58-47 lead which Lake Land could not shake. The closest the Illinois team came after that was within three points.

Mercer needed two free throws each from Tony Robino and Joe McKeown in the final 31 seconds of play to whip Anderson. Mercer was led by 6-10 Mike Davis with 21 points and Anderson was paced by Karlton Hilton and Billy Reid with 22 points each.

Jarvis Reynolds, a 6-8 center, scored 37 points in DeKalb's victory over Johnson County. Johnson County was led by John Revels with 22 points.

Allegheny's tight defense kept Henry Ford scoreless in the first 4½ minutes of play and never allowed the Michigan team to pose any real threat. Rick Williams led Allegheny with 17 points and Henry Ford was paced by Matt Rickey and Cornel Bedford with 15 each.

Westchester's win over Arizona Western came in the last four seconds when Ray Knox stole an inbounds pass and scored. Larry Rhodes led Westchester with 16 points and Arizona Western was led by Herb Miller with 29.

Ollie Mack hit four free throws in the final 45 seconds to give San Jacinto its victory over crosstate rival McLennan. Mack led the San Jacinto scoring with 21 points in a game which was tied 18 times. McLennan was led by John Derrick with 21 points and Ed Marshall and Vinnie Johnson with 20 each.

NFL Making Plans for Drafts

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle says the National Football League expansion and college football drafts, delayed by the courts after a lawsuit filed by the league's two expansion franchises, will be completed by early next month.

Owners gathered here for week-long meetings, he said, will decide the exact dates for the player allocation draft of veteran players going to the Seattle Seahawks and Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the regular draft of college players to all 28 NFL clubs.

"Both drafts will be held within three weeks of this meeting," Rozelle said at a news conference Monday. He said the owners will probably set the pick for top college players for one week after the two expansion franchises take their choice of unprotected veterans.

The two drafts were originally scheduled for late January and early February but owners of the two expansion clubs filed suit to block the Players Association from interferring.

Rozelle said the owners will also probably vote during the meetings whether to admit the Memphis Grizzlies of the defunct World Football League as a third expansion club this year.

Canadian millionaire John Bassett who owns the Grizzlies and rights to former Miami Dolphin stars Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield came to the meeting in hopes of promoting his admission into the league.

"We told Bassett to come out and we would meet," Rozelle said.

Anxious to please the owners he hopes will admit him to their club, Bassett said he would accept an expansion draft of just one player from each established team and a draw after Seattle and Tampa in the college draft.

"A major decision the clubs will have to make," Rozelle said, "is whether they are in a position to expand anywhere in the country. Personally, I think Memphis is the most interesting possibility but if the owners decide there are too many uncertainties now, they may want to wait until later before they proceed.

"But I don't know what they're going to say. There are 28 league owners and they are all rather independent."

Other items on the meeting agenda include selection of the 1978 Super Bowl site, consideration of proposed rule changes including a suggestion to widen the playing field and a discussion by the owners' Management Council of its position on the collective bargaining agreement with the Players Association.

Jabbar Stands Out In a Crowd

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — As a 7-foot-2 superstar, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar stands out in a crowd and it's not always pleasant.

"He doesn't have a public life because he can't," said Los Angeles Laker teammate Lucius Allen. "People just feel they know him or want to. When they come up to him and say whatever it is they say, they don't realize he's just had the same thing happen from what seems like 10,000 people a week."

Abdul-Jabbar, who is averaging 27.8 points and 17.1 rebounds in his seventh NBA season, says he learned to accept his role. But, he added, it hasn't been easy.

"The thing is," he said, "it can be so dehumanizing. People get annoyed. They feel you're supposed to be in their command and do what they want. If they wanted to meet you as a person, that would be nice. But they take the autograph, that little piece of paper, or grab my hand and just leave like I'm a machine.

"It's so easy for me to get trapped in a public place with a whole lot of people around. Yo sign for one and talk to one and pretty soon there's a pool of people descending on you."

Abdul-Jabbar was a three-time All-America at UCLA and he returned to Los Angeles in a trade with the Milwaukee Bucks. He talked about the public.

"Oh, I understand it," he said. "I'm very easy to identify because of my height. And most Americans have messed around with basketball in one way or another. Plus I've had a reputation for being one of the best at what I'm doing.

"All of this isn't to say I don't appreciate all the nice people I've met. It's kind of hard sometimes but it's definitely worth all the hassles. I've accepted it as part of something I have to deal with and I just deal with it. I've never for one second wished that people would just go away.

"I don't mind acknowledging people, no matter who they are. In fact, Muslims are commanded to greet those who greet them in a civil manner."

The Laker superstar's greetings haven't always been civl.

"I'll never forget the time I was standing at a urinal at O'Hare Airport in Chicago," he recalled, "and a guy ran up to me and said, 'Would you sign this?' All I could do was look at him like was he crazy.

"Another time I was at an airport, trying to get my wife and daughter on a plane. This guy kept hassling me—he was incredibly persistent—and I wouldn't sign because I didn't have time and because he just wasn't very nice.

"So he started following me around everywhere, telling me I thought I was better than everyone else, how I had no right.

"I've had people have stewardesses wake me while I was sound asleep. It's those times I feel like getting nasty."

'Kamikaze Kids' Downed By Carolina Poor Boys

NEW YORK (UPI) — UNC-Charlotte, the poor boys of North Carolina basketball, brought Oregon's "Kamikaze Kids" down to earth with a loud crash Monday in the National Invitation Tournament to get a shot at hated North Carolina State.

Adopting Oregon's mugging tactics, UNC-Charlotte turned loose slender 6-foot-8 center Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, who scored 30 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead the 49ers to a 79-72 victory.

"It was just a thing of retaliation," the 185-pound Maxwell said of his second-half aggressiveness, which resulted in 22 points. "You can only knock somebody so hard for so long and they're going to start knocking back."

The victory, following a first-round victory over San Francisco, carried Charlotte into Thursday's semifinals against the Wolfpack, a 78-68 victor over Holy Cross.

In tonight's quarterfinals, Kentucky plays Kansas State and Louisville faces Providence, so the other semifinal game could be an all-Kentucky affair.

Despite its 21-5 regular season record, UNC-Charlotte has labored in obscurity because it is situated in the middle of Atlantic Coast Conference country. Prior to the beginning of the NIT, 49ers coach Lee Rose discussed the numerous disadvantages of the situation.

Asked about recruiting, Rose said, "We certainly don't have the first choices, that's for sure. The ones we get are certainly the kids who have been looked over and left over."

Maxwell, who has scored 58 points in two NIT games, was not an exception.

"I was recruited by no ACC schools," Maxwell said. "Everyone's dream down there is to play ACC ball."

The rest of Rose's leftovers, consequently, view Thursday's game as more than a basketball game. The Wolfpack won an earlier game against Charlotte this season 67-64 in N.C. State's Reynolds Colesium.

Intimidated early by Oregon's push-and-shove defense, the 49ers fell behind 28-19 before Lew Massey and Melvin Watkins led a late surge to gain a 35-31 halftime lead. Massey finished with 20 points and Watkins had 10.

Greg Ballard scored 27 points and Ron Lee 17 for Oregon, which finished third in last year's NIT, but Maxwell was the dominant force in the second half as the 49ers built a 14-point lead with only 1:15 left in the game.

Guard Al Green scored 23 points and Kenny Carr had 21 to pace N.C. State's victory, which was the 400th of Coach Norm Sloan's career.

"I thought we played really good at times," Sloan said. "We went to the zone for the first time this year and Holy Cross couldn't hit from the outside for the first 30 minutes. They started to hit after that, but fortunately we had built up a big enough lead by then."

Asked why he decided to install a zone defense, Sloan said, "We had lost four straight games. We had to do something."

Now the Wolfpack has something else to do—prepare for war—because UNC-Charlotte is approaching Thursday's game as a crusade for overdue recognition.

Men Cheat More Than Women . . . in Golf

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Carol Mann agrees with me. Men cheat more than women. On the golf course, she's talking about. Off it, she doesn't know.

"Who am I to judge?" she says.

Carol Mann is one of the most honest persons you'll ever run into in sports. She's so natural, so down-to-earth, that the truth goes clear through her like an electric shock.

When she talks with you, she never tries to impress you with the fact she is one of the finest women golfers in the world or that she has won nearly a half million dollars on the professional tour. She says she's self-conscious sometimes, but you'd never know that being in her company.

Carol Mann is like Pete Rose in that she doesn't put on any airs. You don't find that quality around too much. She has another asset going for her as well. She looks like a knockout early in the morning, even without a whole lot of makeup, and how many women do you know like that?

Over breakfast at the Plaza, Carol Mann talked about golf. She spoke not so much about the touring professionals as those who play at country clubs. I told her I think men golfers bend the rules more than women, another way of saying they cheat more.

"I'd have to say they do," said Carol Mann. "I notice that when I play with them in pro-ams. The rules of the day are supposed to prevail. I'm only one person, so I can't watch them all, but I've seen them tee the ball up in the fairway rolling it up with their clubhead if it's in a lie they don't like. They break the rules in other ways also. If their ball is out of bounds or lost, in a hazard or in the water, they have no idea where to drop it, so they drop it anywhere. They say, 'it does't matter, it's only a dollar Nassau.' Then when they get to the green, they always change balls. They have to have their putting ball, you know. I've never seen any man penalize himself for that."

Most flagrant cheater Carol Mann ever saw was a successful businessman who played golf regularly at one of Chicago's swankier country clubs.

"This fellow had a hole purposely cut in his pocket," she remembered, laughing. "He kept a ball in that pocket and every time he'd hit into the rough, he go in there by himself, squeeze the ball through the hole in his pocket and call out 'I found my ball!' Naturally, he'd always 'find' it in a good lie."

Carol Mann thinks men cheat on the golf course more than women because they have greater egos and less regard for the rules.

"Women are more meticulous about the game itself," she says. "They're more honest than men."

Anybody who knows Carol Mann knows she has some pretty strong feelings about the women's tour, strong enough so that she once was president of the LPGA's Executive Board, but that doesn't mean she is out there leading the women's lib movement. She doesn't say women golfers are perfect. She has seen them cheat, too.

I asked Carol if she had ever cheated on the golf course and she said if she did, it was through ignorance, and when she was very young.

"The way I feel about it now, my performance in golf represents who I am and what I am, and if I cheat, I cheat myself," she says.

After breakfast Monday, blonde, curly-haired Carol stopped off at the First Women's Bank of New York where the $200,000 prize money for the fifth annual Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle championship, the world's richest tournament, is being held. She'll be shooting for the $32,000 first prize in Palm Springs, Calif., April 1-4.

The First Women's Bank is run by women but it's not going to get any of Carol Mann's money.

"If they're like me, I don't trust 'em," she kids. "I'm sure they're not like me."

When she first jo ined the tour in 1961 a tall, leggy kid out of Towson, Md., Carol Mann did so poorly, she nearly starved to death. She struggled for two years and sometimes became desperate.

"I'll tell you how desperate," she laughs. Carol Mann always laughs. "I was so deperate I thought about becoming....sh-hh-h....a hooker! I mean it. I talked it over with two other players on the tour...I won't tell you the names...and they encouraged me. They thought I was kidding. I wasn't. It's just as well I didn't become one, though. I couldn't. I'd be too guilt-ridden."

Fred Faerber Makes His Point

NEW PALTZ—It wasn't big as picket lines go—just two men—but Fred Faerber, the aggressive president of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County got his message across Monday.

Fearber was joined by Monte Osborne of the Rondout Valley Fish and Game Club in his protest against Department of Environmental regulations limiting the take of trout to three on a stretch of the .8 miles from the Five Arches Bridge in Boiceville.

"I was prepared to go it alone," the volatile Federation president had said several days ago.

Norm Van Valkenburgh, the new Region 3 director and Tony Bonavist, acting regional supervisor, paid the picket scene a visit and chatted briefly with Faerber.

The DEC representatives saw plenty. Between them, Faerber and Osborne flashed six different messages to Van Valkenburgh, whose appointment to replace the deposed Warren McKeon touched off a major controversy in county fish and game circles.

Among the messages: "Bring Back Warren," "Reorganize the DEC," "No Special Regulations on the Esopus Creek," "Hire Fewer People," "More Fish in the Stream" and "Take Back the Fisher." The last sign was a reference to DEC's newly announced policy of rehabilitating the fisher.

Faerber was armed with some new ammunition in his stand against limiting the trout catch in the Esopus. At a recent meeting, all seven counties in Region 3—Ulster, Dutchess, Sullivan, Orange, Rockland, Westchester and Putnam—voted unanimous support of Ulster's stand.

The Federation president also said a new state directive bars the stoocking of trout in streams under special regulations. "In other words," said Faerber, "the trout will have to go it alone in those areas."

Faerber and Van Valkenburgh did little more than exchange pleasantries in their meeting the picket line. The Region 3 director had an appointment in White Plains.

The Federation president had good news on the county federation's proposal to create a new water fowl zone for the area. "I visited the Montezuma headquarters recently," he said, "and the project is moving."

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What Joe Kapp's side in the former star quarterback's damages trial in Federal Court needed the most was a lucky break after two weeks of near identical testimony that was threatening to put the jury to sleep.

It got the break, although it was far from lucky, Monday, and mostly because of attorney Charles Hanger's perseverance. Hanger at times does not appear to have anywhere near the polish some of those fancy television laways have, but he works hard and seems to be getting the job done.

Four days of having Kapp on the stand, two more with Kapp's attorney-adviser John Elliott Cook, and three days of reading depositions hadn't produced much of anything the jury could sink its teeth into. The best that could be said for this case to that point is that it was moving along.

Then on Monday, Hanger, after finishing up a deposition by former Minnesota Vikings general manager James Finks, which shed little light, moved on to a deposition taken from former San Francisco 49ers star quarterback John Brodie.

The move by no means caught the defense by surprise since it knew ahead of time that at one point Hanger would make it. If anything the three defense attorneys — James McKay of Washington, D.C., William Willis of New York and Joseph Alioto of San Francisco —were ready.

Taking turns they almost leaped out of their chairs objecting to every question Hanger read from the deposition, taken last month because Brodie is out of town this month. The defense objected there was little or no relavancy between what happened to Brodie when he signed an agreement in 1966 with the Houston Oilers on a cocktail napkin and when Kapp signed a memorandum of agreement with the New England Patriots in 1970.

Judge William T. Sweigert was about to agree, sustaining at least a half dozen objections, when Hanger pleaded for a hearing in chambers so that he could make his case before the jury of four women and two men. Sweigert agreed to the hearing and then gave Hanger permission to continue his questioning but within a clearly defined area. That was all Kapp's attorney needed.

Billie Jean cheers on team

U.S. Tops Russia In Team Tennis

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Billie Jean King may be missing but there will be a replay next year of the United States-Russia tennis matches.

The first such venture, a five-match, $100,000 promotion in four cities, ended Monday night with the U.S. winning four of five sets for an overall 136-95 triumph. The U.S. players carved up $60,000. The rest went to the Russians.

The series started in Moscow last week, then continued in Philadelphia and Cleveland before being concluded here.

"This was a fantastic experience," said King, the six-time Wimbledon queen who said she will now concentrate on World Team Tennis as a member of the New York Sets.

The matches were played under WTT rules.

"I really don't know if I'll play next year," King said. "I've played only two sets singles since August. In Russia, I was down 2-5 to Olga Morozova and won, 7-5. In order to improve, I have to play and stop eating to get into shape."

The U.S. could have swept the final five matches Monday night in the Indiana Convention-Exposition Center. Sandy Mayer and Vitas Gerulaitis led Teimuraz Kakulia and Vadim Borisov 5-2 before easing up and clowning their way to a 5-7 defeat.

King and Mona Schallau drubbed Morozova and Marina Kroshina in women's doubles, 6-2. In distaff singles, Rosie Casals jumped to a 3-0 lead over Natasha Chmyreva, who was replaced after one game by Morozova. Schallau completed the set for the Americans, winning 6-4.

Marty Riessen defeated Alex Metreveli in men's singles, 6-3, and King and Mayer scored a 6-2 triumph over Borisov and Chmyreva in mixed doubles.

The matches will "definitely" be held again next year, said Larry King, Billie Jean's husband and the WTT president. "The only problem at this time is working out the exact date."

While support of the matches in the U.S. was disappointing — Monday night's attendance was announced as 3,622—King said they were received with great enthusiasm in Russia.

Posse Captures Sawyer Playoffs

SAUGERTIES—Sheriff Mayone's Posse, a fifth place finisher during the regular season, reeled off its third straight victory in post season play to emerge as the playoff champs of the SAA Sawyer Basketball League with an 83-65 win over Mark IV Printing.

Balance was the Posse's key to success as Pa Boos led four teammates into double figures with 21 points. The winners improved on a slim first half lead to jump to an 11 point bulge at the intermission. They kept the pressure on in the second half to foil Mark IV's attempts at a comeback.

Dave LaRourette was a contributor to the win with 18 points and eight rebounds. Paul Schabot added ten caroms and 16 points. Vic Pelletieri was the Printers' best with 24 points.

Although Mark IV finished above the Posse in the regular season standings, this was a playoff result that didn't really qualify as another Posse upset. The Deputies had been victorious in two previous meetings with the Printers.

Net Semis Near

KINGSTON—The last quarterfinal match of the second annual Men's Indoor Doubles Championship will be played at the Municipal Auditorium this afternoon at 4:30 when Ron Woods and Dick Smith take on Paul Baron and Dave Forer.

The winner of that battle will advance to Saturday's semifinals against the team of Ron Schoonmaker and C. J. Farley in an 11 a.m. match. The other semifinalists are the top seeded team of Pete and Bill Zeeh and the third seeded pair of Gordon Kragna and Dave Cooper. They'll play Saturday at 9 a.m. The finals are slated for Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Sunday's quarterfinal action saw Schoonmaker and Farley eliminate Joe White and Jack Schoonmaker in three sets, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1, and then Kragna and Cooper knocked off Al George and Bob Fuller, 6-0, 6-0. The Zeeh's also advanced easily with a 6-0, 6-2 triumph over Larry Vallentine and Jerry Prendergast.

Third round action, in which scoring went to best-of-three sets, began Friday. Baron and Forer took out Paul Lyle and John Farrell, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; Woods and Smith defeated Dave Jordan and Tim O'Leary, 6-0, 6-1; and White and Schoonmaker turned back Bob Campbell and Larry Leise, 6-2, 6-3.

Schoonmaker and Farley opened the continuation of the round Saturday with a 6-4, 7-5 win over fourth seeded George Martin and Jerry Leatherman. In other results, it was Kragna and Cooper over Andy Stoll and Dave Jones, 7-6, 6-2; George and Fuller over J. Waldin and T. Wise, 7-6, 7-5; and Vallentine and Prendergast over Josh Koplovits and Paul Haberland, 6-4, 6-2.

Leo Too Ill to Manage

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Leo Durocher, who signed for a reported $220,000 last January to manage a team in the Japanese baseball league, Monday had his contract cancelled because ill health will prevent from joining his new club for at least five weeks.

The 70-year-old Durocher, who managed three pennant winning clubs in the major leagues during a controversial career that spanned five decades, informed T. Nakamura of the Taiheiyo club of the Japanese league Monday that he had been ill with pneumonia and, under his doctor's advice, would need at least five weeks to recover.

Nakamura then informed Durocher that his contract would be cancelled. Last Jan. 9 Nakamura made a special trip here to sign Durocher.

Wenzel's Eight Straight

KINGSTON — Wenzel's Amusements trounced J&G Drywall 71-58 to remain undefeated (8-0) atop the National Division of the YMCA B Basketball League.

In other games, Dolphin Inn made it 7-1 in the Central Division with a 81-59 romp over Olive Cablevision. Well Wolfpack short circuited Sass Electric 108-67 and Fisherman's Club forfeited to Downs Street Driving School.

Kingston Imports forfeited to Golgoski's giving Golgoski's its first victory after six straight losses.

Harry Brink unloaded 33 points and Art Shelightner 18 (with 13 rebounds) for Wenzel's. Bob Whiffen led J&G with 27 points. Rich Dickerson had 10 points and Al Schmid contributed 10 points and 10 rebounds.

Dolphins had four players in double figures with Rockey Secreto leading with 20. Dan Potter had 15, Hugh Schrowang 14 (and 16 rebounds) and Mike Sass 13. John Stelcin rimmed 29 points and Jim Van Steenburgh 11 points and 15 rebounds for Olive.

John Jasinski (35) and Bill Egan (21) combined for 56 points to spark Wolfpack's breeze over Sass. Steve LeFever added 17 and Ed Jasinski and Russ Wilbur 13 each. Egan hauled in 14 rebounds.

Bill Sass and Bob Schlanger scored 17 each for the Electricians, with Schlanger adding 15 rebounds.

'Encouraging' Report from Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — Four months before the start of the 1976 Summer Olympics, Quebec's minister in charge of Games construction says work "is going ahead in a very encouraging way."

More than half of the upper level of the massive 72,000-seat main stadium is completed and good progress in being made at the lower level, Dr. Victor Goldbloom told reporters Monday after a third walking press tour of the site.

Goldbloom, Quebec Minister of municipal affairs, said the stadium floor must be cleared about April 6 to begin laying the sports field and running track.

While work on the field had to begin promptly, laying the track could be delayed two or three weeks, Goldbloom added. During that delay, he said, more permanent seating could be installed.

The minister estimated between 50,000 and 60,000 permanent seats would be installed before the Games Opening ceremony July 17. Temporary seating units would be installed to bring the stadium to capacity of 72,000 seats.

Construction on the modernistic stadium and connecting swimming pools has been proceeding on a round-the-clock basis to ensure completion for the games.

Goldbloom said officials now believed the on-site pools would be completed in time, but he added the "catastrophe plan" to provide alternate pools elsewhere would not be abandoned until the organizing committee gave its approval.

Speaking of an accident last week that saw four men killed on the construction site, Goldbloom said the deaths were not due to work pressure aimed at completing the the site in time.

"In all conscience I can say the tragic accident was not due to pressure," he said, adding that after the accident authorities completely reviewed the work schedule, procedures and safety measures.

The men died March 8 when a hollow concrete support beam in which they were working fell 200 feet to the ground from the framework of the doughnut-shaped stadium

Some union leaders claimed after the accident a speed-up in construction was being made at the expense of worker safety standards.

Goldbloom, who promised an open policy concerning information on Games construction when the Quebec government took over the Olympics from the City of Montreal, said the first public showings of the site would be Easter weekend.

Construction site workers would be allowed to show their families around the Olympic center on Good Friday. Details of openings to the public would be announced later, Goldbloom said.

During the public viewings, all construction work would be suspended.

Red Hook Is Unbeaten In UCAL Volleyball Play

KYSERIKE—Red Hook High's girls' volleyball team remainded undefeated in Ulster County Athletic League play Monday by defeating New Paltz and Rondout Valley at the latter's gym.

Red Hook topped Rondout, 15-7, 15-4, and New Paltz, 15-8, 15-8. In the third portion of the triangular, New Paltz defeated Rondout, 15-3, 15.5.

In JV action, New Paltz beat Rondout, 15-2, 15-6, but lost to Red Hook, 16-4, 15-5. Red Hook downed Rondout 15-3, 15-5.

Islanders Will Offer Refunds

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Islanders agreed Monday to grant cash refunds to season ticket holders if they are unable to use some of their tickets for the quarterfinal round of the National Hockey League playoffs.

Nassau County Consumer Affairs Commissioner James Picken said season ticket holders for the Islanders are required to buy tickets for all four home playoff games.

On Feb. 26, the team management announced that if the Islanders are eliminated before all the games are played, ticketholders will get a credit on their account for next year's season subscription.

At the March 10 meeting of the County Board of Supervisors, Richard M. Kessel, a consumer advocate, called this procedure a "ripoff," and he asked Picken to conduct an investigation.

Picken and other county officials conferred with representatives of the Islanders and the management then agreed to award the cash refunds. Picken said he assumed that the new policy will remain in effect if the Islanders get into the semifinal and final rounds.

Youth Survives Fall

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy miraculously survived a 65-foot fall from the roof of Freedom Hall during the American Basketball Association game between the Kentucky Colonels and the San Antonio Spurs Monday night.

Marty Smith, a junior high school student here, was listed in serious condition at St. Joseph Infirmary with a fractured pelvis, a broken right forearm, head and internal injuries. Hospital officials said his spleen had to be removed as a result of the accident.

A Colonels' spokesman said the youngster apparently managed to get onto the roof through a hatch in the arena and then fell through some loose tile, landing on a concrete floor about 40 feet from the basketball court while the game was in progress. He said two other boys also had clambered onto the roof but escaped harm.

The accident stunned a crowd of 6,788.

Gonzalez Wins Seniors

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Pancho Gonzalez downed second-seeded Pancho Segura, 6-1, 6-1, Monday to win the singles title in the $25,000 World Senior Tennis Championship.

In the doubles competition, the second-seeded team of Segura and Australian Bob Howe defeated the unranked duo of Gardner Mulloy and Tony Vincent.

Gonzalez, the tournament's top seed and an eight-time winner of the U.S. Pro singles title, collected four service breaks in the first set of his match against Segura.

"I made some lucky shots in the first three games of the first set and I think it discouraged Segura," said the 47-year-old winner, who collected $5,000.

Segura's second place finish earned him $2,500.

The winning doubles team split $2,000.

Prior to the championship finals, Mulloy joined Bobby Riggs to down Bunny Smith and Kathy Kuykendall, 7-6, 6-2, in a battle-of-the-sexes contest.

The tournament, held for the first time this year, featured players 45 years old and older.

Nine Named to Track Hall

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The National Track and Field Hall of Fame Monday selected nine persons to be enshrined here later this year, including the late 24-year-old Olympic runner Steve Prefonatine who was killed last year in an automobile accident.

Among those chosen were two men dubbed the "world's fastest human" in their heydays—Olympic gold medal winners Charles Paddock of the 1920s and and Bob Hayes of the 1960s.

Two women athletes honored by the national hall were Dolores Boeckmann, the first woman coach-chaperone to lead a U.S. women's squad to the Olympic games, and Mae Faggs Starr, who participated on three consecutive U.S. Olympic teams.

Also honored were high-hurdler Hayes Wendell Jones, distance runner Billy Mills, popular indoor miler Joie Ray and hurdler Forrest "Spec" Towns.

Dr. J. Kenneth Doherty, 70, leading American author of track and field technique books and a 1928 medalist in Olympic decathlon competition, was selected for the Hall of Fame for his meritorious achievement.

No coaches were to be enshrined this year, none having received 75 per cent of the votes from the selection committee.

Dr. William Exum, hall of fame chairman and athletic director of the University of Kentucky, said the induction ceremonies were to be held here June 11-12.

Exum said the inductees represented a "tremendously talented group of athletes."

Prefontaine, of Coos Bay, Ore., who set a national record for the high school two mile and finished fourth in the 5,000-meter competition of the 1972 Olympics, was called a "free spirit" by Exum.

"He had a certain kind of mystique," Exum noted. "He had empathy with athletes."

Exum diplomatically side-stepped a question on who would have won a hypothetical match between Hayes and Paddock, both holders of world records.

Hayes, who picked up gold medals in the 1964 Olympics, ran 100-meters in 9.3 seconds or faster nineteen times in his career.

Paddock, who ran the first 9.5 second 100-yard race, was known for his "flying leap through the finish," according to Exum.

The inductees were selected from a total of 35 athletes, coaches and contributors considered for the honor.

Eleven OCS Winners

WEST HURLEY—There were 11 different winners at the Onteora March Runs, races for competitors from 9-18 sponsored by the Onteora Runners Club, but that was only part of the story. What really made the day was the number of young competitors who turned up for the event.

Meet director Bernie Stahl was amazed. "We had a total of 207 kids competing on a cold Saturday morning. I guess not all kids just want to watch television," he said.

Boys nine and under ran a quarter mile. Top finishers were: Jamie Roth, 1:25; Tim Watkins, 1:26; Karsten Kohlrausch, 1:36; Craig Hoffstatter, 1:40; and Peter Saveskie, 1:42. Diana Shultis clocked 2:06 to lead the girls quarter mile in the nine and under group. Kim Perry, 2:12, Kristin Campbell, 2:15, Kathy Gribbins, 2:19, and Barbara Hallinan, 2:19 rounded out the top group.

In the half mile race for ten year old boys the leaders were: Brian Davis, 2:52; Erik Rank, 2:57; Jimmy Jerkowski, 2:59; George McLane, 3:00; and Glenn Evans, 3:01. Eleven year olds at the same distance were led by Tim Higgins, 2:45; Eric Oswald, 2:49; Rudie Baker, 2:50; John Ciccarino, 2:51; and Eric Miller, 2:52.

For girls 10-11 at a half mile, Jami Becker clocked 3:02 followed by Mary Sass, 3:15, Jeanninne Longendyke, 3:16, Deirdre Kidney, 3:18 and Nancy Friedel, 3:22.

Boys and girls 12-13 ran three-quarter mile races. The boys' leaders were Bob Wood, 3:45; Matt Skalla, 3:51; Glenn Jones, 3:59; Mike Russell, 4:02; and Mike Skalla, 4:08. The girls' leaders were Wendy Barker, 4:18; Margaret Walsh, 4:40; Mary Beth White, 4:41; Barbara Kusisto, 4:49; and Lisa Tantillo, 4:50.

In the 14-15 age group at four-fifths of a mile, boys' leaders were Dave Parker, 3:50; John Black, 3:51; Mark Damario, 4:00; Bill Wood, 4:01; and Pete Antowiak, 4:15. Best of the girls were Doriane Lambelet, 4:38; Debbie LeFort, 4:55; Karin Emig, 5:06; Betty Jerkowski, 5:10; and Terry Seaman, 5:18.

The 16-18 year olds ran two miles. Al Schmidt paced the boys with 10:18 followed by Jeff Lease, 10:18; Charlie Bevier, 10:20; Ken Hull, 10:39; and Erik Fisher, 11:35. Eileen Casey led the girls in 12:36 ahead of Theresa Paules, 14:32; Lisa Hancock, 14:33; and Lynn Vano, 16:47.

Yanks Added

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Former baseball greats Mickey Mantle and Joe DiMaggio and entertainer Jackie Gleason have been added to the field for the Memorial Tournament's pro-am preview May 25.

"I was really happy to get commitments from Jackie and Mickey," said tournament director Herb McDonald. "Both are at the top of everyone's celebrity list, and both are great personalities."

The pro-am field for the inaugural Professional Golfers Association tourney at Jack Nicklaus' new Muirfield Village Golf Club.

Junior Bowlers Set Seven Records

NEW PALTZ—Ulster County Junior Bowling Association bowlers set seven records in the 1976 team championships rolled at Brunswick Lanes.

Lucky 13 of Mid-City Lanes captured the Class A boys title with 1974 and 2621 gross. Band on the Run of Ferraro's Bowlerama was runnerup with 2601 and BB's of the IBM Apollo Juniors placed third with 2519.

Class B team honors went to Smashers of the Woodstock Juniors with 2363. Ten Pin Connection of the Bowlers Club was second with 2218 and Bowlers Club Pinbenders third with 2198.

Class C was won by Super Stars of Woodstock Lanes with 2002 gross, followed by Slow Starters of Ferraro Junior with 1972 and IBM Apollo Bantams also with 1972.

College Lanes of New Paltz grabbed girls Class A honors with 2333 gross.

The 76ers of Woodstock Lanes led the Class B competition with 2094, Bluebirds of the Bowlers Club posted 2072 and Unpredictables of Woodstock Juniors had 1964.

Woodstock Lanes Strikers won the Class C title with 1792. Bowlers Club Splitters posted 1776, and the Starlettes of Bowlers Club had 1289 net.

Among the seven records set were: The Columbias, 749 net game, Class A boys; Bill Sinsabaugh, 606 series and new record for Class A boys, also career first.

Fantabulous set new records of 624 net game and 1826 series for Class A girls. Katrina Van Tassel's 235 is a new individual game record in Class A girls.

In Class B girls, the Unpredictables posted new net marks of 536 and 1470. The Starlettes' 1289 is a new Class C girls series and Woodstock Lanes Strikers posted 1792 for new team gross in Class C girls.

Chuck Diers anchored Lucky 13 with 518 and Bob Allen had 510. Bill Miggins' 533 led Band on the Run. Bill Sinabaugh's 606 was tops for B.B's and Les Schilling posted 502 for Smashers.

Melanie Williams decked a 209-554 for the Fantabulous team in Class A girls. Katrina Van Tassel had 235-515 for the Sawyer Bowlerettes.

Miss Buboltz In State Finals

KIAIESHA LAKE—Mary Ann Buboltz, a Kingston High School bowler, has advanced to the finals of the New York State Junior championships next month.

Miss Buboltz, who started her trek to the finals in eliminations at Ferraro's Bowlerama in Kingston, rolled a six-game block of 1066 here at Kiamesha Lanes over the weekend to advance to the New York State finals April 24-25 at Clover Lanes in Rochester.

In her first block, she put together games of 170, 171 and 160 for 501, then bounced back with 565 off lines of 211, 203 and 131. She was competing in the 16-18 non-graduate age group.

After winning the first eliminations at Ferraro's Bowlerama, Miss Buboltz moved to Newburgh where she led the Local Finals at Good Time Lanes

She averages around 157 and has been a standout performer in junior bowling the past few years at the Bowlerama.

The state championships are sponsored jointly by the American Bowling Congress, Women's International Bowling Congress, New York State Bowling Proprietors Association and the New York State Bowling Council.

Frazier-Foreman Return Bout at Garden?

NEW YORK (UPI) — A spokesman for promoter Jerry Perenchio said Monday that a news conference will be held here Thursday to announce details for a heavyweight fight between former champions Joe Frazier and George Foreman.

No terms were disclosed but the spokesman indicated New York would be the likely site of the fight, with Madison Square Garden having the inside track, although he wouldn't rule out the possibility of holding the bout in either Yankee Stadium or Shea Stadium.

There is no love lost between Frazier and Foreman. The two met once before in Kingston, Jamaica, in January of 1973 with Foreman knocking Frazier to the canvas six times in two rounds while stripping him of the title.

Frazier contended shortly thereafter that Foreman reneged on an agreement for a return bout.

Faces Life

KINGSTON—Alex Torres, 21, of Park Hotel, Ellenville, faces a mandatory life prison sentence following his conviction in Ulster County Court Monday on two counts of third degree criminal sale of a controlled substance.

A minimum sentence of one year to life is mandated on each count under state law.

A 10-man, two-woman jury deliberated for about seven hours Monday before returning with the guilty verdicts.

Torres was arrested on the charges last November along with eight other Ulster County residents during a series of coordinated raids in the Ellenville area by state police under the direction of the Ulster County District Attorney's office.

Torres had previously been charged with the two counts of drug sale in a sealed indictment handed up by an Ulster County Grand Jury. He was charged with selling quantities of heroin to a state police undercover agent.

First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh prosecuted the case, which began last Tuesday. Woodstock attorney Joshua N. Koplovitz represented Torres.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino, who presided during the week-long trial, set April 14 as the date for sentencing.

Still Some High Spots on Strip

All is not bleak during Las Vegas Culinary strike as these two waitresses take advantage of 70-degree weather to cool their heels in fountain in front of Caesars Palace. Talks are continuing in the four-day-old walkout over higher wages and other benefits. About 11,700 Culinary members are affected, along with stagehands and musicians. There are still 23,000 rooms available at some hotels on the strip and all of downtown. (UPI)

CSEA Rejects Merger

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (UPI) — The Civil Service Employes Association executive board Monday rejected a proposal to merge their union with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, sources said.

The CSEA, the state's largest public employes union, represents 147,000 state workers.

In other action at the union's convention, delegates from one of the four bargaining units covered by a proposed contract with the state voted against that pact.

The contract proposal, reached last weekend by negotiators from the union and the state Office of Employe Relations, would give no raises this year but would call for negotiations on a raise to come in April 1977. It would also require six months notice to any emloye to be laid off.

Artur Rubenstein . . . Still the Master

NEW YORK (UPI) — He strode on stage with a halting gait, homing toward the open grand piano almost as though he were drawn by a magnet.

He smiled and jerked a nod of recognition to the standing ovation of an overflow audience which spilled on stage. He sat on the leather-covered piano stool as though it were a throne.

Artur Rubenstein returned to Carnegie Hall Monday night to play Beethoven, Schumann and Chopin in celebration of the 70th anniversary of his American debut.

At the end, a capacity audience brought him back time and again with standing ovations for encores of more Chopin and presented him with a bouquet of yellow roses.

"For 40 years I have come back each year," Rubenstein said. "And I have always found this same affection. I love you. Thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Nearly 90 and nearly blind, Rubenstein raised his hands to the cheering audience to acknowledge the applause which thundered from the ancient concert hall. He crossed his hands over his heart, smiling, almost weeping.

By his own account, Rubenstein was born in Lodz, Poland, in 1887 and gave his first concert at the age of 6. He made his American debut in 1906 at Carnegie Hall and after a hiatus of several years has been back every year for the past 40 years.

Although his eyes are dimmed, Rubenstein still stroked and caressed the keys of his Steinway with the feeling and emotion of a master. Occasionally the fingers went awry but the touch always bore the tenderness of a lover.

And playing the piano is his most strenuous exercise.

Apart from setting-up exercises in the morning when he arises about 8 a.m., Rubenstein has no secrets for his longevity. He still enjoys a good wine and smokes two or three cigars a day, always with coffee. He takes no pills other than vitamin C.

An American citizen who now lives most of the time in Spain, Rubenstein returned for the first time in 16 years to his native Poland a year ago and came back with praise and admiration.

"They will go a thousand strong against an army of a million Russians, fighting with forks and spoons and I don't know what," he said. "They are the only ones who opposed Hitler from first to last."

Vivacious and alert, Rubenstein at the piano is still an exhilarating experience. No one, except possibly Rubenstein, knows how old he really is.

But then, who really cares.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17

Your birthday today: You move into a broader stream of activity while dwindling results from old practices squeeze you out of set habits. Nobody you know is involved in the same process. Relationships are distorted by failure to comprehend what you're doing. If you have a story to write, now is the time. Today's natives have difficult childhoods, develop foresight and a kind of political savvy.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Information coming in is garbled or wrong. Before taking it seriously, check it out and do your own thinking. Personal schemes take low priority.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Evade pressures from those who don't realize what they're asking of you. New proposals are incomplete and misleading. Get further details before deciding. Reexamine group ventures.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Speak up and demand benefits you feel you've earned. Gather others on an equal footing to join forces for good causes. Use leisure time for significant hobbies.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Intermittent change and confusing conditions call for steady attention to work. Personal demands conflict with those of your job. Postpone legal action.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Schedules are difficult to maintain. Don't make hasty moves in family situations. Be conservative about financial matters; keep to tested lines.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Sign only what you fully understand. People of different opinions cross up arrangements at extra cost in time and money. If parents or older folk are involved, it takes patience, too.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Detours save you from unwanted encounters but cause complications. There's a limit to your energy; devote more of it to having fun and less of it to business.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Being alert to what's happening confirms your theories or clarifies information. Get ready for upcoming social events. Pop a surprising question.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Take nothing for granted. Carefully check facts and figures and go ahead as planned. Stay away from friends' elegant schemes.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Important changes are beyond your reach. If decisions have to be made, rely on your intuition rather than on someone's opinion. Don't bother with trivia.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You're apt to jump to conclusions, take short cuts or make mistakes. Sell of surplus if you're certain that's what it is.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Don't pay attention to the activity and gossip that surrounds you. Close attention to details and unfamiliar proposals pays off.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

VISITOR: (Q.) Donna my brother's girl friend, is over here day and night. I am really sick of it. She says she is coming over to see me but it always ends up she spends all the time she can with my brother.

If he is not at home when she gets here, she hangs around with me until he gets home. What should I do? Donna and my brother are 16. I am 14.—Bothered in Maine

(A.) Donna is taking advantage of you. She is also being dishonest. This is not good for you or for her or for your brother.

Ask him to get an understanding with her that she is not to just drop in. If she is coming to visit him, they should plan it ahead and he should be there to meet her and to be with her as long as she is there.

If he doesn't take action to improve matters, take it up with your parents.

ABORTION: (Q.) I am in deep trouble. You see, I'm pregnant and can't decide what to do. My boy friend doesn't want to get married because he is 16 and I am 15 and we are still in school.

I know I couldn't raise the baby by myself. He and my parents say I should get an abortion, but I don't know if I could live with myself if I did that.—Under Pressure in Oklahoma

(A.) You say you can't decide. But as I see it, you have already decided. What you have not done is impressed upon your parents or your boy friend how important it is to you not to have an abortion.

Ask your parents to try to understand how damaging an abortion would be to you. You have already made one mistake and—for your own good—you must not make another.

You can go to a home, have the baby, and put it up for adoption. This will be the best course for you.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 7701. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Opening lead — 4 ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South didn't like that opening club lead which obviously was a singleton. In fact, he liked very little about his contract, but it was up to him to try to make it.

He led a low heart at trick two. West held the trick with his 10 and shifted to a diamond.

South won in dummy with the ace, discarded a heart and led dummy's last heart.

West won that trick with his jack and led a second diamond which South ruffed. Now South led a third heart and ruffed in dummy. Both opponents followed and South saw a little light at the end of the tunnel.

He played dummy's ace of trumps. East dropped the 10 and things looked much better. A second trump produced East's jack, South's queen and West's king. Another diamond was led and ruffed. Then South's nine of trumps pulled West's seven spot and South claimed his contract.

Raucci Pleads Innocent at Arraignment

KINGSTON—Former Town of Lloyd Zoning Inspector Basil Raucci, who is under indictment on three counts of official misconduct, the manager of a New Paltz tire store accused in connection with a $100,000 theft, and the owner of a Milton trucking company charged with having a stolen van were among several persons entering innocent pleas at arraignment proceedings in Ulster County Court on Monday.

Raucci, who was indicted earlier this month in connection with alleged action while he was a Lloyd official in 1973, pleaded not guilty before County Judge Raymond J. Mino Monday morning. His attorney, Joseph Torraca, requested an adjournament of 45 days to make motions. Raucci was released in his own recognizance.

Also arraigned Monday were:

• Orlando ("Sonny") D'Esposito, 45, of Route 44/55, Clintondale, manager of Radial Ride Tire Inc., of New Paltz, who was named last month in a three-count felony indictment in connection with the alleged theft of a trailer and merchandise, valued at $100,000, from a Massachusetts freight terminal. The trailer and merchandise were recovered in Highland last December. Following the entry of an innocent plea, D'Esposito's attorney, Lewis DiStasi Jr., requested and was granted a two-week adjournament.

• Salvatore Martorana of Box 301, Milton, owner of Salvatore Martorana Enterprises Inc., a Milton trucking firm, who was named earlier this month in a five-count indictment in connection with the alleged possession of a van stolen from New Jersey last year. Martorana pleaded innocent and his attorney, Torraca, was granted 45 days to make motions.

• George Lamoreaux Jr., 17, of 4 Adams Court, Hurley, who pleaded guilty to second degree burglary in connection with the theft of a coin collection valued at $35,000 last December from a Saugerties residence. Sentencing was put over until April 14, Lamoreaux was represented by Attorney Melvin Higgins.

• Terrance Carney, 23, of Saugerties, who was indicted last month on a charge of first degree assault in connection with an alleged New Year's Eve knife attack on a Saugerties woman.

Represented by Attorney Louis Patack, Carney pleaded innocent. The case was adjourned for 45 days.

• John Palen, 25, of 108 McEntee Street, Kingston, who was indicted last month on one count of third degree burglary in connection with a 1974 burglary in Kingston. Palen's attorney, Alan Zweibel, was granted 45 days during which to make motions following the entry of an innocent plea on behalf of the defendant.

Furbush: 'We'll Get It Done'

KINGSTON—Although the Driftwood Floating Theater is floating again, Capt. Edward C. Furbush has precious little time to relax.

"We'll repaint her and and begin fixing up the inside," he said. "It won't be any small job, but we'll get it done."

If anyone doubts the captain's perservance, check back to Jan. 24 when the Driftwood plunged to the bottom of the Rondout Creek. Furbush insisted from the start that the Showboat would be refloated, after several earlier failures, his prediction came true Sunday.

It took the combined efforts of paid and volunteer firemen from more than a dozen area companies to remove the water from the Driftwood's hold Sunday. The bulk of the work was performed by two eight-inch stationary pumps donated by private businesses, and fire engines from East Kingston and Ulster Hose, Excelsior Hose and the Kingston Fire Department.

Within 30 minutes after the pumps were first revved up, the Driftwood showed signs of rising. By 8:30 p.m., some five hours after the operation began, the Showboat sat high, but not quite dry.

The refloating operation succeeded Sunday, where it had failed twice before. What apparently separate Sunday's success from earlier failures were the efforts of skin divers Richar Shook and Peter Kelly, who spent most of Saturday stuffing opened seams with bits of mattress and lining the hull with a 100-foot-long strip of plastic. Those additional measures made the hull virtually watertight, and allowed the pumps to remove the water faster than it flowed into the hold.

The Showboat's problems began Jan. 24 while it was locked into its mooring at the foot of Broadway by ice more than a foot thick in the creek. The pressure of that ice against her starboard side forced the Driftwood to list to port, allowing water to flow in through open seams above the water line.

Furbush said Monday that the hull has not been damaged and that there is no need for repairs below the water line. "There's nothing wrong with the hull at all," said Furbush.

Considerable work, whoever, will have to be performed inside the floating theater, which has been under wafer for almost two months. All of the theater's seats will have to be replaced, and other interior repairs will commence when things dry out.

"We had hoped to open June 1," said the captain, "but we might be a little late."

Help for Heart Fund

The Student Council of M. Clifford Miller School in Lake Katrine raised more than $200 for the Heart Fund with its second "Sweetheart" Dance recently. Here, King John Petramale (L) and Queen of Hearts Meg Allen turn over the proceeds to Reg Lawlis, Kingston Heart Fund chairman. Heart Fund volunteers to date have raised $3,482 toward the group's $8,500 goal, Lawlis said. (Freeman photo)

100 New Mid-Town Trees; Opening Bids on April 1

KINGSTON—City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco will open bids on the planting of 100 trees in the midtown section of Kingston, April 1 at his office at City Hall at 2 p.m.

The project, estimated to cost $20,000, is another phase of the code enforcement program in mid-town and will be paid for with federal funds.

Three types of trees will be planted—honey locust, Norway maple and pin oaks.

Streets include the west side of Prospect between Van Buren and St. James (15 trees), the east side of Prospect Street between Liberty and St. James (eight trees), the west side of Furnace Street between Henry and Franklin Streets (three trees) and the west side of Sterling Street between Henry and Cedar Streets (five trees). All trees in that section will be honey locusts.

Norway maples will be planted in the second tree planting area, which covers the east side of Clinton Avenue between Henry Street and Liberty Street (eight trees), the north side of Henry Street between Broadway and Clinton Avenue (nine trees), the south side of Henry between Broadway and Prospect Street (10 trees), the north side of Franklin Street between Broadway and Clinton Avenue (six trees), the south side of Franklin between Broadway and Prospect Street (seven trees), the south side of Liberty Street between Clinton Avenue and Furnace Street (three trees) and the north side of Liberty between Clinton and Furnace (two trees).

Pin oaks will be planted in the third project area which covers the north side of Cedar Street between Sterling Street and Clinton Avenue (five trees), the south side of Cedar between Iwo Jima Lane and Clinton Avenue (15 trees) and the south side of Van Buren Street and between Furnace Street and Prospect Street (four trees).

City officials say that trees will be planted only with the permission of the property owners. Trees are planted between the sidewalk and the curbs but become the responsibility of the property owners. Canvassing of the owners in the project area is currently underway.

Blumenthal Won't Quit

ALBANY (UPI) — Albert H. Blumenthal has vowed to continue as Assembly majority leader despite his indictment on charges of perjury and accepting bribes.

"I intend to fight. I will not resign," the 47-year-old Manhattan Democrat declared Monday. "I will promptly beat the lying accusor in court and I will be vindicated."

The majority leader was indicted last Thursday on charges of perjury, unlawful misconduct and receiving illegal payments from nursing home magnate Bernard Bergman.

You can give them more with tax-free savings in a Custodian Account.

A Heritage Custodian Savings Plan is the way to transfer money to a minor (child, grandchild, godchild, etc.) without a lot of red tape. It gives the custodian complete control over the account while the money earns the highest return allowed by law.

The money mounts up faster because there is no tax on the interest earned. It provides a simple and direct way to transfer money to a minor without the complications or the expense of setting up a trust. And since the money is considered as belonging to the child, it is no longer taxable as part of the donor's estate.

It's the practical way to accumulate dollars for a minor—and to enjoy some major tax advantages. Stop by soon or send for a detailed brochure on the Heritage Custodian Savings Plan.

Marbletown Justice Resigns, Returns Pay

STONE RIDGE—Marbletown Town Justice Donald Paulson has resigned after less than three months on the job, something that isn't entirely uncommon.

Paulson has also refused to accept some $300 in salary and that doesn't happen every day.

A retired zone sergeant with the New York State Police, Paulson ran for town justice in Marbletown on the Republican ticket last November, narrowly winning election by about 40 votes over Frank Wuchte, the 25-year-old Democrat.

Paulson was sworn in Jan. 1, 1976 but on March 12 notified Supervisor Kenneth Smith by letter the "due to certain prevailing conditions now and in the near future I will be unable to fulfill my obligation."

Contacted by the Freeman, Paulson said his duties as manager of the Corner Store in Stone Ridge and as town justice were incompatible. "I could under the present circumstances probably remain in office for awhile longer," he wrote Smith, "however, I feel this does not do justice to either the town or my position."

In the same vein, Paulson goes on to say, "I could not in good conscience take any salary due me since the first of the year. While I had been sitting with Judge Diamond (Robert Diamond, the other town justice) on Friday evenings it has been he who has been doing the necessary paperwork.

"It is therefore my expressed wish that any and all monies due me be retained by the town."

Paulson had been paid at the rate of $1,700 a year or about $142 a month before taxes. He was paid quarterly and would have drawn his first check the end of this month.

Paulson closed by offering "my sincerest apologies to all the people who were instrumental in my being elected to office."

Smith said Paulson's resignation "came out of the blue." He said he has notified members of the town board and the political leaders in Marbletown—Lester Judd, the Republican chairman and Joseph LeFera, the Democratic chairman—for their recommendations on a replacement for Paulson.

A special election will be held this November to fill Paulson's unexpired term. He was elected to a four-year term last November.

New Budget Benefits Paltz

ALBANY—The New York State Legislature is expected to approve today or tomorrow a revised state budget that restores many of the cuts in aid to education and aid to localities threatened by Gov. Hugh Carey in January.

For Ulster County, the new state budget figure means continuation of the New Paltz Campus Learning Center for at least another year, an additional $240,000 in state aid to the nine local school districts, an increase in the amount of revenue sharing money for local governments from the figure proposed by Carey and additional funds for local town highway assistance.

Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., said today that the legislature is expected to pass the revised budget by Wednesday and that the governor's signature is anticipated. The new budget package was put together by fiscal committees in the State Senate and Assembly and includes expenditures some $17 million above the spending plan first proposed by Carey.

Perhaps the biggest local beneficiary will be the New Paltz Central School District, which faced an influx of 279 additional students in September because of the state's decision to close the State University College Campus School.

The new proposed budget, however, restores $1.2 million in funding for the state's campus schools that had been eliminated earlier by the governor. The additional money will allow the New Paltz Campus School to remain open through Aug. 31, 1977.

"We are delighted, we are extremely pleased," said Frank Hamilton, business administrator for the New Paltz school district. "We're very grateful to Assemblyman Hinchey and State Senator (Richard) Schermerhorn, R-40 Dist., for the work they did . . . Assemblyman Hinchey was particularly helpful with his appearances before the (Assembly) Ways and Means Committee."

Hinchey said that restoration of the campus school funds was the "most gratifying" aspect of the new budget plan. "We worked very hard for full restoration of the funding," he said. "We were able to convince the committee that the educational and economic impact of the school's closing would be very severe on the local community."

The assemblyman conceded, however, that the Campus School could face budgetary problems again next year. Asked if that possibility might prompt the local school district to begin work now on an alternative plan for 1977, Hamilton answered, "I think it would be better for us to work to keep the Campus School open, rather than have an alternative plan on the back burner."

New Paltz, however, won't be the only local school district to feel the legislature's benificence should the new budget package be approved. Under the plan, seven of the county's nine school districts are in line for state aid increases for 1976-77; none of the districts are scheduled for funding reductions.

According to figures provided by Hinchey, the local school districts will receive $240,816 more in state aid over last year, and about $1.2 million more than the amount proposed by Gov. Carey.

The tentative increases over 1975-76 for the nine county districts are: Ellenville, $85,094; Kingston, $56,029; Marlboro, $52,930; Wallkill, $17,482; Onteora, $14,822; Highland, $12,608 and New Paltz, $1,853. Rondout Valley and Saugerties are scheduled to receive the same state aid amounts as this year, according to Hinchey.

"It's not a lot of money," said Hinchey, "but at least it's better than losing aid."

Other proposed budget items that figure to have an impact locally include:

- Restoration of $85 million in local revenue sharing, which is still about $9 million less than localities are receiving this year. Hinchey said the additional money will help relieve the property tax burden.
- An additional $650,000 for the Bicentennial Barge project, which should give a shot in the arm to local Bicentennial plans. The barge is scheduled to stop in Kingston for several days this summer.
- Restoration of $5.8 million for local highway aid to towns. Ulster County should receive about $30,000 of that amount.
- No decrease in state aid to Ulster County Community College or SUC New Paltz.
- Elimination of $96,000 for a "distressed wildlife program" which was prompted by the death last year of a pet deer seized by the state from Mr. and Mrs Jack LaFalce of New Paltz.

Hudson Only Solution

Water Outlook Critical

(EDITOR'S NOTE—In the first installment of this two part series, Ulster County's possible role in providing additional water for the New York metropolitan region was examined. This concluding part discusses regional water problems and finances.)

By Jon Powers

NEW YORK CITY—During the great drought of the mid-1960s, more than 14 million people living in the Northeast were forced to restrict their water use to conserve dwindling supplies. During the 15 years that have passed since then, the demand for water has increased while the supply has remained constant.

Well aware that another drought could cause an even more severe health and safety crisis throughout the Northeast region, Congress in 1965 authorized the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to locate and identify new sources of water, and to devise a plan for the collection, conveyance and storage of sufficient water supplies to meet the requirements of the region into the 21st century.

The first phase of that 10-year project was completed just recently with issuance of the Corps' interim report. Although the study area involves a 200-mile wide, 1,000-mile long zone from Northern Maine to Southern Virginia, the interim report deals specifically with three areas where the water supply outlook is considered critical: the New York metropolitan area, eastern Massachusetts and Washington, D.C.

The New York Metropolitan area covers 26 counties in three states, including Ulster County. It will have a population of more than 26 million people who will require 5.1 billion gallons of water a day by the year 2020. Existing supplies can provide only 3.2 billion gallons a day.

The Corps' interim report leaves little doubt where most of that additional water will have to come from: the Hudson River represents the region's largest supply of fresh water, and its use is essential if the demand for water over the next 45 years is to be met.

There are, however, limited areas where large quantities of water can be withdrawn from the Hudson. It appears from the Corps report that the ideal location for a pumping facility is considered to be West Park in the Town of Esopus; Hyde Park in Dutchess County is listed as an alternative site.

Several different projects are available for obtaining water from the Hudson at West Park. They include construction of an intake and pumping station which would remove the water from the river and then move it via an aqueduct to a storage and treatment facility in New Jersey; or construction of an intake facility and treatment plant so that the water could be pumped directly into the aqueducts which connect upstate reservoirs with New York City.

The Ashokan Reservoir in the Town of Olive also plays an important role in the Corps' blueprint for an adequate supply of water. One possible alternative, according to the Corps report, is to connect the reservoir with the West Park pumping station, which would skim water from the river during periods of high flow and pump it to the Ashokan when the water level there falls below safe limits.

Whatever plan is ultimately selected (if any plan is selected) by the Corps of Engineers and approved by Congress, it is going to cost a lot of money, and the localities that use the water will have to share in the expense.

The minimum capital cost at completion for a Hudson River diversion project is listed at just over $2 billion in the Corps report. Annual operating and maintenance costs for a West Park water intake facility would average about $44 million a year.

Since the Corps apparently figures that most of the Hudson water will be used by New York City and industrial users in New Jersey, they will share the greatest burden of paying for any system. Funding would presumably come from state and federal levels as well.

"Federal participation in water supply, presently limited to reimbursable construction, is under study and reevaluation," states the Corps' interim report, "and the precise form of cost sharing that would be most effective and equitable would depend on the particular program considered."

A public hearing on the Corps report will be held Friday, March 19 at 65 Liberty Street, New York City. It starts at 1 p.m.

Y Audit: It's All There

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON—A special audit of the Kingston YMCA's youth employment program administered by the recently resigned James Billups shows that "all funds are accounted for" and that there has been no loss of resources to the YMCA, or any programs under Y jurisdiction.

Following an executive committee meeting at the Y Monday afternoon, Wallace A. Pfeiffer, Y president, also stated that funds employed by the Y were audited as of Jan. 1. 1976 by the County's Intergovernmental Coordination Office headed by Robert C. Randall.

Randall said Monday that the county audit also showed that all funds were accounted for.

The latest Y audit, made by an independent CPA firm, was conducted by Leland Oathout and was prompted by Billups' resignation after having been the center of a controversy concerning money he first said he borrowed from the Ulster County Community Action Committee for a YMCA mini-bike program. Billups later said the money was for a private mini-bike program. Billups' resignation was effective March 9.

Asked if he planned another audit of Inter-governmental Coordination Office funds for the Y employment program, Randall said he "would take it under advisement."

He volunteered that there was "no phony list of names" of youths in the program and that all youngsters listed on the program's payroll exist and have been accounted for.

Robert Stubbs, executive director of the Y, echoed Randall's statement saying, "there are no ficticious names, we have delivered checks to every kid on the payroll."

Randall also indicated that since the funding program has been under scrutiny because of Billups' resignation, "certain safeguards have been put into effect and the entire program is being monitored."

Since Billups' resignation, Stubbs has taken over the administration of the Y-sponsored youth employment program, which is continuing without interruption.

Last year $400,000 was channeled from the federal government to the county Intergovernmental Coordination Office to the Y with about 120 youngsters on the payroll. Presently about 110 are enrolled.

Since its inception more than 2,000 poverty-level teenagers have taken part in the program, which provides not only jobs but counseling.

Billups had been employed by the Y since 1971 when he moved here from Cleveland. He was originally employed as community program director and was promoted to assistant general director in 1974. His salary was believed to have been in the $14,000 to $15,000 range.

Since Billups' resignation the Ulster County Community Action Committee has reorganized. The board now is reportedly investigating the charges and countercharges surrounding both the firing of UCCAC Executive Director David Joseph and the borrowing of money from the organization by Billups to finance programs at the YMCA.

Joseph's ouster came after he sought a $4,500 advance on his salary, allegedly to help finance a program at a former church on Abeel Street in which he and Billups were involved. When UCCAC Treasurer Mary Lou Rowland refused, she was fired by Joseph. Later she was reinstated.

Marlow Plan Presented, He Calls It "Unfair"

By Carl Graham

BOICEVILLE—Dr. Frank Marlow has been fired by the Onteora Board of Education and granted a stay by the State Education Department, but the issue is far from settled at the local level.

At an emotional five-hour meeting Monday night in Bennett Elementary School, the board outlined a four-part plan that would have left Marlow in office but would have stripped him of virtually all his powers. It called on him to furnish the board with copies of all his business correspondence; prohibited him from authorizing, spending or transfering district funds without board authorization; directed Dr. John Keough, the business administrator, to report directly to the board; and directed Keough to report directly to the board on the status of Proposition No. 1, the junior-senior high school renovation project that played a prominent part in the hearings against Marlow.

Marlow called the proposed actions a violation of his contract, state education law, and several board policy directives.

Donald Lawson, the board president, said the proposals were the board's attempt to clear up the superintendent's situation "so there is no question where the funds are going" and said the board had responsibility for the district's financial affairs.

Marlow called it "totally unfair" to prejudge him and said if he was guilty the proper time to act was after the commissioner of education decided his case.

The board approved the first and third items. The second, directing Marlow not to spend funds without board authorization, was tabled after several members noted that Board Attorney Alvin Moscowitz had not ruled on its legality.

The fourth item was passed unanimously after it was noted that Keough has been working on Proposition No. 1 for several months while Marlow was on a paid leave of absence.

Keough was then directed to do everything possible to save state aid on Proposition No. 1. and to make weekly written progress reports to the board.

Marlow's name cropped up again when the board took up the adoption of minutes of the February meeting. The minutes contained a statement by Lawson that the board had been unhappy with Marlow's performance as early as 1973 and had in 1974 given him permission to seek other employment.

W. Jack Kahn, former board president, objected to the statements and was supported by Charles Weidner, another former board member. Edna Hoyt also agreed, saying the statements did not reflect the feelings of all board members.

Marlow said the board was "perfectly satisfied" with his performance in 1974 but Howard Lewis denied this, saying "We talked of firing you." Former board

Wilson to Step Down

LONDON — In a surprise move that stunned the nation, Prime Minister Harold Wilson today announced his resignation effective as soon as his Labor party can elect a replacement — perhaps later this week.

The announcement, in a five-page statement from Wilson's office, came as a complete surprise. It staggered the stock market, weakened the pound and triggered dismay among British politicians and public alike.

"My period as prime minister has been longer than that of any of my peacetime predecessors in this country," the Wilson statement said. "No one should ask for more."

Another One for the Books

WASHINGTON — A $46,100 grant by the National Science Foundation to determine whether male drivers would honk their horns less if a scantily clad woman walked by their cars won the "Golden Fleece of the Month" for March.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who makes the monthly awards for the biggest, most ridiculous or most ironic example of government waste, said the official name of the NSF study was "Environmental Determinants of Human Aggression."

The National Science Foundation defended the experiment and said Proxmire had merely "pulled out a very small part of the whole study" for criticism.

More Grain for Soviets

WASHINGTON — President Ford says the Soviet Union may buy more American grain soon.

In a brief speech Monday to members of the Ohio Farm Bureau, after being introduced by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz as "a great friend" of American farmers, Ford noted the Russians already have purchased about 13 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn in the current marketing year and added:

Clashes Follow a Curfew

JERUSALEM — Riot police, wielding batons and firing tear gas, scattered hundreds of Arab protesters in the cobbled alleyways of East Jerusalem today in a shift of the focal point of Arab unrest on the occupied West Bank.

The clashes occurred hours after military authorities clamped a 24-hour curfew on the West Bank towns of Ramallah and Al Bira in the toughest government reaction yet to a six-week wave of street violence protesting Israeli rule.

A Warning for Sadat

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union reacted sharply today to the abrupt termination of the Soviet-Egyptian friendship treaty, warning Egyptian President Anwar Sadat it would hold him responsible for the consequences.

The denunciation was carried by the official Tass news agency in a English-language dispatch that also accused Sadat of having an unfriendly policy toward Moscow "for some time now."

'Fingers Still on Triggers'

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Rebel Moslem army units, bowing to Syrian pressure, backed away from an assault on the palace bastion of President Suleiman Franjieh today, but kept "their fingers on the triggers" until he resigns.

In Beirut, kidnap-murders and bloody clashes between Moslem and Christian militiamen claimed 43 lives, including a United Press International employe, and wounded nearly 100 in 24 hours.

The city slid further into anarchy after gunmen stormed Beirut's main jail and released about 700 prisoners—including murderers.

IRA Carrying Out Its War of Terror

LONDON (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army apparently has opened its threatened war of terror in Britain with a train bombing intended for hundreds of rush hour commuters in downtown London.

Seven persons were injured in the blast Monday. The blood-spattered bomber shot and killed a train driver who chased him from the wreckage and wounded a second man.

Police cornered the gunman in a freight yard.

"You English bastards," he shouted at them, then shot himself in the chest and slumped to the ground.

The blast came three days after the IRA warned the British: "You have labeled us terrorists. Now we will act as terrorists."

The wounded gunman, under heavy guard at a London hospital today, was listed in critical condition following emergency chest surgery.

Police sources said the gunman, apparently Irish, was identified tentatively as Frank McGuinness. But Scotland Yard planned to issue a picture to try to establish a positive identification.

Scotland Yard today warned commuters their trains and buses were front line targets in the IRA's bombing campaign.

"This must be a warning to the general public that they must regard themselves as their own security officers," said a Scotland Yard spokesman.

The five-pound bomb, concealed in a duffel bag, apparently was meant to detonate underground in central London during heavy commuter traffic, police said, but began smoldering as the train left above ground from West Ham station in east London.

An injured subway passenger told police the man threw the bomb down in the coach seconds before it exploded.

"I think we have got to accept that this is an Irish Republican Army bomb that exploded prematurely," said Commander Roy Habershon, head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad.

The blast ripped open the first coach and jolted the train to a stop.

Police said the bomber, his face covered with blood, staggered onto the track, chased by the train driver, Joseph Stephens, a 34-year-old West Indian.

Stephens was shot to death and a second man who joined the chase was wounded.

Keith Latch, who lives next to the train station, said he ran from his house when he heard the blast and saw the blood-covered man running along the track.

"I was going to help him but then he drew a gun on me ... a policeman nearby said 'Get down'. There was a lot of shouting

"Then he fired three shots, everything went quiet, and then I heard a policeman say they had got him," he said.

More than 60 persons have been killed and about 700 injured in IRA bombing campaigns in mainland Britain since August, 1972.

The attacks resumed a month ago after the death of IRA hunger striker Frank Stegg in an English jail.

Deny LBJ Was Conned

BOSTON (UPI) — Five soldiers say the Army did not con Lyndon Johnson nearly eight years ago when the former President showed up at Ft. Bragg, N.C., to say goodbye to the Vietnam-destined 82nd Airborne Division.

In an article entitled, "The Day the President Got Conned," the Armed Forces Journal reported earlier this year that the President said his farewell to the wrong troops on Feb. 17, 1968 — that actually the men he shook hands with had just returned from Vietnam.

But five members — two generals and three paratroopers — of the 82nd Airborne told the Boston Globe the Journal story was false. They said they shook hands with Johnson and immediately flew to Chu Lai for combat duty.

The Journal maintained its story was true.

"We are sticking with the story. I checked it out," said Benjamin Schemmer, Journal editor and publisher and author of the story. "Even though a few units went off in flights to Vietnam that day, a large number of the men rounded up to listen to LBJ did not go."

They Walked In, New Crime Began

By Matt Spireng

ELLENVILLE—An incident that started out as a burglary became a robbery Monday as an elderly Ulster Heights couple walked in on the break-in at their son's house in Ellenville and were confronted with a rifle.

Ellenville Village Police said Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kroop came upon two burglars in the 5 Warren Street residence of their son, Bernard Kroop, at about noon.

The burglars, who apparently heard the Kroops enter the house, had covered themselves with a drape and armed themselves with a rifle belonging to Bernard Kroop, police said. They ordered Mrs. Kropp to face the wall, and had her husband lie on the floor while they bound his hands with wire. They took $150 from the couple and fled, leaving the rifle behind.

Kroop freed himself and called police.

Police said they have no description on the two robbers.

Does It Himself

West Strand redeveloper Robert C. Johnson, whose building at 29-31 West Strand has been the scene of some vandalism and one burglary of late, captured a 17-year-old youth in the building Monday morning.

The youth, Joseph Howard of 1 Wurts Street, had allegedly broken into the building and ripped out copper piping, police said.

Johnson, who arrived at the building at about 9:40 a.m., spotted the youth inside and gave chase, capturing him at the rear of the structure. Howard was charged with third degree burglary and second degree criminal possession of stolen property.

Authorities said the youth allegedly had in his possession several items taken in a previous burglary at the West Strand building. He was jailed pending a court appearance today.

Upset

A Brooklyn woman who was apparently upset because her companion was charged with driving while intoxicated early today by Highland State Police was herself charged with fourth degree criminal mischief after she allegedly proceeded to break venetian blinds and damage walls in a bathroom at the Highland State Polce station.

Police said the woman, Susan Prack, 19, had gone into the bathroom while they were processing her companion, Eugene Meyer, 24, of Wappingers Falls, on the DWI charge at about 2 a.m.

Both were released pending future court action.

Flash Fire

Officials at Rotron Inc. in Woodstock are attempting to determine the cause of a flash fire Monday afternoon in a laboratroy which resulted in burn injuries to technician Ted Geertsema.

Gertsema, whose clothes caught fire as he was checking a pressure gauge on an oxygen bottle, was listed in satisfactory condition today at Kingston Hospital.

"We're not sure yet what happened," a Rotron spokesman said.

Callaway Hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional hearing on charges President Ford's campaign manager, Howard Callaway, used improper influence to gain use of federal land for his Colorado ski resort has been set for April 6, the day of the New York primary.

Callaway reportedly "feels bad" about the developments which prompted him to step down Saturday while the charges are being investigated. But acting campaign manager Stuart Spencer told reporters he sees "no signs that it will have a political effect."

Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., chairman of the environment and land resources subcommittee which will investigate the allegations, said the matter should be resolved "as quickly as we can." He added:

"If the allegations that I have read in the papers and that I have seen on television are accurate, he clearly would appear from them to have attempted to use the influence of his office for private ends which I do not consider proper. But that's a big if."

'Dr. Marlow Plan'

member Peter Rakov supported Marlow, saying the meeting had ended "on a positive note."

Lawson said the board has asked the State Education Department for clarification of its directive putting Marlow back on the job pending a final ruling by the commissioner. Attorney John Clifton said he had been given two different interpretations of the directive by two lawyers in the SED legal division. Marlow and John Mower, the board vice president, disputed the meaning of the directive last week when Marlow attempted to return to work.

Irene Motrie said she had been told in Albany last week that the board must pass two resolutions at once to have Proposition No. 1 approved for some $44,000 in state aid. One would direct the board to either air condition a new art classroom in the high school or else declassify it as a classroom; the other would certify that the board would meet state requirements for lighting the junior-senior high school within the next five years.

The motions were not acted on after several board members said they objected to being rushed into an important decision. Keough said that estimates were that it would take about $189,000 to comply with the two resolutions, most of it for a costly rewiring of the whole school.

Lewis quoted a previous statement by Marlow that the board had offered to buy up his contract and said he had no recollection of such an offer. "This board never committed one dollar of the taxpayer's money to such an offer," he maintained.

Marlow maintained that the board had made such an offer.

The board heard the first reading of a change in the rules for partial school tax exemptions for senior citizens, changing ownership requirements from five to two years to comply with a state directive. Final action is to come at the board's next meeting April 12 in the Phoenicia Elementary School.

Illinois Could Be End for Some Hopefuls

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois, the state that has been on the winning side in November for more than half a century, tried its hand today at choosing the 1976 presidential candidates

The Illinois presidential primary, a minor factor in past election years despite the state's position as one of the top five electoral prizes in the nation, shaped up this year as a possible knockout round for contenders in both parties

President Ford was the consensus choice to score his fifth straight win over Ronald Reagan in the Republican primary Reagan's own people said they'd be happy with 40 per cent of the vote here

Jimmy Carter, George Wallace, Sargent Shriver and Fred Harris contested for the Democratic vote, with Carter a soft favorite

Some 2 5 million or more voters were expected to cast ballots in 12 hours

It was expected to be the biggest turnout of the young primary season Voter interest centered on a struggle for the Democratic nomination for governor between incumbent Daniel Walker and Secretary of State Michael Howlett, the favorite of Mayor Richard Daley's Chicago organization

The forecast was for early spring Midwest weather — wet and cold, with snow and slippery roads possible in the populous northern areas

The Illinois primary was a double-ballot affair There was a preferential "beauty contest" which had no effect other than campaign public relations, and another vote to select the 155 Democratic and 96 Republican convention delegates at stake

It was not hard to spot the candidates most in jeopardy The rhetoric of their campaigns identified them

Reagan ended his strong campaign here during the weekend Supporters in two of the four states where the former California governor already has been whipped by Ford accused the President of taking advantage of his official position for political purposes

On the Democratic side, Sargent Shriver lashed out at frontrunner Carter, accusing him of using a Richard Nixon-type strategy Wallace, peppered by questions about the credibility of his campaign after losing to Carter in Florida, complained of opposition "propaganda '

Reagan, his faltering campaign half a million dollars in debt, had all but written off Illinois He hoped for some sort of comeback next Tuesday in North Carolina

But two backers, Florida campaign manager Tommy Thomas and Gov Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire, went public Monday with complaints about Ford's tactics in their states

Thomson accused Ford of making 'empty promises ' in his campaign there and Thomas charged the President, by promising federal construction projects in Florida, had "bought the win with taxpayers money "

"This naked power was translated into votes at the polls,' Thomas said

Shriver, who has finished far down the list in three of the four primaries so far, accused Carter of straddling issues and dodging responsibility for the words and deeds of his campaign supporters

"It didn't catch up with Richard Nixon, ' Shriver said "He made a career out of doing that in the United States

Wallace was less direct, but he told reporters at the start of a final day of Illinois campaigning he was being plagued by 'propaganda about his political record and doubts being cast on his physical condition

The Alabama governor said he never has been against anything but big government" and while I am unable to jump over stone fences I am in good general health "

Carter, more serene than his opponents, delivered what his aides called a major foreign policy speech to wind up his Illinois effort — but managed to get off one zinger at Henry Jackson who is not competing here

Carter, who said he favored detente but with harder bargaining with the Russians, said he believes Jackson is much more bellicose much more distrustful of the Soviet Union' than his public statements indicate

Plot Triggers Security Call

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Police Chief Joseph McNamara says information about an alleged plot to kill President Ford and Ronald Reagan at the Republican national convention shows the need for federal funds for convention security

McNamara said security planning for the convention Aug 16 20 has been hampered because federal officials have failed to answer the city's request for $2 6 million The money is being sought from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration

First word of the alleged plot came in a Chicago Tribune story Monday FBI Director Clarence Kelley said in Washington the "unsubstantiated information" had been received from an informant and had been turned over to the Secret Service

The Tribune said Justice Department sources disclosed the conspiracy was in early planning stages, and "it reportedly was to be carried out by a 'commando style assassination team' from the Bay area (of San Francisco) "

McNamara said Monday, "The training and the coordination of the various police efforts (for the convention) are being hindered because we do not have any knowledge about what funds will be available "

"There's no doubt that the delay (in funding) is impairing our ability to get ready for the convention

"We simply can't go any further in getting ready for the convention until we learn how much will be available," he said

McNamara said he was surprised that neither his office nor local FBI or Secret Service officials were notified of the alleged plot

But, he added, "In one sense we were not surprised at the possibility of such plots because I mentioned some three to four months ago in a good planning effort for the convention, we anticipate all eventualities, including the possibility of terrorist activities

Patty's Parents May Testify

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prosecution concluded its rebuttal testimony in Patricia Hearst's trial with a psychiatrist who described her as a frustrated and angry "rebel in search of a cause" who willingly embraced the hatred and violence of her kidnapers

The 22-year-old newspaper heiress was swept up in the terrorism of the Symbionese Liberation Army and took part in the robbery of the Hibernia Bank of her own free will, Dr Harry Kozol, 70, testified Monday.

But the Boston psychiatrist, who interviewed her on five occasions in her cell in January, said Miss Hearst's conversion was purely a matter of circumstance He called it a "terrible, terrible misfortune" that in the midst of her search, she fell into the hands of the SLA

"She was ripe for the plucking," Kozol said "The cause found her "

Kozol and three minor witnesses wound up the prosecution's rebuttal case Chief defense attorney F Lee Bailey said he may call Miss Hearst's parents to the stand

After final arguments and the judge's instructions, the case was expected to go to the jury Friday

Kozol spent six hours on the stand Monday finishing his testimony, which had been interrupted when Miss Hearst came down with influenza Thursday, and then undergoing sharp cross examination by Bailey

Kozol said it was his opinion that in the weeks before the kidnaping she became "disenchanted" with her fiance, Steven Weed, with whom she shared an apartment, and felt trapped at the prospect of marrying him

"This girl who was kidnaped was a bitter angry, confused person — angry at authority angry at power, angry at hypocrisy the hypocrisy of Steven Weed who talked social reform and liberalism but was becoming more reactionary than anything she had heard at home or from anyone else," Kozol said

"She was a girl with no place to go She was a rebel in search of a cause or reaching for a cause, but the cause found her — a terrible, terrible misfortune that of all the causes she might have found she was captured and exposed to the hatred and violence of this group '

Bailey accused Kozol of being hostile to the Hearst family

Kozol denied Bailey s charges he had told an assistant prior to his interviews of Miss Hearst that her parents were "dangerous and venal and had made disparaging remarks about Mrs Catherine Hearst, the defendant's mother

He called Bailey's charges preposterous and under later prosecution questioning, said he had never discussed the Hearst case with the assistant, who he said he fired last fall for unspecified reasons

Bailey told a reporter the assistant, Dr Nicholas Groth, would be called as a witness

Bailey remarked to Kozol that Miss Hearst was a victim of the SLA "who is now sitting in this courtroom just as they wanted

$2,175 Contributed to Ulster Scholarship Fund

STONE RIDGE—Members of the Board of Trustees at Ulster County Community College Monday night were informed that $2,175 has been contributed to date to the 1976 College Scholarship Fund.

Reporting on the contributions was Louis Berger, of Ellenville, chairman of the board's scholarship committee. The $2,175 is in addition to the interest-bearing scholarship trust accounts established in prior years by individuals in the community. Included in the $2,175 is $300 donated by members of the UCCC faculty.

Berger explained that letters seeking scholarship contributions are in the process of being sent to various friends of the college and local businesses that either supply the college or receive some benefit from college-age people. Last year, approximately $11,000 was awarded in the form of student scholarships. Berger expressed his hope that that amount could be increased realizing the number of students applying for assistance and the pervading economic conditions that are making it even more difficult for deserving students to complete their education.

Dr. Donald Katt, of the college staff, reported on a suggested procedure for the incorporation of a foundation at the college. The College Foundation would be similar to a private college's endowment fund. It would provide a means for the college to accept individual gifts and bequests that would be used for the advancement of the educational purposes and development of the college and for student financial assistance and scholarships. He explained that foundation constitutions and/or by-laws had been received from nine other community colleges which have foundations and reported these now are being studied by the development and fund-raising committee.

At the board meeting, the trustees reappointed Peggy DeStefano, an instructor of Criminal Justice at UCCC, as affirmative action officer and coordinator of Title IX at the college. She originally was appointed to the post in October, 1975.

In making the reappointment, the board of trustees reaffirmed the college's long-standing intent, and position that no person shall, on the basis of sex or race, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefit of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program of activity. This applied to employment, as well as admission of students.

The trustees also appointed James Bugonian, of Accord, as director of financial aids and John Frampton, of Ulster Park, as admissions adviser.

Trustees attending the meeting included Mrs. George F. Bushnells, Kingston, chairman; Dr. William J. Hageny, New Paltz, secretary; Louis Berger, Ellenville; Anne R. Donovan, Kingston; Raymond W. Garraghan, Kingston; S. Robert Kelder, Stone Ridge, Lynne Millson, High Falls and Richard P. Smith, Saugerties.

Economy Cuts in Rondout

STONE RIDGE—A change in elementary school district lines in the Rondout Valley Central School system is being recommended to the school board by Superintendent James O'Connell who said it is warranted by economics, appropriate building utilization and preferred reduction of the school bus fleet.

O'Connell will present his proposal to the school board Tuesday night at 8 at the high school library. It will mean dropping six elementary teachers from the payroll and will necessitate changing the district lines "a few blocks."

The plan would distribute the students more equitably through the district and enable class size to be slightly reduced. Some classes now have as little as 16 students while other pupils are housed in modular buildings which O'Connell would like to see phased out.

Expansion Is Approved

KINGSTON—The city's Zoning Board of Appeals has given its approval to a variance allowing the expansion of the Gov. Clinton Hotel from 72 apartments to 96.

The board met March 10 at city hall to act on eight petitions, approving six and tabling two.

A request by Joan B. Isgro to erect a sign at her 366 Albany Avenue real estate office larger than allowed was tabled for further study.

The board approved a petition establishing a Cumberland Farms food store at 268-280 Broadway but took no action on the firm's request to establish gas pumps on site.

Among the petitions approved were those from:

- Joseph Wolfeil to set up a knick knack shop at 6 North Street;
- John H. Deegan to establish a filling station at a carwash he plans to build next to the Uptown Parking Garage off Clinton Avenue extension;
- R. W. Garraghan for a gas station at the former Sears filling station at Kingston Plaza;
- Benedictine Hospital for an addition and an elevator at its Mary's Avenue complex.

County Economic Committee Must File Before June 30

KINGSTON—The Overall Economic Development Committee which is charged with compiling an economic program for Ulster County before June 30 has been appointed by Legislative Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8.

Savago tapped Richard Mathews of Kingston as chairman of the committee. Others include: Charles Lawson, Peter Ferante and Richard Rothman, representing the business community; James Melbert, Anthony Koenig, Joseph Carfizzi, James Thompson, Geddy Sveikauskas, Dr. Donald Katt, Joseph Benjamin and Arthur Mulligan, representing service groups. Also Legislators Charles Scala, R-Dist. 3, James Gilpatric, D-City, Vernon Frost, R-Dist. 6, and Wawarsing Supervisor Franklin Sahler representing government.

John Mulvin will represent labor, Margaret Randolph, minorities and consumers and Ethel Billups, representing the community's unemployed.

On the basis of unemployment data, the U.S. Department of Commerce has determinded that Ulster County statistically qualifies for designation as a redevelopment area under the Public Works and Economic Development Act. The function of the public works program is to help provide public works and development facilities needed to attract new industey and encourage business expansion. New industry means new jobs; for every 100 industrial jobs created or attracted, an additional 68 jobs are created, but without adequate facilities industry cannot be invited to locate in Ulster County, Savago said.

The Committee will be the main economic development contact for the Economic Development Authority and other relevant state and federal agencies.

The initial report must be sufficiently detailed to provide a good background picture of the area, for example—population, labor force, natural and man-made resources, and problems that retard growth. It must also outline economic development and county improvement goals, and provide a detailed description of the action programs that will be developed in order to get the country's economy moving again, improve county facilities and services and the most improtant area of the report will be to provide a basis for continued planning and development programs for our county in the years ahead.

Board Probe Asked

KINGSTON—After several months of "endeavoring to examine the records of Kingston School District in accordance with the rules of the Public Information Act," the We've Had It Taxpayer's Association (WHITA) has requested the New York State Commission of Investigation in New York City to "investigate."

WHITA specifically would like to know:

- What the expenditures were from the site acquisition fund over the past six years and what contracts and expenses there were for engineers and architects?
- What the details were leading to the forced resignation of former business manager, Ira Saw?
- Why the school board moved ahead with acquisition of real property without appraisal, soil tests or a feasibility study?
- What questionable arrangements there were with a sole real estate broker in their employ who collected fees from sellers of property to the school district?
- Why there have been "extraordinary deposits of very large amounts with the Rondout National Bank?
- What engineering fees were paid to the firm of the brother of the chairman of the school building committee?

WHITA said that its "efforts to obtain the information have been impossible since it was only allowed to examine the munutes of meetings." WHITA said it has requested that it be allowed to examine vouchers and that the request was denied by Superintendent of Schools Louis A. Salzmann.

Walter Donnaruma, president of WHITA is asking the commission to make an investigation in order that "the proper facts be revealed to the public."

Inaction Dismays Chapter

BOICEVILLE—The Catskill Mountains chapter of Trout Unlimited has expressed dismay over the cancellation of two hearings last week concerning water releases from the New York City owned reservoirs in the Catskill region.

Friday's hearing in Boiceville was cancelled Thursday afternoon after Assembly Majority Leader Albert H. Blumenthal was reinicted by a New York City grand jury for the alleged receipt of bribes Thursday. A hearing scheduled for Binghamton was also canceled.

Edward Ostapczuk, spokesman for Trout Unlimited, said he has been told by a spokesman for Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101) that the hearings will be rescheduled.

"Unfortunately," said Ostapczuk, "well over 100 people and organizations were contacted through the Catskill Waters coalition concerning the hearings and with such short notice of cancellation they all could not be notified."

The hearings were scheduled by the Assembly Sub-Committee on Wildlife Management.

New Approach To Italian

STONE RIDGE — A new approach to learning Italian is being offered by Ulster County Community College at the Stone Ridge campus.

"Italian — A Friendly Introduction" is a credit-free course in which natural learning methods are used. Music games and challenging conversational techniques help the student to acquire an immediate feeling of familiarity with the language.

Instructor Maria Salvatore feels that learning a new language should not emphasize dry text-book techniques but should be a creative, enjoyable experience. The course is offered on two levels.

Level One is for those who want to learn Italian from scratch. It is offered on Tuesday evenings beginning March 16.

Level Two is for those who have a little familiarity with the language but do not consider themselves advanced students. Level Two will include a review of Level One so that the entire class will start out from the same point. It is offered on Thursday evenings, beginning March 18.

For further information on either of these courses, interested persons should contact the Office for Continuing Education at the college 687-7621-Ext. 11 or call Ms. Salvatore 255-1769.

The Blood Bank Merger

Leave it to the Ulster County Blood Bank to make a tempest out of a teapot.

Instead of directly telling its more than 15,000 members that a merger with the Greater New York Blood Program is being mulled, directors of the Blood Bank sneaked a legal notice in the Daily Freeman about an "informational meeting," to be held on Friday, March 12.

Now really. What member of the Blood Bank would expect an informational meeting to be advertised in the legal section of a newspaper?

When the Freeman tried to publicize the story about the meeting the day before it was scheduled to take place, Henry Groopler, president of the Blood Bank, curtly remarked, "you'll have to wait until the meeting takes place."

We are not going to judge the pros and cons of a merger. However, the Freeman does take exception to the tactics of the Blood Bank's board of directors in trying to hold a public informational meeting with as few members as possible present.

By law, every member of the Blood Bank is a member of the corporation. Informational meetings are for members. Let's hope that the next time the Blood Bank directors decide to hold an informational session, they make sure the news gets out so that everyone has a chance to attend.

Private Land Use

Dear Editor:

Early last February a group of citizens from the beleaguered Adirondack region met with members of the legislature to protest against the actions and furtherance of the Adirondack Park Agency. Accompanying them was Mr. William Hunt of Sidney, N.Y., President of the Constitutional Rights Association. Meeting with Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey of Saugerties, N.Y., Mr. Hunt questioned the wisdom of reintroducing private land use control legislation for the Catskill region during this session of the legislature.

In his reply, Assemblyman Hinchey indicated that he has in no was been shown that the northern counties in the region do not accept his idea, and that in his view, land is the common property of all of the people. Therefore, he intends to reintroduce such legislation.

The concept of private ownership of land, or real estate, was fundamental to the original social philosophy of our country. The incentives that accompany it give rise to enterprise and effort that support prosperity. In modern America, as they were in Colonial America, land owners are a numerical minority, but they represent perhaps more than any other group the freedom of endeavor so fondly eulogized by our political and non-political leaders in this Bicentennial year.

There is a tendency for the present generation of liberally educated youth to fall easy prey to socialistic blandishments and to ignore and even destroy the initiatives that have created a society in which education is available to so many. Mr. Hinchey, along with his liberal mentors and colleagues may well succeed in bringing about further reduction in the self-motivation and pride so lacking in our present welfare-oriented society.

At a time when our economic ills are so great it is with sadness that a letter must be written in opposition to a legislative program that will erode the state's tax base, render still another segment of the population eligible for welfare and expand governmental supervision of the populace. I am a land owner in the Northern Catskills who does oppose Mr. Hinchey and I encourage others to enter into this discussion.

Yours truly,
Stanley Christman

Love, for People

Dear Editor:

May I direct this letter to all of us, especially those that remember the pangs of war; the glories of war, and to those that think war and sensationalized violence is a HOLLYWOOD movie.

The youth that refused to go into the Vietnam War, refused possibly because: As much as we Mr. Hassit, as much as we LOVE AMERICA — maybe, just maybe they LOVE PEOPLE that much. Let us remember that the majority of them got an early education into today's barbarized business world by watching and meeting the immigrants of so many different countries. And it makes US realize that all sides have something good to offer/we already know that everyone has some bad!!!

As the world industrialized and grew the wings of modern technology—ideologies, like some of our antiquated laws remain constant. As the industrial giants start doing business with one another — their respective ideologies were put aside. Our oil magnates have "no alternative" but to do business with the Marxist regime in Angola since they have holdings there.

One more thing, past present and HOLLYWOOD soldiers; technology today has the ability to purify sea water to irrigate our deserts. How about modernizing the backward countries— imagine the jobs and monies made on all sides. All these countries seem to have the monies for war!!! If we can build complete cities in several years — why aren't we doing it with countries?

Let us not be so quick to condemn our youth that believed in the America that they were taught about in grade school. The arms race is only because nations have lost sight of a better way and everyone seems to be going along with it.

Get up and fight the TV. Knock out the hypnotized mugger that is attacking the little old ladies.

I may be ashamed about some things in America, but I AM A STILL PROUD AMERICAN.

Respectfully yours,
PHILIP GURRIERI,
Kingston

P.S. True Authority is accomplished with common-sense/not guns and fear. No Hollywood battlefields on the streets of OUR AMERICA.

Buchwald for President

Dear Editor:

I've made up my mind. The only man that will really cut through the hypocricy, the idiocy, the waste and the phonies is Art Buchwald. He's my man for president. He's honest, intelligent, he's been around Washington for a long time and he's funny. No matter what happens — recession, detente, Mideast, oil, Henry Kissinger — Art'll make us laugh.

Our bumbling administration is laughable but we're laughing with tears in our eyes. Art, on the other hand, will really send the juices going. No country will ever intimidate us with Buchwald at the helm. I can just see him facing Fidel and telling him how funny it is that big Russia sends little Cubans to the slaughter.

Art would make his motto "laugh and the world laughs with you," and the oil moguls would be laughing so hard, they wouldn't be able to offer payola to foreign governments. So we'd have honest corporations again.

That loveable, bug-eyed, funny, wise, witty, perceptive man in the White House would give the whole country a charge. It's a suggestion worth pondering.

Sincerely,
Sylvia Day,
Woodstock

Editor, The Freeman:
Dear Editor:

I believe that extra "lulu" payments, stipends or bonuses for legislators should be made unlawful and discontined this year. The salaries, expenses, travel pay, pension system and other fringe benefits are enough. If other areas of state government have to cut back, why not legislators?

A Dupe's Progress

Any student of his career would have to acknowledge that Representative Edward Koch of Manhattan is, whatever his ideological failings, a man of principle, and a first-class public servant.

The story begins with an organization called "U.S. Committee for Justice to Latin-American Political Prisoners." A connoisseur, running his tongue over such a name, would acknowledge the high probability that it is a Committee for Immunity for any Latin-American Leftist. The signers of the Committee's recent petition in behalf of Hugo Blanco, identified as "author, internationally known Peruvian peasant-union leader and refugee of the Chile coup," include such as Richard Fagan of Stanford, Richard Falk of Princeton, Congressman Michael Harrington, Tom Hayden of the SDS, and Sidney Lens. The only person missing from that list its Korpotkin, and then only because he is dead.

But Edward Koch, to whom the Committee wrote asking him to intercede with the State Department to get a visa for Hugo Blanco, reaches no premature conclusions. So the long correspondence began.

1. Dr. Benjamin Spock (the baby doctor) to Koch: "Dear Ed: I feel indignant about the State Department's denying admission to a speaker whom many want to hear, presumably because he will testify to the brutality of the repression in Chile, and to our government's complicity in bringing it into power. Kissinger has all the instincts of a thug, coated over with professional pomposity. Sincerely, Benjamin Spock, MD."

2. Koch to Kissinger. Why aren't you giving a visa to Hugo Blanco?

3. McCloskey of State to Koch. "Mr. Blanco, a Peruvian citizen presently residing in Sweden, is ineligible for a visa under section 212 (a) (23) (F) of the Immigration and Nationality Act. A decision as to whether to recommend a waiver of his ineligibility to the Attorney General is receiving active consideration."

4. Koch to Spock ("Dear Ben"). Says he has written to Kissinger. And gives his own rules on the matter. "I take the position that with the exception of terrorists who publicly advocate murder in pursuit of their goals, those who want to have a full and free discussion of ideas should not be impeded in coming to this country for that purpose."

5. Koch to McCloskey. Why isn't the State Department recommending a waiver to let Blanco come in?

6. McCloskey to Koch. Because Blanco's "previous terrorist activities" led the State Department to "conclude it would not be in the public interest to authorize his temporary admission into the United States."

7. Koch to McCloskey. Hey, what exactly do you mean by Blanco's "previous terrorist activities?"

8. McCloskey to Koch. We're not allowed to divulge classified information.

9. Koch to McCloskey. That's a hell of a note. You aren't allowed to divulge secret information, but you go ahead and act on it. "I urge you to reconsider this matter."

10. McCloskey to Koch. We can't give you much of the information we have on Blanco, which is his declaration that he took full and sole responsibility for the murders of three policemen which occurred during a raid he and his followers made on a police station in Peru during 1962. The Congressional Record of December 19, 1975, contains further information about his affiliation with the Fourth International and other groups, as well as quotations from his writings in which he has advocated the use of violence." Under the law, he simply cannot be given a visa.

11. Koch to Spock. Summarized McCloskey's letter. And adds: "In your original letter to me your reference to Henry Kissinger was 'has all the instincts of a thug, coated over with professional promposity.' My question is how would you now characterize Hugo Blanco?"

12. Spock to Koch. "Thank you for looking into the Hugo Blanco issue. I have no idea where the truth lies. The plea for his entry came from a responsible organization."

13. WFB to Koch. Nice going.

14. WFB to Spock. "Dear Ben: You are the incarnation of the dupe. And since you talk a lot of the time about justice, you will presumably be sending an apology to Henry Kissinger. I'd appreciate receiving a copy. Best. Bill."

Congressmen Rewards

WASHINGTON— On Capitol Hill, some legislators seem to make it their business to see that the banks are not deprived. Those who go along with the banking lobby often are rewarded with campaign contributions.

Already the commercial bankers' political arm, which goes by the acronym BANKPAC, has quietly passed out donations to almost half of the members of the House Banking Committee.

The contributions coincided with a lobbying drive by the commercial bankers against reforms, which would allow mutual savings banks and credit unions to expand their services. This would make them more competitive.

To prevent this, BANKPAC has handed out thousands of dollars in campaign contributions to key Senators and Congressmen. The recipients include at least 17 members of the House Banking Committee which is considering the banking reforms. Among them are:

Representatives Richard Kelly, R-Fla., $1,500; Albert Johnson, R-Pa., $1,200; Jerry Patterson, D-Calif., $1,150; Les AuCoin, D-Ore., $1,000; Willis Gradison, D-Ohio, $1,000; William Moorhead, D-Pa., $600; Stephen Neal, D-N.C., $600; Carroll Hubbard, D-Ky., $500; Butler Derrick, D-S.C., $300.

Also John Conlan, R-Ariz., $300; Philip Hayes, D-Ind., $200; Gladys Spellman, D-Md., $150; David Evans, D-Ind., $100; Jim Blanchard, D-Mich., $100; John LaFalce, D-N.Y., $100 and Mark Hannaford, D-Calif., $200.

Another $100 was given to Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., who just gave up his seat on the Banking Committee. Rep. Joseph Minish, D-N.J., has also been singled out for a donation, but the money hasn't yet been delivered.

Apparently, the conflict didn't bother the committee members. BANKPAC chief William Glassford acknowledged to our associate Bob Owens: "I don't know anybody who has turned us down."

The House Banking Committee is supposed to protect the public, but many committee members seem to work for the bankers.

MISSING AMERICANS — At least nine American citizens are still missing in Cyprus. The State Department has admitted privately that they are probably casualties of the bloody 1974 Turkish invasion.

There is suspicion that at least one 17-year-old American youth died in a Turkish prison after he was kidnaped from his home in Cyprus. The Turkish-Cypriot soldiers allegedly ignored the U.S. passports which the family produced.

A private State Department report to Rep. Don Riegle, D-Mich., a member of the powerful House International Relations Committee, concedes there are "nine American citizens still unaccounted for out of 24 originally listed as missing.

"Our embassies in Ankara and Nicosia have given top priority to these remaining cases, but, unfortunately, we have not been successful in clarifying their status."

In its quest for information, the State Department spoke with a Turkish-Cypriot leader, Rauf Denktash, who told them bluntly the nine are "probably dead." State advised Riegle "there is a strong presumption that this is true."

Greek sources suggest that the Americans were killed by the Turks. A Turkish Embassy spokesman says he, too, thinks the nine are dead. But he insisted they were killed either accidentally or fighting for the Cypriot Greeks.

This has been challenged by Greek journalist Elias Demetracopoulos who has been conducting an investigation into the disappearance of 17-year-old Andreas Kassapis. A family passport and birth certificate establish that the youth is an American citizen, born in Detroit.

His ailing Cypriot father, in need of a warmer climate, returned with his family to Cyprus in 1967. When the Turks invaded Cyprus, according to a signed statement by the father, the family tried to flee to the U.S. Embassy in Nicosia 12 miles away. But they were blocked by Turkish tanks and turned back.

They displayed the American flag, which most Turkish troops respected. But on Aug. 20, 1974, the family was arrested by troops who ignored the family passports, ripped down the flag and punched the father in the stomach.

Young Andreas and his sister's fiance were hauled away on a tractor. That's the last the family saw of them. The elder Kassapis was told by Turkish Cypriots that the two "were taken away by Turkish military forces."

As confirmation, homebound Cypriot Greeks reported that the fiance had shouted to them from a prison in Turkey, asking them to contact the father of Andreas Kassapis. After inquiries from the U.S. embassy, Andreas' name was listed by the Turks as one of he students to be freed. But he was not among the students who were released.

The State Department is still pressing, but the Turkish spokesman told us with finality: "We have no Americans in Turkey or Cyprus."

ILLINOIS ODDS — Political oddsmaker Jimmy the Greek Snyder, who correctly picked President Ford as a 2-to-1 favorite to defeat Ronald Reagan in the Florida primary, has now made the President an overwhelming 20-to-1 favorite in today's Illinois primary.

On the Democratic side, Jimmy mistakenly made George Wallace a slight favorite over Jimmy Carter in Florida. Nevertheless, the Greek again rates Wallace as a 2-to-1 favorite to get more Illinois delegates than Carter. Running ahead of both of them in the delegate quest, as Jimmy figures the odds, will be Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill.

This has nothing to do with the presidential preference contest, a meaningless popularity poll, which Jimmy expects Wallace to win with a slight edge over Carter.

Ford vs. Premier Castro

WASHINGTON — Deepening penetration into black Africa by Fidel Castro's Cuba with Moscow's diplomatic and, if needed, military support is now seen at high levels of the Ford administration as the biggest Communist threat anywhere to tip the world power balance.

Intense briefings of President Ford on Cuba's sensational success in Angola and its implications have just been completed. Consequently the President is now considering a major effort — possibly following a foreign policy speech — to make a willfully obtuse Congress understand Castro's desperately dangerous gamble which, so far, has paid flittering dividends.

The Soviet-Cuban axis so successful in Angola seemed strengthened during the recent Soviet Communist party congress. As part of that strengthening, Prime Minister Castro quietly took to Moscow Osmani Cienfuegos, top African expert in the Cuban Communist party.

While there, they conferred secretly with black nationalist leaders of the South West Africa Peoples' Organization, which desperately wants Cuban help in its drive for independence of Namibia from South Africa.

Intimate collaboration between Havana and Moscow now evident in Cuba's long-range commitment to Africa has ended Castro's earlier worry that his 12,000 to 14,000 troops in southern Africa might be stranded at the end of an extremely vulnerable supply line stretching across the Atlantic Ocean.

Indeed, Moscow sent Cuba two IL-62 troop-carriers in mid-January to replace shorter-range Britannia and IL-18 transports. More significantly, the Russians have recently used the high-flying TU-95 over the South Atlantic to study U.S. fleet movements in water that would be critical if the U.S. should decide on severe retaliation against Cuba.

One possible retaliation would be a U.S. naval blockade of Cuba, known to be under consideration. But even if congressional apprehensions were overcome, the difficulty of extending a blockade to the air — essential for success — would jeopardize the whole enterprise. Further, some administration experts fear the Russians would contest an American blockade, as they could not in the Cuban missile crisis 13 years ago when U.S. power was supreme.

In such a confrontation, the U.S. would immediately be placed in a vicious political context — "in lockstep with the white supremacists" of South Africa and Rhodesia, in the apt phrase of one policymaker.

No matter how distorted and inaccurate that context would be, high officials here doubt that U.S. allies would back Washington's effort to break Castro interference in the cause of black nationalism against white-minority governments. Indeed, Congress might prove just as balky.

The Soviet high-altitude reconnaissance over the South Atlantic, at the very least, is an indication Moscow feels the same way and might quickly intervene against any U.S. blockade of Cuba.

With his military intervention in Angola victorious and the Soviet-backed Popular Movement in control there, Castro's future in Africa seems assured — and expanding, with two new Cuban tasks.

Task No. 1, as seen by experts here: To consolidate the new Angolan government by lending expert aid to build a centralized Communist-style party, getting the economy working again (particularly the coffee plantations and the ports) and teaching the Popular Movement basic elements of internal security, mass communications and similar techniques of control.

Task No. 2: To lend Cuban armed power to other nationalist parties, almost certainly starting with guerrilla units based in Mozambique for operations across the border in Rhodesia.

Cuban troops, their strength unknown here, have recently been seen in Mozambique, apparently getting there by ship around the Cape of Good Hope. Bases of operation must be established behind the border with supplies, weapons, other essentials from major guerrilla operations.

Other targets for Castro's ambitious Africa corps are Namibia, (formerly South West Africa) and French Somalia soon to be independent. Officials here say Cuban troops may be used if Somalia, home of the Soviet naval base of Berbera, decides to invade the former French colony.

This predicatable future course of Cuban intervention in black Africa has led Mr. Ford to the brink of a major new U.S. policy — despite last fall's congressional veto of any U.S. help which doomed anti-Soviet factions in Angola.

Some of the President's political advisers feel Congress is changing, mainly because voters back home have been aroused by the marriage of Soviet weapons and Cuban troops 8,000 miles from Moscow. Whether Congress is coming to its senses or not, President Ford is determined to end Castro's free run in Africa, whatever the opinion of his foreign allies, the Third World, American black leaders or anybody else.

Homeownership, and Its Effects on the Taxes You Pay

(Eighth of 10 columns)

Among the most important aspects of owning a home is the extent to which the expenses involved in home ownership affect what you owe in taxes In 1975, the IRS issued both favorable and unfavorable rulings in this area

NEWLYWEDS: The IRS gave a tax break to you, if you both own homes, sell them and buy a new one when you marry Gain on sale of a principal residence is generally deferred, if at least an equivalent amount is used to buy a new principal residence In 1975, the IRS said that if a newly married couple each sold a principal residence and each invested more than the sales price in buying one new residence in which they took title jointly, their gains on the sales of the two former principal residences were not currently taxable a nice wedding gift

BARGAIN RENTS: If you own a house and intentionally rent it to a relative or friend at less than fair rental, with the result that your house expenses exceed the rental income, the IRS says you can't deduct all the expenses you otherwise might be able to deduct Because you are not renting the house to make a profit, you are allowed to deduct only the following expenses

(1) Interest and taxes, whether or not they total more or less than the bargain rental income Say you rent the house to your relative for a bargain $3,000 a year Your taxes and interest come to $2,000, you can deduct the $2,000 If your taxes and interest came to $3,500, you could deduct $3,500

(2) If your taxes and interest total less than your gross rent, you can deduct your operating expenses (other than depreciation which affects the basis of property) up to an amount by which your bargain rent income exceeds the total of your interest and taxes Say the bargain rent is $3,000 a year, and your interest and taxes are $2,000 If your operating expenses for light, heat, etc , came to $1,200 for the year, you can deduct only $1,000 of that $1,200 amount ($3,000-$2,000)
If your operating expenses for light, heat, etc , came to $1,200 for the year, you can deduct only $1,000 of that $1,200 amount ($3,000 $2,000)

(3) Allowable depreciation on your house can then be deducted to the extent that the rental income exceeds both your interest and taxes and operating expenses

All these allowable deductions can be taken only as itemized deductions If you use the standard deduction, you will forfeit these deductions

PAYMENTS FROM HUD: If you received mortgage assistance payments from HUD under Section 235 of the National Housing Act, you don't have to include the payments in income The IRS officially confirmed this by a formal ruling in 1975 But the IRS proposes to eliminate part of the double tax break now available to those of you who benefit from these payments

Under current rules, you, the homeowner, exclude the payments from your income, but you also claim itemized deductions to the extent the payments are applied to interest and taxes on your home The Treasury has proposed regulations that beginning with 1975 your interest deduction on your mortgage would not be allowed to the extent of the assistance payments But no portion of the assistance payments would reduce other deductions connected with the house such as taxes

These proposed regulations are not yet final so the double break is still technically available to you on your 1975 return But if the proposals are finally adopted without change, they will be effective for 1975

SPECIAL TAX TIP FOR '75 by the Research Institute of America If you take the standard deduction and you also are a member of an investment club, you may lose out under a 1975 IRS ruling Your investment club may have expenses for advice, bank charges accounting etc The IRS says that your club can't just subtract these costs from income and let each of the members report their share of net income Instead, the club must show each member's share of both income and of the club's costs If you itemize your deductions you also can deduct your share of the club's expenses If you take the standard deduction, you must include your share of the club's income, but you get no deduction for your share of the club expenses

Author's Note: A study indicates that economic planning — in business as well as government — is more likely to aggravate economic problems than to solve them

WASHINGTON (KFS) — President Ford is more optimistic about the economy than most of us, who reel almost daily from another bus fare increase, another property tax increase, another parking fee increase, another increase in the cost of shoes

That's why it will take more than presidential rhetoric in an election year to calm public fears of continued high unemployment and inflation, coupled with slow growth and a decline in efficient services

Six-Year Plan?

What will it take, short of a speedy miracle? Some prestigious economic experts believe the answer may be a good six year centralized economic plan such as many other nations have tried

The Senate Government Operations Committee will hold hearings later this spring on a measure which would establish a national planning agency for the American economy to draft a balanced growth plan, aimed at solving long-term economic problems The bill was introduced a year ago by Sens Hubert Humphrey D Minn and Jacob Javits R-N Y and has provoked widespread controversy

The idea behind the bill is that the development of full employment and price stability can no longer be left to chance but must be rationally managed United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, in support of the bill, observed, "Experience has taught us that the unseen magic of the so called free market does not work '

The trouble, however, is that Big Government planning has fallen into public disfavor Public sentiment leans toward less government interference in private business affairs rather than more Large scale government programs to right social imbalances have come under increasing criticism for waste, misuse and ineffectiveness

And now along comes a thoughtful study by the Institute for Contemporary Studies of past experiences with economic planning both in this country and abroad The Institute's report concludes that economic planning simply doesn t work Furthermore it charges that in the great majority of cases it has actually aggravated economic problems

Business planning is often held up as the model for similar efforts to organize economic thinking in government But the study contends that in fact business planning is just as chaotic as has been centralized economic planning in such countries as France and Great Britain

Fifteen economists and political scientists contributed to the report Indiana University political scientist Vincent Ostrom argues that economic planning does not work because a planner cannot begin to know enough in a complex society to plan successfully It takes so long to gather information from a wide variety of sources that the earlier data is outdated before the later data is even collected

Pressure

A Lawrence Chickering, director of the institute, contends that even if the proper information were available, the chances are overwhelming that the planner either would not or could not use that information in making his plans Even if a planner wants to make decisions apart from his own personal ambitions — which is not always the case — competing interests, constituencies and pressure groups will not permit him to do so, Chickering says

Politics in other words, invades the field of official planning just like everywhere else

Chickering is not talking about awful things like bribes, only the normal desire to please those who in turn can be helpful For instance, some Amtrak schedules are fitted to serve the location of Interstate Commerce Commission members and of congressmen on key transportation committees without substantial regard for population densities Montana and West Virginia are lavishly served by Amtrak despite limited service needs, whereas the city of Cleveland, which had the bad luck to have no interested politicians representing it, got no service at all under the original Amtrak plan

The institute's report makes a tough case against the concept of centralized economic planning But it leaves us with a dilemma No one has come up with a better alternative

If the map of Texas was folded upward and over with its northernmost line as a hinge, Brownsville would be 120 miles from Canada, if eastward, El Paso would be 40 miles off the Florida coast if westward, Orange would lie 215 miles beyond Lower California in the Pacific Ocean

Campaign '76

'Scoop' Had State Sewn Up Until Last Week's Events

NEW YORK (UPI) — Before Thursday Henry Jackson stood to win the majority of New York's 274 delegates to the democratic national convention Then Morris Udall came to town and the state passed a new primary law

The opening of the Udall campaign in New York City and the action of the state legislature 150 miles north in Albany were coincidental, but they combined to make the April 6 New York primary a whole new ballgame

The new law puts the names of the Democratic presidential contenders on the primary ballot for the first time

Before, the New York primary ballot was a hopeless mess — 20 or more delegates on the ballot in each of 39 congressional districts, and voters not knowing which candidate he was voting for once he got in the booth Jackson's strong local organizations would have given him an immense advantage under those circumstances

At about the same time the new law was signed by Gov Hugh Carey, Udall arrived to try to pick up the pieces of Sen Birch Bayh's abandoned liberal campaign and put together the coalition that gave most of the state's delegates to Sen George McGovern in 1972

What it means is that New York now becomes the first real showdown by the three Democratic frontrunners — Jackson, Udall and Jimmy Carter

Carter, as has proven to be the case everywhere else, has been a constant factor in New Yorkc State, waiting patiently for his share of the action

New York is the second largest delegation to the July convention in New York City, and has long been a major target of the Jackson forces The Washington senator had targeted about $1 million for his New York campaign — more than twice the amount that Carter and Udall were each planning on spending here

Jackson has considered New York the big northeast industrial star in his campaign He has said he may win it by a "landslide" Conventional wisdom would not have disputed that assessment until the new developments of this week

But Udall now stands an unexpected chance of picking up a big chunk of delegates Carter remains the unknown factor, but also should benefit from the changed rules

Udall originally hadn't planned much of a campaign in the state —the liberals lined up early with Bayh Now Udall is scrambling to assemble the kind of liberal coalition that has worked for Democrats here at least since Franklin D Roosevelt

Jackson has already won over most of one of the main factions in the Democratic race —the Jewish vote He also has a big share on the labor vote— winning endorsement from many of the more conservative AFL CIO locals

But Udall scored a big gain by picking up the endorsement of Local 37 on the American Federation of State, Country, Municipal Employees — the big liberal union with 100,000 members in the state

"I think clearly Senator Jackson has to be favored to win," Udall says 'But we expect to come in a strong second"

Foreign Commentary

'Guest Workers'

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — The figures—all 18 of them — depicting a Turkish foreign workers s family wore broad grins beneath their fezzes Waving welfare checks, they sung "My Paradise is on the Rhine "

This satirical float in Cologne's annual carnival parade reflected the emotional debate over the 2 1 million foreign workers in West Germany

The "guest workers," as they are called, came from Turkey, Yugoslavia, Greece, Italy, Spain, Morocco and other nations with low standards of living when labor was needed to keep the Federal Republic's economic miracle booming

They have always posed a problem of communication and assimilation

Slums and ghettos have sprung up

In some schools in working class districts, 25 per cent of the children are foreigners and special classes have been established to teach them German

But now they are a bigger problem

West Germany has 1 2 million unemployed—the highest figure since the great pre-war depression that helped bring the Nazis to power As a result, there are signs that the foreign workers are becoming unwelcome guests

They already have become an issue in the April 4 election in the state of Baden-Wuerttemberg, and they could become one in October s nationwide parliamentary election

The number of foreign workers has been cut 500,000 in the last two years but must be reduced still more, politicans say, to provide jobs for young Germans

"In the future the German economy cannot afford so many guest workers," said Hans Filbinger, the Christian Democrat governor of Baden-Wuerttemberg

He said his state would ask the labor ministers in all 11 West German states to work out a common program to get foreign workers to volunteer to go home

"By 1985, we will need in the republic well over one million more open jobs," he said "If we don't have them, young people born in the years of a high birth rate are going to be threatened by mass unemployment "

Ventilator Drive Continues

KINGSTON — A program launched by St. John's Episcopal Church Women to raise funds for an Infant Ventilator has been meeting with success, according to information received from Mrs. James A. Barba.

Plans call for the ventilator to be housed in Kingston Hospital but will be used by both hospitals here. It is a specialized piece of equipment used on premature babies with Hyaline membrane disease and for full term infants for mucous aspiration, congenital defects and to prevent brain damage.

The closest ventilator used by area hospitals now is in Albany.

Mrs. Robert B. Murray, president of the church group, is asking for continued support of the project. Contributions may be mailed to: Infant Ventilator Fund, c/o Robert Murray, treasurer, Bankers Trust Company, 301 Wall Street, Kingston, 12401.

Mrs. Robert Murray charts funds at half-way mark.

Workshop Planned

NEW PALTZ—Mrs. Alyce F. Fisher and Mrs. Betty Moran of Duaine School, New Paltz, will conduct a full day workshop for teachers of children with learning disabilities on Friday, March 19 in Rochester. The workshop will take place at the Third Annual State Conference of the Orton Society, a national organization committed to the study, treatment and prevention of reading, learning and language disabilities.

St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands, is the largest cruise ship port in the world.

Students May Be Exposed to Danger

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Students at some high school, college and university laboratories may be exposed to cancer-causing chemicals, according to a recent warning from the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

OSHA Regional Administrator Alfred Barden said the warning is based on informal results of a survey in Kentucky showing that several chemicals, worker exposure to which is controlled by OSHA job health standards, may be in use in school laboratories without proper precautions.

Regional Administrators are alerting state officials in their regions to the possible harmful exposure of students, faculty members and school employees to the toxic chemicals. In the notice, OSHA recommends that all schools be asked to inventory chemical laboratory stock to uncover any cancer-causing chemicals present, assure they are properly labeled and that safe handling procedures are followed, or that unneeded chemicals are properly disposed of.

Although OSHA job health standards controlling worker exposure to the chemicals involved do not apply to students in classrooms, OSHA recommended the procedures set in those standards be followed to assure student as well as faculty and school employee safety and health. Single copies of those standards can be obtained from the OSHA regional office located at 1515 Broadway, Room 3445, New York, N.Y. 10036.

The chemicals involved are: 4-Nitrobiphenyl; alpha-Naphthylamine; beta-Naphthylamine; Methyl chloromethyl ether; 3,3'-Dichlorobenzidine; Benzidine; 4-Aminodiphenyl; Ethyleneimine; beta-Propiolactone; 2-Acethlaminofluorene; 4-Dimethylaminoazobenzene; N-Nitrosodimethylamine; and vinyl chloride.

Revue Continues

KINGSTON—The 4-H Dress Revue, which began on March 11 at the J. Clifford Miller School, will conclude its fashion shows on Thursday, March 18 at 6:30 p.m. in the Rondout Valley High School. More than 400 members have been participating in one of the four dress revues. Members range in age from eight to 19. This year's 4-H theme is '76 Spirit of Tomorrow Will Prevail. The March 18 revue is open to the public.

The official motto of Texas, derived from its name's earliest Indian meaning, is "friendship."

Kite Enthusiasts Issued Warning

KINGSTON—Kite enthusiasts and tree climbers should take care to avoid electric lines, according to R.L. Lynch, Fleischmanns manager for New York State Electric & Gas Corp.

With kite-flying weather just around the corner, NYSE&G is distributing posters to elementary schools depicting a cartoon version of Benjamin Fraklin fying a kite.

The poster includes Franklin's "Declaration of Safety":

I will fly my kite when there is no rain.

I will fly my kite far from trees or electric lines.

I will use dry string—not wire or metal cord.

I will call the Electric Company if my kite gets caught on electric lines—never try to rescue it myself.

The posters are part of the utility's continuing effort to inform children of the possible hazards associated with kite-flying.

"Ideally, kite-flying should be done in large open fields under adult supervision," Lynch said. "We ask teachers and parents to remind youngsters of the importance of safety and to explain the rules of safe kite-flying."

NYSE&G is also distributing warning posters urging children to never climb near electric lines. Lynch said climbing electric poles, towers or trees with branches growing near overhead electric wires is very dangerous.

"Unsuspecting youngsters could be injured making contact with electric wires running through overgrown tree branches," he said. Parents were also asked to examine trees in their yard, and if electric wires are near, to instruct youngsters to stay away from them.

Lynch extended his warning to adults who are cutting or trimming trees near electric wires.

Special Features For Fashion Show

KINGSTON — Many innovations and special features are being planned by Fashiontime Models for their next luncheon-fashion show which will take place at the new Colonade Restaurant in Governor Clinton Hotel on Friday, March 19 between 12:30 and 1:45 p.m.

Ms. Maxine Goodheim and Ms. Bonnie Perlmutter, coordinators and agents for professional models in this area, have announced a first in this area for fashion shows; a male model will be joining the other professional models. New and exciting fashions for men as well as women will be featured by Wallace's Department Store, Ulster Shopping Plaza. Clothes for the slim-trim as well as the mature figure will be shown.

George Svirsky, co-manager with Ed Kreines of the Colonade Restaurant, is planning a special luncheon for all who attend.

RR Concert Is Benefit

MIDDLETOWN—A benefit Rock and Roll Concert to raise money for the Memorial Fund for the late New York State Trooper William V. McDonagh will be held Friday night, March 19, at Middletown High School.

The concert will star "Jay and the Americans" and the "Belmonts." Both groups were major stars of rock and roll music in the 1950s and 1960s. At the present time the groups are among the most popular nostalgic groups touring the country.

Tickets may be had by writing Rock and Roll Benefit, Box One, Florida, N.Y.

Restoration Move's Objects

By Dorothy A. Narel

SAUGERTIES — After a lapse of several years, a new movement is underway to save the historic Saugerties Lighthouse from extinction and possibly turn it into a nautical museum. But Ruth Glunt, author of "Lighthouses and Legends of the Hudson," calls it a "losing battle."

The 84-year-old woman who has made a thorough study of lighthouses down through the years and fought to have the Saugerties Lighthouse restored says:

"I am out of it. It's too late. The lighthouse is a dead issue as far as I'm concerned."

A new group of people will be meeting Wednesday, March 31 at 8 p.m. in the Sawyer Savings Bank to see if sufficient interest can be aroused to get a lighthouse restoration plan going. As one interested party put it: "It can't be done overnight but it's worth a try even if it takes 10 years."

It is estimated no less than $200,000 would be needed to launch the project and there are those in Saugerties who feel this would be in direct competition to the Grist Mill restoration plans. The Grist Mill committee is in the process of raising $45,000.

Mrs. Glunt knows and loves the Hudson River. Her husband, Chester, was a civilian employee with the U.S. Coast Guard for 28 years and in charge of the Light Attendant Station at Turkey Point, Saugerties. She told the Freeman the lighthouse in Saugerties was constructed in 1869 and when it closed in 1954 a separate atuomatic light was built next to it. She also stated there were 11 lighthouses on the river once and only five remain.

"Restoration could have been achieved in 1954 but not today. It's too expensive. The floor in the lighthouse has fallen through to the basement and as far as the Coast Guard is concerned, they simply don't care. They don't have any historical sense," says Mrs. Glunt.

"The lighthouse was destined to be demolished like so many others. The Coast Guard went in there and didn't disconnect pipes — they ripped them out," she said.

Mrs. Glunt also stated that during Mayor Ziegler's time the lighthouse could have become a Youth Hostel but because hostels were considered commercial, the project was turned down. She stated:

"The Federal government said we could have the lighthouse but it had to be maintained, insured and put to use — but not commercial use. And, of course, you never own the place outright because the government must have access to their lights in order to maintain them."

Mrs. Glunt's Vigil

It also appears that the Saugerties Lighthouse could have been a residence for members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary and a possible laboratory for testing water pollution. Neither of these ideas ever got off the drawing board.

In Mrs. Glunt's opinion, the Saugerties Lighthouse now needs new plumbing, sewage, heat, lights, complete interior decorating to include living quarters for a caretaker. There is no access to the lighthouse except by boat, another important consideration if the lighthouse ever becomes a museum open to the public.

"This was all brought out years ago but when the residents found out it would cost tax dollars, they backed out," the authoress says.

The Saugerties author, who holds memberships in the New York Folklore Society, Ulster County Historical Society, Hudson River Conservation Society and the Saugerties Chapter of the DAR, claims the official status of the Saugerties Lighthouse is that it belongs to the Village of Saugerties. Also, that the Village has an option to take it over for $1 per year.

There seems to be a wide difference of opinion in this area. The March 31 meeting should somewhat clear the air. It will be a time of looking back to those days of lighthouses, sloops, ice cutting night boats, the Day Line and commercial fish — days of the past on the Hudson River.

The Glunts still live with these memories in their house on the Hudson — with a view of the old Saugerties Lighthouse.

Social Solos St. Patty's Fete

Social Solos are planning a St. Patrick's Day Celebration at the Stockade Restaurant, Crown and John Streets, 6:30 p.m. Reservations and information about membership may be made by contacting Dorothy Smith of West Shokan or Peter Lucas.

Officers for the club were recently elected: Dorothy Smith, director; Peter Lucas, assistant director; Jean Clark, recording secretary; Lillian Shiels, treasurer; Brigetta Dedy, membership director; Dorothy Smith, sunshine chairman. An installation dinner is being planned. The next general meeting will be April 7, 8 p.m. at the Stockade Restaurant.

Purim Holiday Today

Represent Ulster at State Conference

They were: Emma Aprea, council member, New York State Federation; Kay Rapp, president, Ulster County GOP Women's Club; June Davidson, vice chairman, Ulster County GOP Committee; and Mary Wynn Eggleston, membership chairman for the club.

Conference theme was "Winning Spirit of '76" and emphasis was placed on total victory, nationally and statewide. More than 500 delegates, alternates and guests attended.

Special guest speakers were Mrs. Ann Blackham, second vice president of the National Federation of Republican Women and Ms. Pat Goldman of Washington, D.C., executive director of the Republican Women's Task Force. Special guests of honor were Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson, Assembly Minority Leader Perry Duryea and New York State Republican Chairman Richard M. Rosenbaum.

Golden Oldies Night

SAUGERTIES—Four hours of continuous music featuring the sounds of the 1950's and 1960's is being planned for Saturday, April 3 in the VFW Hall beginning at 9 p.m. Planned by the Saugerties Jayncees, price of admission will include entertainment, hot buffet and beer.

Disc jockey Mike Eguia of Newburgh will be the MC.

The evening will feature also awards for the "guy and gal in the grooviest get-up of the 50's and 60's." Dance contests will be held throughout the evening.

Reservations may be made with Joanne Cobey and Donna Heidenreich or any member of the Jayncees.

'It's Enough to Make You Sick'

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — In the annals of television history, whenever anybody writes such a study, the season of '75-'76 will probably be called The Year The Bottom Dropped Out.

The TV season we've all just lived through was a disaster, a debacle, a dog. More than a dozen of the new entries were cancelled and even those that made it were mostly hanging on by the skin of their ratings. Hits were rarer than pits in seedless grapes.

The big question is: did the networks learn anything from last season's expensive tragedy? Will next season show the fruits of their experience, and be more inventive, more imaginative, less copycat?

The answer seems to be a resounding NO!

"The networks haven't learned a thing," says Columbia Pictures' talent coordinator, Renee Valente. "They're doing the same old thing. Looking at the pilots, it's enough to make you sick."

She says that we can expect '76-'77 to be pretty much the same sort of season we've just barely survived. The plans, apparently, are for the identical mix of cops and lawyers, doctors and situation comedies. Nothing has changed.

"The pilots in the works," says Twentieth Century-Fox's TV head, Sy Salkowitz, "look to be pretty much the same as they were last year."

"I doubt TV will learn anything from he debacle of this past season," says producer Bob Banner.

The question then arises — why don't the networks change and try to improve their product? The answer seems to be that they can't. They're locked in to the current format by tradition, by habit, by unimaginative programmers.

"The logistics of TV have become so complex," says Banner, "that it is hard to imagine any drastic changes."

He says that TV is still governed by what he calls "the aspirin policy" — "they figure that if one aspirin makes a headache feel better, 100 aspirins will make it feel 100 times better. And, in fact, 100 aspirins can kill you. But they figure if one show is a hit, make 100 just like it."

There may, in the final analysis, be one major breakthrough credited to the otherwise dismal '75-'76 season. And that breakthrough was the 12-hour version of Irwin Shaw's novel, "Rich Man, Poor Man." Frank Price, president of Universal TV, thinks that could be a milestone.

"The most significant thing that season could be the impact 'Rich Man, Poor Man' has," Price says. "Its potential impact on TV is enormous.

"If it's a hit, TV can then theoretically do any kind of novel. The whole idea is unprecedented in the field of entertainment. To me, the idea of being able to tell a total story is tremendously exciting."

But, "Rich Man, Poor Man" aside, there is very little brewing on the episodic TV front of great inventiveness. A few people see the gradual return of Westerns, which is hardly a brand-new breakthrough.

"They want action shows," Salkowitz says, "but less emphasis on cops. Westerns may be the answer. I see a small shift in attitude toward the Western. Last year, there were none. This year a few Western pilots have been made."

"We'll undoubtedly see some action on the Western front," says Price. "Perhaps there will be one or two of them on the schedule next fall."

Banner himself is producing Almost Anything Goes, the town-vs.-town stunt show. It seems to be working. He thinks here again attempts will be made to copy his format.

"There's already been a copy shown one time on CBS," he says. "I'm willing to bet that if our show is a hit, within six months there will be some 40 similar ideas submitted to the networks and three of those, conservatively, will be made into pilots."

The "Family Hour" concept, which created such a storm when it was introduced last season, will continue. But, most experts believe, the shows placed in that hour will be a little meatier than they were last year, when bland ruled supreme.

"The Family Hour started out to be for children," Salkowitz says. "But now there's a slight switch — instead of putting on children's shows, they want adult shows that children can watch. We have a State Fair pilot, based on the old movie hit, designed for that time period, for example. It's in no way a kiddie show."

There may also be some small resurgence in science-fiction, as yet another way of giving the audience action without having to resort to the cops-and-robbers format.

"The success of The Six Million Dollar Man and The Bionic Woman," Price says, "makes me think there will be more investigation into the science fiction adventure arena. There used to be a cliche in TV that a sci-fi show will never get above a 28-share in the ratings. These shows are doing much better."

But, those slight changes aside, most TV people expect next season's programming to be pretty much a duplicate of this season's. A few Westerns, perhaps, and a sci-fi show or two, but really nothing new or exciting.

"TV changes by inches," says Salkowitz, "not by feet."

Dear Abby

No Way to Avoid Uninvited Guests

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had a New Year's cocktail buffet party at home to which 50 people were invited. We kept our guest list down because of limited space and budget.

The day of the party, six invited guests called to say that they had houseguests and to ask if they could bring them along! What could we say? So we had all these extra people in whom we had no interest whatsoever. They took up the space and ate and drank what could have gone to our own friends.

It seems to me that when people are invited to a party and they have houseguests, they should decline the invitation and not ask the hostess to entertain their houseguests, too.

How does one handle such rudeness?

BEEN HAD

DEAR BEEN: Sorry, but when you're stuck, you're stuck. When invited guests ask to bring their houseguests along, there is no way to tell them they are not welcome.

I can see where uninvited guests might present a real problem at a sit-down dinner, which I would not hesitate to point out, but a cocktail buffet can usually be stretched to handle some additional guests.

DEAR ABBY: Why does my boyfriend have to get drunk before he says, "I love you"?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Because he needs the "courage" either to lie or tell the truth.

DEAR ABBY: Get a load of the following, published April 3, 1919 in "The Alabamian," the weekly newspaper of the 167th Infantry, in the Army of Occupation of Germany with the Rainbow Division:

EASY ON PANTS

Pants are made for men, not for women.

Women are made for men, not for pants.

When a man pants for a woman and a woman pants for a man, that makes a pair of pants.

Pants are like molasses: They are thinner in hot weather and thicker in cold weather.

There has been much discussion as to whether "pants" is singular or plural. Seems to us that when men wear pants they are plural, and when they don't, it is singular. If you want to make pants last, make the coat first.

Stomach Has Protective Lining

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About three times a week I take a spoonful of Metamucil and I find if I don't wash the glass and spoon right away it leaves a slimy surface on the glass and it takes hot water to get it off. I wonder if it could coat my stomach and intestines so I could not get the good from my food. I don't take any other laxatives and the Metamucil works fine.

DEAR READER — No, it won't hurt you a bit. Your entire digestive system is constantly forming secretions that bathe its surface. Your stomach already has a layer of thick mucus over its surface which would make what you are talking about on your glass look like nothing at all. That mucus surface protects the stomach cells for its own acid digestive juice.

The lining of your intestine is shed and replaced as often as every three days. The lining incidentally is digested and absorbed for food for your body so you don't lose energy or important proteins this way.

Metamucil is a good bulk expander and isn't harmful. I do hope, however, that you include in your diet enough bulk and particularly cereal fiber from whole wheat products. If you use enough of that or bran or bran buds you may not need Metamucil to provide bulk for you.

Those wanting information on controlling constipation can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 2-1, Irritable Colon and Constipation. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Texas occupies a position midway between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and except for Florida is the southernmost of the United States. It also is approximately equidistance from the Equator and the Arctic Circle.

A Caribbean trench 15,000 feet deep lies between S t. Croix and the other two major islands of the U.S. Virgin Islands group, St. Thomas and St. John.

The greatest distance from east to west across Texas is approximately 775 miles, while the north to south distance is more than 800 miles.

Equal Time for Senior Citizens

You don't hear a lot about Senior Power, but it's there.

There are 20 million Americans older than 65 and they are easily the most discriminated-against minority of all.

That's why today, I'm giving equal time to grandmothers.

Awhile back, I did a column on what grandchildren could expect from grandparents. With an assist from a sharp grandmother in Rye, New York, here's some demands from grandparents.

1. Do not feel free to join me in the bathroom or run screaming to your mother when I throw you out. She may feel you are ready to be introduced to the mysteries of the human anatomy, but I don't.

2. When we're at the table and I am trying to get you to eat your din din, please don't call everyone's attention to the fact that I am talking to you with my mouth full.

3. Please, under no circumstances, fool around with the wires under my wheelchair.

4. When I am babysitting and have an important long-distance call, don't run out of the front door screaming and leaving me locked in. Granted you must have freedom, but I also have a nerve problem.

5. Please don't tear up my phone book just to keep busy while I am talking to a door-to-door salesman.

6. Please do not fill up the bathtub with water and float my hairbrush and comb in a solution of hair rinse, perfume, bath oil, and bath powder. That makes me cry throughout an entire evening.

7. Do not become hysterical when the toilet flushes blue. It is not something you have done.

8. Do not play football with my best pillow near my antique hurricane lamp.

9. Unless you are a prodigy and a soloist with the Cleveland symphony at the age of 4, do not sit down at my piano with sticky fingers.

10. When my legs are crossed and you jump on my foot for a "ride" do not be surprised if my leg falls off.

11. Try to understand I do not have unlimited toys around. Although the dog has movable parts, most of them cannot be replaced.

12. I'd like very much to respond to your pleas of "carry me, Grandma" but frankly you took the words out of MY mouth.

Now Grandma, if your grievance committee was only old enough to read this, you'd have it made.

The river known in the United States as the Rio Grande, forming 800 miles of boundary between Texas and Mexico, was named Rio Bravo del Norte (bold river of the north) by the Spaniards. It is the ninth longest river in the Western Hemisphere.

The rivers of Texas yearly discharge 36.3 million acre feet of water into the Gulf of Mexico.

SPORTS TODAY

Major League Owners 'Bite the Bullet'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — A drastically-revised reserve system was in the offing for major league players Tuesday after baseball's beleaguered owners "bit the bullet" and grudgingly accepted the "one-and-one" free agent option.

In an effort to at last put an end to baseball's labor woes and unlock the gates to spring training, the owners presented the players with their "final offer" Monday which, if accepted, could make every major league player now under contract a free agent.

"We have bit the bullet and accepted 'one-and-one,'" said American League President Lee MacPhail. "The next couple of years could be chaotic."

Under the owners' proposal, any player now in the major leagues can play out his option once his contract expires. The player would be eligible to negotiate with a maximum of eight clubs with selection procedure being based on inverse order of the standing. In other words, the player could become a free agent but he most likely would be bargaining with the bottom-most clubs in baseball.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said the players would have some comment today on the surprise proposal—a drastic turnabout from the owners' previous hardline stands. Miller also said the proposal would be given to the players' executive committee at a meeting in Tampa Wednesday for either ratification or rejection.

The owners, meanwhile, said they would not open the shuttered spring camps until the players accepted the proposal, which means there would not likely be a resumption of baseball until late this week.

"We will not open the camps until the players accept our proposal," MacPhail said. "Frankly, I don't see how they can reject it."

Actually, the "one-and-one" was a right the players had already won through the Peter Seitz decision and subsequent court mandates which rendered Los Angeles Dodgers' right-hander Andy Messersmith a free agent.

In addition to accepting the "one-and-one" which affects all current major league players, the owners also proposed a future reserve system which would make any player eligible for free agency after completing seven years of service with a club.

The owners' biggest fear in accepting any revisions in the 100-year-old reserve system was the financial burden it would place on each team in seeking to keep its players from playing out their options.

"The financial impact on the clubs will be great," said MacPhail. "The first two years will be a shock."

MacPhail said the owners will give the players until April 1 to decide on the proposal and it still could take that long before spring camps get opened. In particular, the players are likely to balk at the selection procedure in the "one-and-one" proposal and they will probably seek a future reserve system of something less than seven years.

"You have to remember," Miller said earlier in the week, "we have already won the one-and-one in the courts and I don't know if the players are going to go along for anything less that what we already have."

Yankees Eyeing Saturday

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — If spring training camps are allowed to open Tuesday, the New York Yankees would be ready to play ther first exhibition game here Saturday against the Texas Rangers, according to team president Gabe Paul.

"There are enough players who have been working out on their own and who played winter ball to enable us to field a team," said Paul as he awaited word that camps would be opened.

Seven Yankees were in town and Paul said the club was prepared to send telegrams to the rest of the players on the 38-man roster asking them to report to training camp as soon as possible. He figured there would be a large enough group for a meaningful workout Tuesday, should the word come to open camp, and by Wednesday all but a few who were driving would be on hand.

If the first game is played Saturday, the Yankees will have lost eight exhibition games, some of which could be made up by playing doubleheaders.

"But not right away," Paul cautioned. "We're doing pretty good just to get enough players for one game. Later on, we can see about playing doubleheaders."

Southern Idaho a Bit Confused

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) — Top-ranked College of Southern Idaho started the National Junior College Basketball Tournament Monday just like it did a year ago—a little confused.

Coach Boyd Grant, whose team was the national runnerup last year, hopes the tournament ends a little bit differently. This year he would like to go home a champion.

"We weren't very smooth out there," Grant said speaking of Southern Idaho's 71-66 win Monday over Lake Land (Ill.). "We played confused at times and I'm sure the pressure of being No. 1 had something to do with that. But last year my team played the same way in the first round and went on to get into the championship against Western Texas."

In other first round play Monday, No. 3 Mercer Community (N.J). beat Anderson (S.C.) 71-68, DeKalb South (Ga.) downed Johnson County (Kan.) 74-67, Allegheny (Pa.) defeated Henry Ford (Mich.) 69-59, Westchester (N.Y.) edged Arizona Western 56-55 and San Jacinto (Tex.) squeezed by McLennan (Tex.) 90-91.

An eight-point scoring burst in the final 10 minutes paced by Kim Goetz gave Southern Idaho a 58-47 lead which Lake Land could not shake. The closest the Illinois team came after that was within three points.

Mercer needed two free throws each from Tony Robino and Joe McKeown in the final 31 seconds of play to whip Anderson. Mercer was led by 6-10 Mike Davis with 21 points and Anderson was paced by Karlton Hilton and Billy Reid with 22 points each.

Jarvis Reynolds, a 6-8 center, scored 37 points in DeKalb's victory over Johnson County. Johnson County was led by John Revels with 22 points.

Allegheny's tight defense kept Henry Ford scoreless in the first 4½ minutes of play and never allowed the Michigan team to pose any real threat. Rick Williams led Allegheny with 17 points and Henry Ford was paced by Matt Rickey and Cornel Bedford with 15 each.

Westchester's win over Arizona Western came in the last four seconds when Ray Knox stole an inbounds pass and scored. Larry Rhodes led Westchester with 16 points and Arizona Western was led by Herb Miller with 29.

Ollie Mack hit four free throws in the final 45 seconds to give San Jacinto its victory over crossstate rival McLennan. Mack led the San Jacinto scoring with 21 points in a game which was tied 18 times. McLennan was led by John Derrick with 21 points and Ed Marshall and Vinnie Johnson with 20 each.

NFL Making Plans for Drafts

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle says the National Football League expansion and college football drafts, delayed by the courts after a lawsuit filed by the league's two expansion franchises, will be completed by early next month.

Owners gathered here for week-long meetings, he said, will decide the exact dates for the player allocation draft of veteran players going to the Seattle Seahawks and Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the regular draft of college players to all 28 NFL clubs.

"Both drafts will be held within three weeks of this meeting," Rozelle said at a news conference Monday. He said the owners will probably set the pick for top college players for one week after the two expansion franchises take their choice of unprotected veterans.

The two drafts were originally scheduled for late January and early February but owners of the two expansion clubs filed suit to block the Players Association from interferring.

Rozelle said the owners will also probably vote during the meetings whether to admit the Memphis Grizzlies of the defunct World Football League as a third expansion club this year.

Canadian millionaire John Bassett who owns the Grizzlies and rights to former Miami Dolphin stars Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield came to the meeting in hopes of promoting his admission into the league.

"We told Bassett to come out and we would meet," Rozelle said.

Anxious to please the owners he hopes will admit him to their club, Bassett said he would accept an expansion draft of just one player from each established team and a draw after Seattle and Tampa in the college draft.

"A major decision the clubs will have to make," Rozelle said, "is whether there are in a position to expand anywhere in the country. Personally, I think Memphis is the most interesting possibility but if the owners decide there are too many uncertainties now, they may want to wait until later before they proceed.

"But I don't know what they're going to say. There are 28 league owners and they are all rather independent."

Other items on the meeting agenda include selection of the 1978 Super Bowl site, consideration of proposed rule changes including a suggestion to widen the playing field and a discussion by the owners' Management Council of its position on the collective bargaining agreement with the Players Association.

Jabbar Stands Out In a Crowd

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — As a 7-foot-2 superstar, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar stands out in a crowd and it's not always pleasant.

"He doesn't have a public life because he can't," said Los Angeles Laker teammate Lucius Allen. "People just feel they know him or want to. When they come up to him and say whatever it is they say, they don't realize he's just had the same thing happen from what seems like 10,000 people a week."

Abdul-Jabbar, who is averaging 27.8 points and 17.1 rebounds in his seventh NBA season, says he learned to accept his role. But, he added, it hasn't been easy.

"The thing is," he said, "it can be so dehumanizing. People get annoyed. They feel you're supposed to be in their command and do what they want. If they wanted to meet you as a person, that would be nice. But they take the autograph, that little piece of paper, or grab my hand and just leave like I'm a machine.

"It's so easy for me to get trapped in a public place with a whole lot of people around. Yo sign for one and talk to one and pretty soon there's a pool of people descending on you."

Abdul-Jabbar was a three-time All-America at UCLA and he returned to Los Angeles in a trade with the Milwaukee Bucks. He talked about the public.

"Oh, I understand it," he said. "I'm very easy to identify because of my height. And most Americans have messed around with basketball in one way or another. Plus I've had a reputation for being one of the best at what I'm doing.

"All of this isn't to say I don't appreciate all the nice people I've met. It's kind of hard sometimes but it's definitely worth all the hassles. I've accepted it as part of something I have to deal with and I just deal with it. I've never for one second wished that people would just go away.

"I don't mind acknowledging people, no matter who they are. In fact, Muslims are commanded to greet those who greet them in a civil manner."

The Laker superstar's greetings haven't always been civl.

"I'll never forget the time I was standing at a urinal at O'Hare Airport in Chicago," he recalled, "and a guy ran up to me and said, 'Would you sign this?' All I could do was look at him like was he crazy.

"Another time I was at an airport, trying to get my wife and daughter on a plane. This guy kept hassling me—he was incredibly persistent—and I wouldn't sign because I didn't have time and because he just wasn't very nice.

"So he started following me around everywhere, telling me I thought I was better than everyone else, how I had no right.

"I've had people have stewardesses wake me while I was sound asleep. It's those times I feel like getting nasty."

'Kamikaze Kids' Downed By Carolina Poor Boys

NEW YORK (UPI) — UNC-Charlotte, the poor boys of North Carolina basketball, brought Oregon's "Kamikaze Kids" down to earth with a loud crash Monday in the National Invitation Tournament to get a shot at hated North Carolina State.

Adopting Oregon's mugging tactics, UNC-Charlotte turned loose slender 6-foot-8 center Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, who scored 30 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead the 49ers to a 79-72 victory.

"It was just a thing of retaliation," the 185-pound Maxwell said of his second-half aggressiveness, which resulted in 22 points. "You can only knock somebody so hard for so long and they're going to start knocking back."

The victory, following a first-round victory over San Francisco, carried Charlotte into Thursday's semifinals against the Wolfpack, a 78-68 victor over Holy Cross.

In tonight's quarterfinals, Kentucky plays Kansas State and Louisville faces Providence, so the other semifinal game could be an all-Kentucky affair.

Despite its 21-5 regular season record, UNC-Charlotte has labored in obscurity because it is situated in the middle of Atlantic Coast Conference country. Prior to the beginning of the NIT, 49ers coach Lee Rose discussed the numerous disadvantages of the situation.

Asked about recruiting, Rose said, "We certainly don't have the first choices, that's for sure. The ones we get are certainly the kids who have been looked over and left over."

Maxwell, who has scored 58 points in two NIT games, was not an exception.

"I was recruited by no ACC schools," Maxwell said. "Everyone's dream down there is to play ACC ball."

The rest of Rose's leftovers, consequently, view Thursday's game as more than a basketball game. The Wolfpack won an earlier game against Charlotte this season 67-64 in N.C. State's Reynolds Colesium.

Intimidated early by Oregon's push-and-shove defense, the 49ers fell behind 28-19 before Lew Massey and Melvin Watkins led a late surge to gain a 35-31 halftime lead. Massey finished with 20 points and Watkins had 10.

Greg Ballard scored 27 points and Ron Lee 17 for Oregon, which finished third in last year's NIT, but Maxwell was the dominant force in the second half as the 49ers built a 14-point lead with only 1:15 left in the game.

Guard Al Green scored 23 points and Kenny Carr had 21 to pace N.C. State's victory, which was the 400th of Coach Norm Sloan's career.

"I thought we played really good at times," Sloan said. "We went to the zone for the first time this year and Holy Cross couldn't hit from the outside for the first 30 minutes. They started to hit after that, but fortunately we had built up a big enough lead by then."

Asked why he decided to install a zone defense, Sloan said, "We had lost four straight games. We had to do something."

Men Cheat More Than Women . . . in Golf

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Carol Mann agrees with me. Men cheat more than women. On the golf course, she's talking about. Off it, she doesn't know.

"Who am I to judge?" she says.

Carol Mann is one of the most honest persons you'll ever run into in sports. She's so natural, so down-to-earth, that the truth goes clear through her like an electric shock.

When she talks with you, she never tries to impress you with the fact she is one of the finest women golfers in the world or that she has won nearly a half million dollars on the professional tour. She says she's self-conscious sometimes, but you'd never know that being in her company.

Carol Mann is like Pete Rose in that she doesn't put on any airs. You don't find that quality around too much. She has another asset going for her as well. She looks like a knockout early in the morning, even without a whole lot of makeup, and how many women do you know like that?

Over breakfast at the Plaza, Carol Mann talked about golf. She spoke not so much about the touring professionals as those who play at country clubs. I told her I think men golfers bend the rules more than women, another way of saying they cheat more.

"I'd have to say they do," said Carol Mann. "I notice that when I play with them in pro-ams. The rules of the day are supposed to prevail. I'm only one person, so I can't watch them all, but I've seen them tee the ball up in the fairway rolling it up with their clubhead if it's in a lie they don't like. They break the rules in other ways also. If their ball is out of bounds or lost, in a hazard or in the water, they have no idea where to drop it, so they drop it anywhere. They say, 'it does't matter, it's only a dollar Nassau.' Then when they get to the green, they always change balls. They have to have their putting ball, you know. I've never seen any man penalize himself for that."

Most flagrant cheater Carol Mann ever saw was a successful businessman who played golf regularly at one of Chicago's swankier country clubs.

"This fellow had a hole purposely cut in his pocket," she remembered, laughing. "He kept a ball in that pocket and every time he'd hit into the rough, he go in there by himself, squeeze the ball through the hole in his pocket and call out 'I found my ball!' Naturally, he'd always 'find' it in a good lie."

Carol Mann thinks men cheat on the golf course more than women because they have greater egos and less regard for the rules.

"Women are more meticulous about the game itself," she says. "They're more honest than men."

Anybody who knows Carol Mann knows she has some pretty strong feelings about the women's tour, strong enough so that she once was president of the LPGA's Executive Board, but that doesn't mean she is out there leading the women's lib movement. She doesn't say women golfers are perfect. She has seen them cheat, too.

I asked Carol if she had ever cheated on the golf course and she said if she did, it was through ignorance, and when she was very young.

"The way I feel about it now, my performance in golf represents who I am and what I am, and if I cheat, I cheat myself," she says.

After breakfast Monday, blonde, curly-haired Carol stopped off at the First Women's Bank of New York where the $200,000 prize money for the fifth annual Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle championship, the world's richest tournament, is being held. She'll be shootin for the $32,000 first prize in Palm Springs Calif., April 1-4.

The First Women's Bank is run by women but it's not going to get any o Carol Mann's money.

"If they're like me, I don't trust 'em, she kids. "I'm sure they're not like me.

When she first jo ined the tour in 196 a tall, leggy kid out of Towson, Md., Car Mann did so poorly, she nearly starved t death. She struggled for two years an sometimes became desperate.

"I'll tell you how desperate," sh laughs. Carol Mann always laughs. "I we so deperate I thought abou becoming....sh-hh-h....a hooker! I mea it. I talked it over with two other playe on the tour...I won't tell you the names...and they encouraged me. The thought I was kidding. I wasn't. It's ju as well I didn't become one, though. couldn't. I'd be too guilt-ridden."

Fred Faerber Makes His Point

NEW PALTZ—It wasn't big as picket lines go—just two men—but Fred Faerber, the aggressive president of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County got his message across Monday.

Fearber was joined by Monte Osborne of the Rondout Valley Fish and Game Club in his protest against Department of Environmental regulations limiting the take of trout to three on a stretch of the .8 miles from the Five Arches Bridge in Boiceville.

"I was prepared to go it alone," the volatile Federation president had said several days ago.

Norm Van Valkenburgh, the new Region 3 director and Tony Bonavist, acting regional supervisor, paid the picket scene a visit and chatted briefly with Faerber.

The DEC representatives saw plenty. Between them, Faerber and Osborne flashed six different messages to Van Valkenburgh, whose appointment to replace the deposed Warren McKeon touched off a major controversy in county fish and game circles.

Among the messages: "Bring Back Warren," "Reorganize the DEC," "No Special Regulations on the Esopus Creek," "Hire Fewer People," "More Fish in the Stream" and "Take Back the Fisher." The last sign was a reference to DEC's newly announced policy of rehabilitating the fisher.

Faerber was armed with some new ammunition in his stand against limiting the trout catch in the Esopus. At a recent meeting, all seven counties in Region 3—Ulster, Dutchess, Sullivan, Orange, Rockland, Westchester and Putnam—voted unanimous support of Ulster's stand.

The Federation president also said a new state directive bars the stoocking of trout in streams under special regulations. "In other words," said Faerber, "the trout will have to go it alone in those areas."

Faerber and Van Valkenburgh did little more than exchange pleasantries in their meeting the picket line. The Region 3 director had an appointment in White Plains.

The Federation president had good news on the county federation's proposal to create a new water fowl zone for the area. "I visited the Montezuma headquarters recently," he said, "and the project is moving."

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What Joe Kapp's side in the former star quarterback's damages trial in Federal Court needed the most was a lucky break after two weeks of near identical testimony that was threatening to put the jury to sleep.

It got the break, although it was far from lucky, Monday, and mostly because of attorney Charles Hanger's perseverance. Hanger at times does not appear to have anywhere near the polish some of those fancy television laways have, but he works hard and seems to be getting the job done.

Four days of having Kapp on the stand, two more with Kapp's attorney-adviser John Elliott Cook, and three days of reading depositions hadn't produced much of anything the jury could sink its teeth into. The best that could be said for this case to that point is that it was moving along.

Then on Monday, Hanger, after finishing up a deposition by former Minnesota Vikings general manager James Finks, which shed little light, moved on to a deposition taken from former San Francisco 49ers star quarterback John Brodie.

The move by no means caught the defense by surprise since it knew ahead of time that at one point Hanger would make it. If anything the three defense attorneys — James McKay of Washington, D.C., William Willis of New York and Joseph Alioto of San Francisco —were ready.

Taking turns they almost leaped out of their chairs objecting to every question Hanger read from the deposition, taken last month because Brodie is out of town this month. The defense objected there was little or no relavancy between what happened to Brodie when he signed an agreement in 1966 with the Houston Oilers on a cocktail napkin and when Kapp signed a memorandum of agreement with the New England Patriots in 1970.

Judge William T. Sweigert was about to agree, sustaining at least a half dozen objections, when Hanger pleaded for a hearing in chambers so that he could make his case before the jury of four women and two men. Sweigert agreed to the hearing and then gave Hanger permission to continue his questioning but within a clearly defined area. That was all Kapp's attorney needed.

Billie Jean cheers on team

U.S. Tops Russia In Team Tennis

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Billie Jean King may be missing but there will be a replay next year of the United States-Russia tennis matches.

The first such venture, a five-match, $100,000 promotion in four cities, ended Monday night with the U.S. winning four of five sets for an overall 136-95 triumph. The U.S. players carved up $60,000. The rest went to the Russians.

The series started in Moscow last week, then continued in Philadelphia and Cleveland before being concluded here.

"This was a fantastic experience," said King, the six-time Wimbledon queen who said she will now concentrate on World Team Tennis as a member of the New York Sets.

The matches were played under WTT rules.

"I really don't know if I'll play next year," King said. "I've played only two sets singles since August. In Russia, I was down 2-5 to Olga Morozova and won, 7-5. In order to improve, I have to play and stop eating to get into shape."

The U.S. could have swept the final five matches Monday night in the Indiana Convention-Exposition Center. Sandy Mayer and Vitas Gerulaitis led Teimuraz Kakulia and Vadim Borisov 5-2 before easing up and clowning their way to a 5-7 defeat.

King and Mona Schallau drubbed Morozova and Marina Kroshina in women's doubles, 6-2. In distaff singles, Rosie Casals jumped to a 3-0 lead over Natasha Chmyreva, who was replaced after one game by Morozova. Schallau completed the set for the Americans, winning 6-4.

Marty Riessen defeated Alex Metreveli in men's singles, 6-3, and King and Mayer scored a 6-2 triumph over Borisov and Chmyreva in mixed doubles.

The matches will "definitely" be held again next year, said Larry King, Billie Jean's husband and the WTT president. "The only problem at this time is working out the exact date."

While support of the matches in the U.S. was disappointing — Monday night's attendance was announced as 3,622—King said they were received with great enthusiasm in Russia.

Posse Captures Sawyer Playoffs

SAUGERTIES—Sheriff Mayone's Posse, a fifth place finisher during the regular season, reeled off its third straight victory in post season play to emerge as the playoff champs of the SAA Sawyer Basketball League with an 83-65 win over Mark IV Printing.

Balance was the Posse's key to success as Pa Boos led four teammates into double figures with 21 points. The winners improved on a slim first half lead to jump to an 11 point bulge at the intermission. They kept the pressure on in the second half to foil Mark IV's attempts at a comeback.

Dave LaRourette was a contributor to the win with 18 points and eight rebounds. Paul Schabot added ten caroms and 16 points. Vic Pelletieri was the Printers' best with 24 points.

Although Mark IV finished above the Posse in the regular season standings, this was a playoff result that didn't really qualify as another Posse upset. The Deputies had been victorious in two previous meetings with the Printers.

Net Semis Near

KINGSTON—The last quarterfinal match of the second annual Men's Indoor Doubles Championship will be played at the Municipal Auditorium this afternoon at 4:30 when Ron Woods and Dick Smith take on Paul Baron and Dave Forer.

The winner of that battle will advance to Saturday's semifinals against the team of Ron Schoonmaker and C. J. Farley in an 11 a.m. match. The other semifinalists are the top seeded team of Pete and Bill Zeeh and the third seeded pair of Gordon Kragna and Dave Cooper. They'll play Saturday at 9 a.m. The finals are slated for Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Sunday's quarterfinal action saw Schoonmaker and Farley eliminate Joe White and Jack Schoonmaker in three sets, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1, and then Kragna and Cooper knocked off Al George and Bob Fuller, 6-0, 6-0. The Zeeh's also advanced easily with a 6-0, 6-2 triumph over Larry Vallentine and Jerry Prendergast.

Third round action, in which scoring went to best-of-three sets, began Friday. Baron and Forer took out Paul Lyle and John Farrell, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; Woods and Smith defeated Dave Jordan and Tim O'Leary, 6-0, 6-1; and White and Schoonmaker turned back Bob Campbell and Larry Leise, 6-2, 6-3.

Schoonmaker and Farley opened the continuation of the round Saturday with a 6-4, 7-5 win over fourth seeded George Martin and Jerry Leatherman. In other results, it was Kragna and Cooper over Andy Stoll and Dave Jones, 7-6, 6-2; George and Fuller over J. Waldin and T. Wise, 7-6, 7-5; and Vallentine and Prendergast over Josh Koplovits and Paul Haberland, 6-4, 6-2.

Leo Too Ill to Manage

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Leo Durocher, who signed for a reported $220,000 last January to manage a team in the Japanese baseball league, Monday had his contract cancelled because ill health will prevent from joining his new club for at least five weeks.

The 70-year-old Durocher, who managed three pennant winning clubs in the major leagues during a controversial career that spanned five decades, informed T. Nakamura of the Taiheiyo club of the Japanese league Monday that he had been ill with pneumonia and, under his doctor's advice, would need at least five weeks to recover.

Nakamura then informed Durocher that his contract would be cancelled. Last Jan. 9 Nakamura made a special trip here to sign Durocher.

Wenzel's Eight Straight

KINGSTON — Wenzel's Amusements trounced J&G Drywall 71-58 to remain undefeated (8-0) atop the National Division of the YMCA B Basketball League.

In other games, Dolphin Inn made it 7-1 in the Central Division with a 81-59 romp over Olive Cablevision. Well Wolfpack short circuited Sass Electric 108-67 and Fisherman's Club forfeited to Downs Street Driving School.

Kingston Imports forfeited to Golgoski's giving Golgoski's its first victory after six straight losses.

Harry Brink unloaded 33 points and Art Shelightner 18 (with 13 rebounds) for Wenzel's. Bob Whiffen led J&G with 27 points. Rich Dickerson had 10 points and Al Schmid contributed 10 points and 10 rebounds.

Dolphins had four players in double figures with Rockey Secreto leading with 20. Dan Potter had 15, Hugh Schrowang 14 (and 16 rebounds) and Mike Sass 13. John Stelcin rimmed 29 points and Jim Van Steenburgh 11 points and 15 rebounds for Olive.

John Jasinski (35) and Bill Egan (21) combined for 56 points to spark Wolfpack's breeze over Sass. Steve LeFever added 17 and Ed Jasinski and Russ Wilbur 13 each. Egan hauled in 14 rebounds.

Bill Sass and Bob Schlanger scored 17 each for the Electricians, with Schlanger adding 15 rebounds.

'Encouraging' Report from Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — Four months before the start of the 1976 Summer Olympics, Quebec's minister in charge of Games construction says work "is going ahead in a very encouraging way."

More than half of the upper level of the massive 72,000-seat main stadium is completed and good progress in being made at the lower level, Dr. Victor Goldbloom told reporters Monday after a third walking press tour of the site.

Goldbloom, Quebec Minister of municipal affairs, said the stadium floor must be cleared about April 6 to begin laying the sports field and running track.

While work on the field had to begin promptly, laying the track could be delayed two or three weeks, Goldbloom added. During that delay, he said, more permanent seating could be installed.

The minister estimated between 50,000 and 60,000 permanent seats would be installed before the Games Opening ceremony July 17. Temporary seating units would be installed to bring the stadium to capacity of 72,000 seats.

Construction on the modernistic stadium and connecting swimming pools has been proceeding on a round-the-clock basis to ensure completion for the games.

Goldbloom said officials now believed the on-site pools would be completed in time, but he added the "catastrophe plan" to provide alternate pools elsewhere would not be abandoned until the organizing committee gave its approval.

Speaking of an accident last week that saw four men killed on the construction site, Goldbloom said the deaths were not due to work pressure aimed at completing the the site in time.

"In all conscience I can say the tragic accident was not due to pressure," he said, adding that after the accident authorities completely reviewed the work schedule, procedures and safety measures.

The men died March 8 when a hollow concrete support beam in which they were working fell 200 feet to the ground from the framework of the doughnut-shaped stadium

Some union leaders claimed after the accident a speed-up in construction was being made at the expense of worker safety standards.

Goldbloom, who promised an open policy concerning information on Games construction when the Quebec government took over the Olympics from the City of Montreal, said the first public showings of the site would be Easter weekend.

Construction site workers would be allowed to show their families around the Olympic center on Good Friday. Details of openings to the public would be announced later, Goldbloom said.

During the public viewings, all construction work would be suspended.

Islanders Will Offer Refunds

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Islanders agreed Monday to grant cash refunds to season ticket holders if they are unable to use some of their tickets for the quarterfinal round of the National Hockey League playoffs.

Nassau County Consumer Affairs Commissioner James Picken said season ticket holders for the Islanders are required to buy tickets for all four home playoff games.

On Feb. 26, the team management announced that if the Islanders are eliminated before all the games are played, ticketholders will get a credit on their account for next year's season subscription.

At the March 10 meeting of the County Board of Supervisors, Richard M. Kessel, a consumer advocate, called this procedure a "ripoff," and he asked Picken to conduct an investigation.

Picken and other county officials conferred with representatives of the Islanders and the management then agreed to award the cash refunds. Picken said he assumed that the new policy will remain in effect if the Islanders get into the semifinal and final rounds.

Red Hook Is Unbeaten In UCAL Volleyball Play

KYSERIKE—Red Hook High's girls' volleyball team remainded undefeated in Ulster County Athletic League play Monday by defeating New Paltz and Rondout Valley at the latter's gym.

Red Hook topped Rondout, 15-7, 15-4, and New Paltz, 15-8, 15-8. In the third portion of the triangular, New Paltz defeated Rondout, 15-3, 15.5.

In JV action, New Paltz beat Rondout, 15-2, 15-6, but lost to Red Hook, 16-4, 15-5. Red Hook downed Rondout 15-3, 15-5.

Youth Survives Fall

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy miraculously survived a 65-foot fall from the roof of Freedom Hall during the American Basketball Association game between the Kentucky Colonels and the San Antonio Spurs Monday night.

Marty Smith, a junior high school student here, was listed in serious condition at St. Joseph Infirmary with a fractured pelvis, a broken right forearm, head and internal injuries. Hospital officials said his spleen had to be removed as a result of the accident.

A Colonels' spokesman said the youngster apparently managed to get onto the roof through a hatch in the arena and then fell through some loose tile, landing on a concrete floor about 40 feet from the basketball court while the game was in progress. He said two other boys also had clambered onto the roof but escaped harm.

The accident stunned a crowd of 6,788.

Gonzalez Wins Seniors

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Pancho Gonzalez downed second-seeded Pancho Segura, 6-1, 6-1, Monday to win the singles title in the $25,000 World Senior Tennis Championship.

In the doubles competition, the second-seeded team of Segura and Australian Bob Howe defeated the unranked duo of Gardner Mulloy and Tony Vincent.

Gonzalez, the tournament's top seed and an eight-time winner of the U.S. Pro singles title, collected four service breaks in the first set of his match against Segura.

"I made some lucky shots in the first three games of the first set and I think it discouraged Segura," said the 47-year-old winner, who collected $5,000.

Segura's second place finish earned him $2,500.

The winning doubles team split $2,000.

Prior to the championship finals, Mulloy joined Bobby Riggs to down Bunny Smith and Kathy Kuykendall, 7-6, 6-2, in a battle-of-the-sexes contest.

The tournament, held for the first time this year, featured players 45 years old and older.

Nine Named to Track Hall

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The National Track and Field Hall of Fame Monday selected nine persons to be enshrined here later this year, including the late 24-year-old Olympic runner Steve Prefonatine who was killed last year in an automobile accident.

Among those chosen were two men dubbed the "world's fastest human" in their heydays—Olympic gold medal winners Charles Paddock of the 1920s and and Bob Hayes of the 1960s.

Two women athletes honored by the national hall were Dolores Boeckmann, the first woman coach-chaperone to lead a U.S. women's squad to the Olympic games, and Mae Faggs Starr, who participated on three consecutive U.S. Olympic teams.

Also honored were high-hurdler Hayes Wendell Jones, distance runner Billy Mills, popular indoor miler Joie Ray and hurdler Forrest "Spec" Towns.

Dr. J. Kenneth Doherty, 70, leading American author of track and field technique books and a 1928 medalist in Olympic decathlon competition, was selected for the Hall of Fame for his meritorious achievement.

No coaches were to be enshrined this year, none having received 75 per cent of the votes from the selection committee.

Dr. William Exum, hall of fame chairman and athletic director of the University of Kentucky, said the induction ceremonies were to be held here June 11-12.

Exum said the inductees represented a "tremendously talented group of athletes."

Prefontaine, of Coos Bay, Ore., who set a national record for the high school two mile and finished fourth in the 5,000-meter competition of the 1972 Olympics, was called a "free spirit" by Exum.

"He had a certain kind of mystique," Exum noted. "He had empathy with athletes."

Exum diplomatically side-stepped a question on who would have won a hypothetical match between Hayes and Paddock, both holders of world records.

Hayes, who picked up gold medals in the 1964 Olympics, ran 100-meters in 9.3 seconds or faster nineteen times in his career.

Paddock, who ran the first 9.5 second 100-yard race, was known for his "flying leap through the finish," according to Exum.

The inductees were selected from a total of 35 athletes, coaches and contributors considered for the honor.

Frazier-Foreman Return Bout at Garden?

NEW YORK (UPI) — A spokesman for promoter Jerry Perenchio said Monday that a news conference will be held here Thursday to announce details for a heavyweight fight between former champions Joe Frazier and George Foreman.

No terms were disclosed but the spokesman indicated New York would be the likely site of the fight, with Madison Square Garden having the inside track, although he wouldn't rule out the possibility of holding the bout in either Yankee Stadium or Shea Stadium.

There is no love lost between Frazier and Foreman. The two met once before in Kingston, Jamaica, in January of 1973 with Foreman knocking Frazier to the canvas six times in two rounds while stripping him of the title.

Frazier contended shortly thereafter that Foreman reneged on an agreement for a return bout.

Faces Life

KINGSTON—Alex Torres, 21, of Park Hotel, Ellenville, faces a mandatory life prison sentence following his conviction in Ulster County Court Monday on two counts of third degree criminal sale of a controlled substance.

A minimum sentence of one year to life is mandated on each count under state law.

A 10-man, two-woman jury deliberated for about seven hours Monday before returning with the guilty verdicts.

Torres was arrested on the charges last November along with eight other Ulster County residents during a series of coordinated raids in the Ellenville area by state police under the direction of the Ulster County District Attorney's office.

Torres had previously been charged with the two counts of drug sale in a sealed indictment handed up by an Ulster County Grand Jury. He was charged with selling quantities of heroin to a state police undercover agent.

First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh prosecuted the case, which began last Tuesday. Woodstock attorney Joshua N. Koplovitz represented Torres.

County Judge Raymond J. Mino, who presided during the week-long trial, set April 14 as the date for sentencing.

Still Some High Spots on Strip

All is not bleak during Las Vegas Culinary strike as these two waitresses take advantage of 70-degree weather to cool their heels in fountain in front of Caesars Palace. Talks are continuing in the four-day-old walkout over higher wages and other benefits. About 11,700 Culinary members are affected, along with stagehands and musicians. There are still 23,000 rooms available at some hotels on the strip and all of downtown. (UPI)

CSEA Rejects Merger

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (UPI) — The Civil Service Employes Association executive board Monday rejected a proposal to merge their union with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, union said.

The CSEA, the state's largest public employes union, represents 147,000 state workers.

In other action at the union's convention, delegates from one of the four bargaining units covered by a proposed contract with the state voted against that pact.

The contract proposal, reached last weekend by negotiators from the union and the state Office of Employe Relations, would give no raises this year but would call for negotiations on a raise to come in April 1977. It would also require six months notice to any emloye to be laid off.

Artur Rubenstein ... Still the Master

NEW YORK (UPI) — He strode on stage with a halting gait, homing toward the open grand piano almost as though he were drawn by a magnet.

He smiled and jerked a nod of recognition to the standing ovation of an overflow audience which spilled on stage. He sat on the leather-covered piano stool as though it were a throne.

Artur Rubenstein returned to Carnegie Hall Monday night to play Beethoven, Schumann and Chopin in celebration of the 70th anniversary of his American debut.

At the end, a capacity audience brought him back time and again with standing ovations for encores of more Chopin and presented him with a bouquet of yellow roses.

"For 40 years I have come back each year," Rubenstein said. "And I have always found this same affection. I love you. Thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Nearly 90 and nearly blind, Rubenstein raised his hands to the cheering audience to acknowledge the applause which thundered from the ancient concert hall. He crossed his hands over his heart, smiling, almost weeping.

By his own account, Rubenstein was born in Lodz, Poland, in 1887 and gave his first concert at the age of 6. He made his American debut in 1906 at Carnegie Hall and after a hiatus of several years has been back every year for the past 40 years.

Although his eyes are dimmed, Rubenstein still stroked and caressed the keys of his Steinway with the feeling and emotion of a master. Occasionally the fingers went awry but the touch always bore the tenderness of a lover.

And playing the piano is his most strenuous exercise.

Apart from setting-up exercises in the morning when he arises about 8 a.m., Rubenstein has no secrets for his longevity. He still enjoys a good wine and smokes two or three cigars a day, always with coffee. He takes no pills other than vitamin C.

An American citizen who now lives most of the time in Spain, Rubenstein returned for the first time in 16 years to his native Poland a year ago and came back with praise and admiration.

"They will go a thousand strong against an army of a million Russians, fighting with forks and spoons and I don't know what," he said. "They are the only ones who opposed Hitler from first to last."

Vivacious and alert, Rubenstein at the piano is still an exhilarating experience. No one, except possibly Rubenstein, knows how old he really is.

But then, who really cares.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17

Your birthday today: You move into a broader stream of activity while dwindling results from old practices squeeze you out of set habits. Nobody you know is involved in the same process. Relationships are distorted by failure to comprehend what you're doing. If you have a story to write, now is the time. Today's natives have difficult childhoods, develop foresight and a kind of political savvy.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Information coming in is garbled or wrong. Before taking it seriously, check it out and do your own thinking. Personal schemes take low priority.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Evade pressures from those who don't realize what they're asking of you. New proposals are incomplete and misleading. Get further details before deciding. Reexamine group ventures.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Speak up and demand benefits you feel you've earned. Gather others on an equal footing to join forces for good causes. Use leisure time for significant hobbies.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Intermittent change and confusing conditions call for steady attention to work. Personal demands conflict with those of your job. Postpone legal action.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Schedules are difficult to maintain. Don't make hasty moves in family situations. Be conservative about financial matters; keep to tested lines.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Sign only what you fully understand. People of different opinions cross up arrangements at extra cost in time and money. If parents or older folk are involved, it takes patience, too.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Detours save you from unwanted encounters but cause complications. There's a limit to your energy; devote more of it to having fun and less of it to business.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Being alert to what's happening confirms your theories or clarifies information. Get ready for upcoming social events. Pop a surprising question.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Take nothing for granted. Carefully check facts and figures and go ahead as planned. Stay away from friends' elegant schemes.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Important changes are beyond your reach. If decisions have to be made, rely on your intuition rather than on someone's opinion. Don't bother with trivia.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You're apt to jump to conclusions, take short cuts or make mistakes. Sell of surplus if you're certain that's what it is.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Don't pay attention to the activity and gossip that surrounds you. Close attention to details and unfamiliar proposals pays off.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

VISITOR: (Q.) Donna my brother's girl friend, is over here day and night. I am really sick of it. She says she is coming over to see me but it always ends up she spends all the time she can with my brother.

If he is not at home when she gets here, she hangs around with me until he gets home. What should I do? Donna and my brother are 16. I am 14.—Bothered in Maine

(A.) Donna is taking advantage of you. She is also being dishonest. This is not good for you or for her or for your brother.

Ask him to get an understanding with her that she is not to just drop in. If she is coming to visit him, they should plan it ahead and he should be there to meet her and to be with her as long as she is there.

If he doesn't take action to improve matters, take it up with your parents.

ABORTION: (Q.) I am in deep trouble. You see, I'm pregnant and can't decide what to do. My boy friend doesn't want to get married because he is 16 and I am 15 and we are still in school.

I know I couldn't raise the baby by myself. He and my parents say I should get an abortion, but I don't know if I could live with myself if I did that.—Under Pressure in Oklahoma

(A.) You say you can't decide. But as I see it, you have already decided. What you have not done is impressed upon your parents or your boy friend how important it is to you not to have an abortion.

Ask your parents to try to understand how damaging an abortion would be to you. You have already made one mistake and—for your own good—you must not make another.

You can go to a home, have the baby, and put it up for adoption. This will be the best course for you.

Opening lead — 4 ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South didn't like that opening club lead which obviously was a singleton. In fact, he liked very little about his contract, but it was up to him to try to make it.

He led a low heart at trick two. West held the trick with his 10 and shifted to a diamond.

South won in dummy with the ace, discarded a heart and led dummy's last heart.

West won that trick with his jack and led a second diamond which South ruffed. Now South led a third heart and ruffed in dummy. Both opponents followed and South saw a little light at the end of the tunnel.

He played dummy's ace of trumps. East dropped the 10 and things looked much better. A second trump produced East's jack, South's queen and West's king. Another diamond was led and ruffed. Then South's nine of trumps pulled West's seven spot and South claimed his contract.

Raucci Pleads Innocent at Arraignment

KINGSTON—Former Town of Lloyd Zoning Inspector Basil Raucci, who is under indictment on three counts of official misconduct, the manager of a New Paltz tire store accused in connection with a $100,000 theft, and the owner of a Milton trucking company charged with having a stolen van were among several persons entering innocent pleas at arraignment proceedings in Ulster County Court on Monday.

Raucci, who was indicted earlier this month in connection with alleged action while he was a Lloyd official in 1973, pleaded not guilty before County Judge Raymond J. Mino Monday morning. His attorney, Joseph Torraca, requested an adjournament of 45 days to make motions. Raucci was released in his own recognizance.

Also arraigned Monday were:

• Orlando ("Sonny") D'Esposito, 45, of Route 44/55, Clintondale, manager of Radial Ride Tire Inc., of New Paltz, who was named last month in a three-count felony indictment in connection with the alleged theft of a trailer and merchandise, valued at $100,000, from a Massachusetts freight terminal. The trailer and merchandise were recovered in Highland last December. Following the entry of an innocent plea, D'Esposito's attorney, Lewis DiStasi Jr., requested and was granted a two-week adjournament.

• Salvatore Martorana of Box 301, Milton, owner of Salvatore Martorana Enterprises Inc., a Milton trucking firm, who was named earlier this month in a five-count indictment in connection with the alleged possession of a van stolen from New Jersey last year. Martorana pleaded innocent and his attorney, Torraca, was granted 45 days to make motions.

• George Lamoreaux Jr., 17, of 4 Adams Court, Hurley, who pleaded guilty to second degree burglary in connection with the theft of a coin collection valued at $35,000 last December from a Saugerties residence. Sentencing was put over until April 14, Lamoreaux was represented by Attorney Melvin Higgins.

• Terrance Carney, 23, of Saugerties, who was indicted last month on a charge of first degree assault in connection with an alleged New Year's Eve knife attack on a Saugerties woman.

Represented by Attorney Louis Patack, Carney pleaded innocent. The case was adjourned for 45 days.

• John Palen, 25, of 108 McEntee Street, Kingston, who was indicted last month on one count of third degree burglary in connection with a 1974 burglary in Kingston. Palen's attorney, Alan Zweibel, was granted 45 days during which to make motions following the entry of an innocent plea on behalf of the defendant.

Furbush: 'We'll Get It Done'

KINGSTON—Although the Driftwood Floating Theater is floating again, Capt. Edward C. Furbush has precious little time to relax.

"We'll repaint her and and begin fixing up the inside," he said. "It won't be any small job, but we'll get it done."

If anyone doubts the captain's perservance, check back to Jan. 24 when the Driftwood plunged to the bottom of the Rondout Creek. Furbush insisted from the start that the Showboat would be refloated, after several earlier failures, his prediction came true Sunday.

It took the combined efforts of paid and volunteer firemen from more than a dozen area companies to remove the water from the Driftwood's hold Sunday. The bulk of the work was performed by two eight-inch stationary pumps donated by private businesses, and fire engines from East Kingston and Ulster Hose, Excelsior Hose and the Kingston Fire Department.

Within 30 minutes after the pumps were first revved up, the Driftwood showed signs of rising. By 8:30 p.m., some five hours after the operation began, the Showboat sat high, but not quite dry.

The refloating operation succeeded Sunday, where it had failed twice before. What apparently separate Sunday's success from earlier failures were the efforts of skin divers Richar Shook and Peter Kelly, who spent most of Saturday stuffing opened seams with bits of mattress and lining the hull with a 100-foot-long strip of plastic. Those additional measures made the hull virtually watertight, and allowed the pumps to remove the water faster than it flowed into the hold.

The Showboat's problems began Jan. 24 while it was locked into its mooring at the foot of Broadway by ice more than a foot thick in the creek. The pressure of that ice against her starboard side forced the Driftwood to list to port, allowing water to flow in through open seams above the water line.

Furbush said Monday that the hull has not been damaged and that there is no need for repairs below the water line. "There's nothing wrong with the hull at all," said Furbush.

Considerable work, whoever, will have to be performed inside the floating theater, which has been under wafer for almost two months. All of the theater's seats will have to be replaced, and other interior repairs will commence when things dry out.

"We had hoped to open June 1," said the captain, "but we might be a little late."

Help for Heart Fund

The Student Council of M. Clifford Miller School in Lake Katrine raised more than $200 for the Heart Fund with its second "Sweetheart" Dance recently. Here, King John Petramale (L) and Queen of Hearts Meg Allen turn over the proceeds to Reg Lawlis, Kingston Heart Fund chairman. Heart Fund volunteers to date have raised $3,482 toward the group's $8,500 goal, Lawlis said. (Freeman photo)

100 New Mid-Town Trees; Opening Bids on April 1

KINGSTON—City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco will open bids on the planting of 100 trees in the midtown section of Kingston, April 1 at his office at City Hall at 2 p.m.

The project, estimated to cost $20,000, is another phase of the code enforcement program in mid-town and will be paid for with federal funds.

Three types of trees will be planted—honey locust, Norway maple and pin oaks.

Streets include the west side of Prospect between Van Buren and St. James (15 trees), the east side of Prospect Street between Liberty and St. James (eight trees), the west side of Furnace Street between Henry and Franklin Streets (three trees) and the west side of Sterling Street between Henry and Cedar Streets (five trees). All trees in that section will be honey locusts.

Norway maples will be planted in the second tree planting area, which covers the east side of Clinton Avenue between Henry Street and Liberty Street (eight trees), the north side of Henry Street between Broadway and Clinton Avenue (nine trees), the south side of Henry between Broadway and Prospect Street (10 trees), the north side of Franklin Street between Broadway and Clinton Avenue (six trees), the south side of Franklin between Broadway and Prospect Street (seven trees), the south side of Liberty Street between Clinton Avenue and Furnace Street (three trees) and the north side of Liberty between Clinton and Furnace (two trees).

Pin oaks will be planted in the third project area which covers the north side of Cedar Street between Sterling Street and Clinton Avenue (five trees), the south side of Cedar between Iwo Jima Lane and Clinton Avenue (15 trees) and the south side of Van Buren Street and between Furnace Street and Prospect Street (four trees).

City officials say that trees will be planted only with the permission of the property owners. Trees are planted between the sidewalk and the curbs but become the responsibility of the property owners. Canvassing of the owners in the project area is currently underway

ALBANY (UPI) — Albert H. Blumenthal has vowed to continue as Assembly majority leader despite his indictment on charges of perjury and accepting bribes.

"I intend to fight. I will not resign," the 47-year-old Manhattan Democrat declared Monday. "I will promptly beat the lying accusor in court and I will be vindicated."

The majority leader was indicted last Thursday on charges of perjury, unlawful misconduct and receiving illegal payments from nursing home magnate Bernard Bergman.

You can give them more with tax-free savings in a Custodian Account.

A Heritage Custodian Savings Plan is the way to transfer money to a minor (child, grandchild, godchild, etc.) without a lot of red tape. It gives the custodian complete control over the account while the money earns the highest return allowed by law.

The money mounts up faster because there is no tax on the interest earned. It provides a simple and direct way to transfer money to a minor without the complications or the expense of setting up a trust. And since the money is considered as belonging to the child, it is no longer taxable as part of the donor's estate.

It's the practical way to accumulate dollars for a minor—and to enjoy some major tax advantages. Stop by soon or send for a detailed brochure on the Heritage Custodian Savings Plan.
